HELPING HANDS IN TIME OF NEED

Middle School students in Mill Valley assemble and mark bags and boxes of relief supplies for victims of Hurricane Fifi in Honduras. Student after student showed up at school this week with nonperishable food, blankets, old clothes and medical supplies such as aspirin and bandages. The collection organized by teacher William (Tony) Deprado amounted to 150 boxes and 20 large bags. They were picked up by the Salvation Army for delivery to Safe Space, a San Francisco group which owns beach property in the Caribbean area. At work at the school are eighth graders (top left) Allan Thunes, Christopher White, Carl Collins and Brian Healey; (center) David Dagley, Wendy Nairn and Sara Krekorian; (front right) Bruce Koehn and Cindy Bennett.

Lame Duck Pension Bill Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California legislators returned to their re-election campaigns today, boasting they finally passed a bill to end the big pension "ripoff."

The measure would repeal extravagant early pension benefits for lameduck lawmakers, chop in half Gov. Ronald Reagan's $30,000-plus annual pension and sharply reduce retirement checks for other top state officials.

Culminating a four-day special session called in response to public outrage over the pension bonanzas, the Assembly and Senate yesterday passed the bill with only one "no" vote and sent it to Reagan's desk.

The governor's press secretary, Clyde Walthall, said Reagan would sign the measure "within a few days." The provision slashing his own pension "doesn't cause the governor any problems," Walthall added.

Punctuated by bitter partisan harangues, the election-time session saw lawmakers try in vain to override 19 of Reagan's 174 vetoes, an anonymous bomb threat at the Capitol and sergeants-at-arms trying to "arrest" absent senators in "Keystone Kops" fashion.

On the final hectic day, the Assembly also killed measures designed to remove the political heat from their future pay raises and to help end the seven-week strike against the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

The session was called last week by Reagan strictly to deal with the early retirement bonus for lawmakers. Democrats expanded the issue into slashing retirement benefits for Reagan and other constitutional officers.

The pension bill (AB7) by Assemblyman Bob Wilson, D-San Diego, passed on an overwhelming 71-0 vote in the Assembly and a minimum 27-1 vote in the absenteeism-plagued Senate.

Sirica Is Requested To Excuse Ill Nixon

Text Of Ex-President's Letter Sealed By Judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon today formally asked Judge John J. Sirica to excuse him from testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial, apparently because of ill health.

Motions to quash both prosecution and defense subpoenas for Nixon's testimony were delivered at 11 a.m. to the closely guarded chambers where Sirica was interviewing prospective jurors for the trial of five of the former president's associates.

Herbert J. Miller Jr., Nixon's lawyer, refused to say what the envelope contained. But Sirica disclosed the contents about 45 minutes later.

"They will be filed under seal until the court has had an opportunity to review them thoroughly," Sirica said.

The subpoenas would require Nixon, one of 20 unindicted co-conspirators in the cover-up, to answer questions about the alleged conspiracy for the first time since he resigned his office and received a full pardon from President Ford.

The motions to quash the subpoenas were believed to have argued that Nixon, who has been hospitalized with a new flareup of phlebitis, is too ill to travel to Washington from his home in California and too weak to endure the rigors of attending a trial that may last as long as three months.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested last week that Sirica might wish to consider sending a team of doctors to California to examine Nixon before ruling on whether he must comply with subpoenas for his appearance.

Sirica had started the long process of individually questioning prospective jurors for the trial of five former Nixon associates.

Miller's actions came as sources disclosed that another of his clients, Richard A. Moore, a former Nixon aide, had been added as an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up case on the basis of "newly discovered evidence."

Only 8 Officials Breach Economic Statement Law

By NELS JOHNSON

More than 190 past and present public officials in Marin have filed statements of economic interest with the county, while eight have failed to do so, the Marin County Clerk's office reported today. Deadline for filing was Monday.

Failing to file statements by the deadline were Adelaide P. Wilson and Harold S. Lezzeni, both Fairfax planning commissioners; and John W. Gates, a Corte Madera Planning commissioner currently hospitalized, according to county spokesman Danny Smith.

Others failing to file as required are John Schlette, former county land use commissioners; Merritt K. Ruddock and Willard Pittman, former Belvedere city councilmen; Robert R. Souza, former Fairfax town councilman; and Frank M. Bowen, former Sausalito planning commissioner, she said.

Mill Valley City Councilman Gerald Hood failed to file a complete statement, she said.

Such statements must be filed in accordance with disclosure requirements of the Governmental Conflict of Interests Act. The measure requires holders of or candidates for various public posts to report the broad source of income, loans and gifts over $250, investments and property interests over $1,000, and employment and management posts held between April 1, 1973 and March 31, 1974.

According to a state information manual on the matter: "The act empowers a court to impose a penalty of up to three times the value of any interest which you fail to report. An action to recover such a penalty may be brought by the district attorney, the attorney general or a group of citizens of the state.

"You may not take office while a disclosure statement is overdue. If you hold office, you may not collect any salary or other compensation for any period during which you were in violation of the disclosure requirement. In addition, violation may lead to forfeiture of

Planner Knocks Bus Lane Idea

Exclusive bus lanes on Highway 101 were pooh-poohed yesterday by a state highway official as an unnecessary step that would aggravate traffic congestion.

Carter C. Reaves, a senior transportation planner with the Department of Transportation's San Francisco district office, objected that "there are not enough buses to utilize an entire lane." Both buses and other vehicles would move faster if all lanes were open to all traffic, he argued.

The proposal for the exclusive bus lanes between Greenbrae and the Richardson Bay Bridge is being pushed by the Golden Gate Bridge and Marin County Transit districts. The Department of Transportation will hold a hearing on the issue at 8 p.m. next Thursday in San Rafael City Hall.

Reaves, speaking at a forum on transportation and air pollution, proposed instead that special signal lights "meter" general traffic onto Highway 101 and that buses be given priority to get onto the freeway. The metering would limit traffic on the highway so that it could flow continuously, according to Reaves.

He noted that the California Highway Patrol opposes opening an exclusive bus lane to car pools on the ground this would be too difficult to police.

Work to widen the freeway between Greenbrae and Mill Valley to four lanes in each direction is expected to be complete enough late this month to open the new lanes to traffic. The department has said it will not open them, however, until a decision is made after the hearing on whether to reserve the

Raging Fires Reported In Lima After Massive Offshore Quake

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A mighty earthquake hit southern Peru today, and amateur radio operator reports from the town of Canete 100 miles south of Lima told of fires raging there out of control.

Lima itself rocked for a full minute and residents fled into the streets, wailing prayers. There was no immediate estimate of casualties or damages and the city of Lima appeared to have escaped the brunt of the temblor. Most communications within the country and to the outside world were knocked out by the strong quake which struck at 9:28 a.m. (7:28 a.m. PDT).

A civil defense bulletin read over the national radio said the epicenter of the quake was 30 miles out to sea, off Canete. It said the quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale and 6 to 7 on the modified Mercali scale. Ten on the Richter scale represents total destruction.

Long time residents of Lima said the quake felt stronger than the one in 1970 which devastated the northern half of Peru and killed nearly 67,000 persons. Seismograph stations in other parts of the world recorded the quake as harder than the 1970 castrophe.

Clocks in Lima business offices stopped at 9:28 a.m. when the electricity failed. Plaster crumbled from walls, broken glass fell onto sidewalks and light fixtures were broken loose from the ceiling of the United Press International office in downtown Lima.

Downtown Lima was quickly deserted. Shops closed, office buildings were shut because residents feared a second and even stronger aftershock might follow. The UPI bureau moved to the west coast cables office which still had short wave radio communications with the outside.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph said phone service from Lima was restored after a two-hour cut. He said the 28 satellite circuits cut by the earthquake were put back in operation, but backed up calls were delayed by as much as two hours.

FACES OF MARIN CITY

Christmas Spirit Fades As Deadline Comes, Goes

By PAUL LIBERATORE
(Last of three articles)

There was almost a festive air around the administrative offices of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency when five firm redevelopment proposals for Marin City were submitted in 1972.

"It feels like Christmas," proclaimed executive director Wallace K. Shepherd. After seven years of inaction, the prospects for the future were taking a turn for the brighter.

Selected was Mid-City Developers, a Maryland-based firm headed by Eugene F. Ford, who carries a solid reputation for successful low and moderate-income housing projects in 14 states.

Mid-City bought 30 acres of highlands around Marin City for $1,058,400 last December and announced plans to begin building the first of an eventual 379 apartments and townhouses by the following March 31.

That deadline came and passed with no activity on the windswept ridge where Mid-City's $14 million Richardson Highlands project is to take form.

According to Ford, reached in his Maryland offices, construction on five model townhouses will begin next month. The balance of the project won't be started until next spring.

At present, processing of construction plans by the county planning department has hit a snag. Approved by planning commissioners for the first phase of the two-phase project were 139 units, 42 of which were to be three-bedroom townhouses. But actual building plans subsequently submitted call for only 18 three-bedroom dwellings.

Ford said the three-bedroom units were reduced because two-bedroom townhouses are easier to sell. But, he added, he would submit new plans conforming to the development proposal approved by planning commissioners.

While the developer's successes have been in building low and moderate-income housing, what is proposed for Richardson Highlands is "market rate" housing, with townhouses in the first phase of construction priced at between $47,000 and $57,000, according to the planning department.

Planning commissioners have stipulated that 20 per cent of

$4 Million Claim By Boy Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A $4 million damage award won by a 14-year-old San Rafael boy left mute and paralyzed as a result of a schoolyard brawl has been upheld by the state Court of Appeals.

The court yesterday upheld an earlier San Francisco Superior Court ruling that negligent acts of a hospital, doctor and two public entities resulted in damages to Kelly Niles.

It confirmed the $2.4 million damages in total economic loss and $1.6 million in general damages awarded to the boy.

Paralyzed from the neck down, Niles won the damages from San Francisco's Mount Zion Hospital, Dr. David Haskin, the City of San Rafael and the San Rafael School District. Mount Zion and the doctor were ordered to pay the bulk of the damages, $4 million, and the two other defendants paid $25,000.

Niles, son of San Francisco radio personality David Niles, was taken to Mount Zion Hospital following a fistfight June 26, 1970. The hospital released him, he returned home and then returned to the hospital for emergency surgery, suffering from a fractured skull and internal bleeding.

Young Niles, who, the court said, would have made a full recovery had he been treated immediately, now requires full-time attendant care.

(He attends a special class for handicapped youngsters at Marindale School in San Rafael and has been president of his class and school newspaper editor in addition to earning outstanding grades. His doctor says he has about 90 per cent normal life expectancy.)

'Bureaucratic Shuffle' Charged In The Probation Department

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A member of the Marin County Juvenile Justice Commission complained yesterday that the county probation department operates "one of the most successful bureaucratic shuffles I have seen in more than 20 years working with public agencies."

Edward J. Neumeier, who has served on the state-required commission for 18 months and is currently its secretary, listed five examples of "bureaucratic shuffles" and said they have convinced him "that community participation (in Marin's juvenile justice system) is a hollow gesture."

His comments are contained in a letter to commission Chairman John Donovan which asks that his concerns be discussed at the next commission meeting.

Neumeier, an administrator with the Tamalpais High School District, said significant recommendations made by the commission "don't seem to go anywhere; rather, they seem to get lost . . ."

The commission's "Juvenile Hall report" which recommended sweeping changes in the operation of the detention center, is one of those, he said.

It was adopted by the commission in April. A month later, Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer said he would appoint a staff task force — "in probably two weeks" — to consider the recommendations.

"On that basis, the commission agreed not to send its report to the Board of Supervisors pending this (tast force's) response," Neumeier said.

"At the June 25 meeting of the commission, in response to questions, the chief probation officer reported that organization of the task force was making slow progress due to other priorities. That is the last the commission has heard of the juvenile hall study and its recommendations."

(The commission was subsequently critized by county supervisors for not forwarding the report. Brewer did not explain

Conservative Harmer May Replace Reinecke

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today was expected to announce appointment of Sen. John L. Harmer, one of the most conservative members of the legislature, to succeed Ed Reinecke as lieutenant governor.

Reagan, acting six hours after Reinecke's sentence to an 18-month suspended term for felony perjury, called a news conference to disclose his choice to replace the man he hand-picked as his heir-apparent in 1969.

Harmer, the trailing Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in the Nov. 5 election, previously announced he would accept the nomination if Reagan offered it, but volunteered the action could be interpreted as "political wheeling and dealing" in the Watergate climate.

Reinecke became the first constitutional officer in California history to be tried, convicted and sentenced for perjury, and apparently the only statewide official to forfeit his office because of conviction of a "high crime."

(Reinecke's indictment on federal perjury charges cost him the Republican nomination for governor in June, not renomination for lieutenant governor as reported incorrectly yesterday in a United Press International story carried in the Independent-Journal.)

However, the office of Democratic Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr. said that even if Harmer was appointed, his name would not appear on the general election ballot as an "incumbent" because the deadline for ballot printing had long passed. The "incumbent" designation is regarded as a natural for voter appeal.

Harmer, the trailing Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in the Nov. 5 election, previously announced he would accept the nomination if Reagan offered it, but volunteered the action could be interpreted as "political wheeling and dealing" in the Watergate climate.

Reinecke became the first constitutional officer in California history to be tried, convicted and sentenced for perjury, and apparently the only statewide official to forfeit his office because of conviction of a "high crime."

(Reinecke's indictment on federal perjury charges cost him the Republican nomination for governor in June, not renomination for lieutenant governor as reported incorrectly yesterday in a United Press International story carried in the Independent-Journal.)

However, the office of Democratic Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr. said that even if Harmer was appointed, his name would not appear on the general election ballot as an "incumbent" because the deadline for ballot printing had long passed. HELPING HANDS IN TIME OF NEED

Middle School students in Mill Valley assemble and mark bags and boxes of relief supplies for victims of Hurricane Fifi in Honduras. Student after student showed up at school this week with nonperishable food, blankets, old clothes and medical supplies such as aspirin and bandages. The collection organized by teacher William (Tony) Deprado amounted to 150 boxes and 20 large bags. They were picked up by the Salvation Army for delivery to Safe Space, a San Francisco group which owns beach property in the Caribbean area. At work at the school are eighth graders (top left) Allan Thunes, Christopher White, Carl Collins and Brian Healey; (center) David Dagley, Wendy Nairn and Sara Krekorian; (front right) Bruce Koehn and Cindy Bennett.

Lame Duck Pension Bill Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California legislators returned to their re-election campaigns today, boasting they finally passed a bill to end the big pension "ripoff."

The measure would repeal extravagant early pension benefits for lameduck lawmakers, chop in half Gov. Ronald Reagan's $30,000-plus annual pension and sharply reduce retirement checks for other top state officials.

Culminating a four-day special session called in response to public outrage over the pension bonanzas, the Assembly and Senate yesterday passed the bill with only one "no" vote and sent it to Reagan's desk.

The governor's press secretary, Clyde Walthall, said Reagan would sign the measure "within a few days." The provision slashing his own pension "doesn't cause the governor any problems," Walthall added.

Punctuated by bitter partisan harangues, the election-time session saw lawmakers try in vain to override 19 of Reagan's 174 vetoes, an anonymous bomb threat at the Capitol and sergeants-at-arms trying to "arrest" absent senators in "Keystone Kops" fashion.

On the final hectic day, the Assembly also killed measures designed to remove the political heat from their future pay raises and to help end the seven-week strike against the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

The session was called last week by Reagan strictly to deal with the early retirement bonus for lawmakers. Democrats expanded the issue into slashing retirement benefits for Reagan and other constitutional officers.

The pension bill (AB7) by Assemblyman Bob Wilson, D-San Diego, passed on an overwhelming 71-0 vote in the Assembly and a minimum 27-1 vote in the absenteeism-plagued Senate.

Sirica Is Requested To Excuse Ill Nixon

Text Of Ex-President's Letter Sealed By Judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon today formally asked Judge John J. Sirica to excuse him from testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial, apparently because of ill health.

Motions to quash both prosecution and defense subpoenas for Nixon's testimony were delivered at 11 a.m. to the closely guarded chambers where Sirica was interviewing prospective jurors for the trial of five of the former president's associates.

Herbert J. Miller Jr., Nixon's lawyer, refused to say what the envelope contained. But Sirica disclosed the contents about 45 minutes later.

"They will be filed under seal until the court has had an opportunity to review them thoroughly," Sirica said.

The subpoenas would require Nixon, one of 20 unindicted co-conspirators in the cover-up, to answer questions about the alleged conspiracy for the first time since he resigned his office and received a full pardon from President Ford.

The motions to quash the subpoenas were believed to have argued that Nixon, who has been hospitalized with a new flareup of phlebitis, is too ill to travel to Washington from his home in California and too weak to endure the rigors of attending a trial that may last as long as three months.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested last week that Sirica might wish to consider sending a team of doctors to California to examine Nixon before ruling on whether he must comply with subpoenas for his appearance.

Sirica had started the long process of individually questioning prospective jurors for the trial of five former Nixon associates.

Miller's actions came as sources disclosed that another of his clients, Richard A. Moore, a former Nixon aide, had been added as an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up case on the basis of "newly discovered evidence."

Only 8 Officials Breach Economic Statement Law

By NELS JOHNSON

More than 190 past and present public officials in Marin have filed statements of economic interest with the county, while eight have failed to do so, the Marin County Clerk's office reported today. Deadline for filing was Monday.

Failing to file statements by the deadline were Adelaide P. Wilson and Harold S. Lezzeni, both Fairfax planning commissioners; and John W. Gates, a Corte Madera Planning commissioner currently hospitalized, according to county spokesman Danny Smith.

Others failing to file as required are John Schlette, former county land use commissioners; Merritt K. Ruddock and Willard Pittman, former Belvedere city councilmen; Robert R. Souza, former Fairfax town councilman; and Frank M. Bowen, former Sausalito planning commissioner, she said.

Mill Valley City Councilman Gerald Hood failed to file a complete statement, she said.

Such statements must be filed in accordance with disclosure requirements of the Governmental Conflict of Interests Act. The measure requires holders of or candidates for various public posts to report the broad source of income, loans and gifts over $250, investments and property interests over $1,000, and employment and management posts held between April 1, 1973 and March 31, 1974.

According to a state information manual on the matter: "The act empowers a court to impose a penalty of up to three times the value of any interest which you fail to report. An action to recover such a penalty may be brought by the district attorney, the attorney general or a group of citizens of the state.

"You may not take office while a disclosure statement is overdue. If you hold office, you may not collect any salary or other compensation for any period during which you were in violation of the disclosure requirement. In addition, violation may lead to forfeiture of

Exclusive bus lanes on Highway 101 were pooh-poohed yesterday by a state highway official as an unnecessary step that would aggravate traffic congestion.

Carter C. Reaves, a senior transportation planner with the Department of Transportation's San Francisco district office, objected that "there are not enough buses to utilize an entire lane." Both buses and other vehicles would move faster if all lanes were open to all traffic, he argued.

The proposal for the exclusive bus lanes between Greenbrae and the Richardson Bay Bridge is being pushed by the Golden Gate Bridge and Marin County Transit districts. The Department of Transportation will hold a hearing on the issue at 8 p.m. next Thursday in San Rafael City Hall.

Reaves, speaking at a forum on transportation and air pollution, proposed instead that special signal lights "meter" general traffic onto Highway 101 and that buses be given priority to get onto the freeway. The metering would limit traffic on the highway so that it could flow continuously, according to Reaves.

He noted that the California Highway Patrol opposes opening an exclusive bus lane to car pools on the ground this would be too difficult to police.

Work to widen the freeway between Greenbrae and Mill Valley to four lanes in each direction is expected to be complete enough late this month to open the new lanes to traffic. The department has said it will not open them, however, until a decision is made after the hearing on whether to reserve the

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A mighty earthquake hit southern Peru today, and amateur radio operator reports from the town of Canete 100 miles south of Lima told of fires raging there out of control.

Lima itself rocked for a full minute and residents fled into the streets, wailing prayers. There was no immediate estimate of casualties or damages and the city of Lima appeared to have escaped the brunt of the temblor. Most communications within the country and to the outside world were knocked out by the strong quake which struck at 9:28 a.m. (7:28 a.m. PDT).

A civil defense bulletin read over the national radio said the epicenter of the quake was 30 miles out to sea, off Canete. It said the quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale and 6 to 7 on the modified Mercali scale. Ten on the Richter scale represents total destruction.

Long time residents of Lima said the quake felt stronger than the one in 1970 which devastated the northern half of Peru and killed nearly 67,000 persons. Seismograph stations in other parts of the world recorded the quake as harder than the 1970 castrophe.

Clocks in Lima business offices stopped at 9:28 a.m. when the electricity failed. Plaster crumbled from walls, broken glass fell onto sidewalks and light fixtures were broken loose from the ceiling of the United Press International office in downtown Lima.

Downtown Lima was quickly deserted. Shops closed, office buildings were shut because residents feared a second and even stronger aftershock might follow. The UPI bureau moved to the west coast cables office which still had short wave radio communications with the outside.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph said phone service from Lima was restored after a two-hour cut. He said the 28 satellite circuits cut by the earthquake were put back in operation, but backed up calls were delayed by as much as two hours.

FACES OF MARIN CITY

Christmas Spirit Fades As Deadline Comes, Goes

By PAUL LIBERATORE
(Last of three articles)

There was almost a festive air around the administrative offices of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency when five firm redevelopment proposals for Marin City were submitted in 1972.

"It feels like Christmas," proclaimed executive director Wallace K. Shepherd. After seven years of inaction, the prospects for the future were taking a turn for the brighter.

Selected was Mid-City Developers, a Maryland-based firm headed by Eugene F. Ford, who carries a solid reputation for successful low and moderate-income housing projects in 14 states.

Mid-City bought 30 acres of highlands around Marin City for $1,058,400 last December and announced plans to begin building the first of an eventual 379 apartments and townhouses by the following March 31.

That deadline came and passed with no activity on the windswept ridge where Mid-City's $14 million Richardson Highlands project is to take form.

According to Ford, reached in his Maryland offices, construction on five model townhouses will begin next month. The balance of the project won't be started until next spring.

At present, processing of construction plans by the county planning department has hit a snag. Approved by planning commissioners for the first phase of the two-phase project were 139 units, 42 of which were to be three-bedroom townhouses. But actual building plans subsequently submitted call for only 18 three-bedroom dwellings.

Ford said the three-bedroom units were reduced because two-bedroom townhouses are easier to sell. But, he added, he would submit new plans conforming to the development proposal approved by planning commissioners.

While the developer's successes have been in building low and moderate-income housing, what is proposed for Richardson Highlands is "market rate" housing, with townhouses in the first phase of construction priced at between $47,000 and $57,000, according to the planning department.

Planning commissioners have stipulated that 20 per cent of

$4 Million Claim By Boy Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A $4 million damage award won by a 14-year-old San Rafael boy left mute and paralyzed as a result of a schoolyard brawl has been upheld by the state Court of Appeals.

The court yesterday upheld an earlier San Francisco Superior Court ruling that negligent acts of a hospital, doctor and two public entities resulted in damages to Kelly Niles.

It confirmed the $2.4 million damages in total economic loss and $1.6 million in general damages awarded to the boy.

Paralyzed from the neck down, Niles won the damages from San Francisco's Mount Zion Hospital, Dr. David Haskin, the City of San Rafael and the San Rafael School District. Mount Zion and the doctor were ordered to pay the bulk of the damages, $4 million, and the two other defendants paid $25,000.

Niles, son of San Francisco radio personality David Niles, was taken to Mount Zion Hospital following a fistfight June 26, 1970. The hospital released him, he returned home and then returned to the hospital for emergency surgery, suffering from a fractured skull and internal bleeding.

Young Niles, who, the court said, would have made a full recovery had he been treated immediately, now requires full-time attendant care.

(He attends a special class for handicapped youngsters at Marindale School in San Rafael and has been president of his class and school newspaper editor in addition to earning outstanding grades. His doctor says he has about 90 per cent normal life expectancy.)

'Bureaucratic Shuffle' Charged In The Probation Department

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A member of the Marin County Juvenile Justice Commission complained yesterday that the county probation department operates "one of the most successful bureaucratic shuffles I have seen in more than 20 years working with public agencies."

Edward J. Neumeier, who has served on the state-required commission for 18 months and is currently its secretary, listed five examples of "bureaucratic shuffles" and said they have convinced him "that community participation (in Marin's juvenile justice system) is a hollow gesture."

His comments are contained in a letter to commission Chairman John Donovan which asks that his concerns be discussed at the next commission meeting.

Neumeier, an administrator with the Tamalpais High School District, said significant recommendations made by the commission "don't seem to go anywhere; rather, they seem to get lost . . ."

The commission's "Juvenile Hall report" which recommended sweeping changes in the operation of the detention center, is one of those, he said.

It was adopted by the commission in April. A month later, Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer said he would appoint a staff task force — "in probably two weeks" — to consider the recommendations.

"On that basis, the commission agreed not to send its report to the Board of Supervisors pending this (tast force's) response," Neumeier said.

"At the June 25 meeting of the commission, in response to questions, the chief probation officer reported that organization of the task force was making slow progress due to other priorities. That is the last the commission has heard of the juvenile hall study and its recommendations."

(The commission was subsequently critized by county supervisors for not forwarding the report. Brewer did not explain

Conservative Harmer May Replace Reinecke

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today was expected to announce appointment of Sen. John L. Harmer, one of the most conservative members of the legislature, to succeed Ed Reinecke as lieutenant governor.

Reagan, acting six hours after Reinecke's sentence to an 18-month suspended term for felony perjury, called a news conference to disclose his choice to replace the man he hand-picked as his heir-apparent in 1969.

Harmer, the trailing Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in the Nov. 5 election, previously announced he would accept the nomination if Reagan offered it, but volunteered the action could be interpreted as "political wheeling and dealing" in the Watergate climate.

Reinecke became the first constitutional officer in California history to be tried, convicted and sentenced for perjury, and apparently the only statewide official to forfeit his office because of conviction of a "high crime."

(Reinecke's indictment on federal perjury charges cost him the Republican nomination for governor in June, not renomination for lieutenant governor as reported incorrectly yesterday in a United Press International story carried in the Independent-Journal.)

However, the office of Democratic Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr. said that even if Harmer was appointed, his name would not appear on the general election ballot as an "incumbent" because the deadline for ballot printing had long passed. The "incumbent" designation is regarded as a natural for voter appeal.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Date Set For Trial Motions

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday set Oct. 17 for hearing motions in the bribery, conspiracy and influence peddling trial of Sen. Edward J. Gurney, D-Fla., and six co-defendants.

Gurney

U.S. District Court Judge Ben F. Krentzman is expected to hear defense motions for dismissal of the 11-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury last July 10 in an alleged housing fraud.

Gurney's attorneys are seeking dismissal of the charges on the ground the grand jury was improperly impaneled.

Indicted with Gurney were former aides James Groot of Washington, and Joseph Bastien of Winter Park; former state GOP chairman Earl Crittendent and former GOP state finance committee Chairman George Anderson, both of Orlando and former Housing and Urban Development Department HUD officials Ralph M. Koontz of Jacksonville and Wayne Swiger of Tampa.

Coalition Nears End

ROME (UPI) — Socialist leaders told Italian Premier Mariano Rumor today the end of his coalition rule is inevitable, threatening Italy with its worst government crisis since the war and clearing the way for Communist and neo-Facist gains in new elections.

Aides said the premier was ready to resign in the face of a 21 per cent annual inflation rate, growing unemployment and terrorist bombings throughout the country.

Alert In Mideast

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israel military sources today reported a heightening level of alert along the Golan Heights, and Damascus Radio disclosed that Syria had carried out a series of war games believed to involve sophisticated new armor and MIGs supplied by the Soviet Union.

Israel newspapers said Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin took account of stepped up Soviet weaponry shipments to Syria — including city-to-city Scud missiles and advanced MIG23s — very seriously.

Natural Oil Slick

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Oil washed up on beaches here today, but the source of the slick was a centuries-old natural seep. Coast Guard officials said the oil was not from offshore oil drilling platforms.

Pea-sized balls of crude oil began washing ashore along a 12-mile stretch of Santa Barbara and Ventura county beaches last night, said Lt. Terrence O'Connell, Coast Guard group commander.

The seepage has been going on for centuries, and was referred to in writings by early white residents, and apparently was observed by Indians for ages before that.

Outpost Shelled

SAIGON (UPI) — The government lost all radio communications with a 400-man government military headquarters in the Central Highlands today after the outpost came under heavy shelling, the Saigon military command said.

The command reported Communist gunners fired at least 800 rounds of mortar, rocket and artillery shells into Chuong Nghia subsector, about 30 miles northeast of Kontum provincial capital, and 265 miles north of Saigon.

Salam Takes Over

BEIRUT (UPI) — Veteran Lebanese politician Saeb Salam announced today he has been asked to form a new government. He said he intended "to apply the sovereignty of law and make it supreme" to deal with such problems as inflation and government-guerrilla clashes.

Salam, 69, said in a statement broadcast by Beirut Radio that President Suleiman Franjieh had asked him to form a new government.

Heath Vows Unity

LONDON (UPI) — Conservative opposition leader Edward Heath today promised "open government" in front of television cameras to seek ways out of Britain's inflation-fired economic crisis if his party wins the Oct. 10 general election.

He renewed an earlier promise to form a "government of national unity," including representatives of other parties and experts outside politics.

Betty Ford 'Better'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford is feeling well enough to start taking note of the thousands of persons who have sent her get-well messages.

President Ford, who visited his wife at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center last night, said she was "feeling much much better."

Greek Elections Set

ATHENS (UPI) — Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis went before the Greek people today to announce the first parliamentary elections in a decade and a referendum on whether to restore deposed King Constantine II to the throne.

Gentleman Rocky Annoyed By Delays

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller yesterday suggested in his first major speech since nomination as vice president that he is somewhat annoyed with the prospect of Congress delaying his confirmation until after election day.

Filling in for President Ford at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, and here at a meeting of UPI editors and publishers yesterday, Rockefeller never directly criticized the Democratic controlled House and Senate.

In fact, when asked directly if the delay bothered him Rockefeller responded, "I have total confidence in the committees and in the Congress — whatever their decision may be."

But in his speeches he showed a gentlemanly annoyance at the announced intention of the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Rules Committee not to take up his nomination before recessing Oct. 11 for elections.

Rockefeller said he was in a "suspended state — I'm almost halfway through hearings that have been suspended until after elections — so I don't know what my status is. So my ability to speak is somewhat limited."

Rockefeller recounted how the President has asked him to take over the leadership of the National Commission on Privacy — a job Ford held as vice president.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER
Annoyed by delays

"I said it's kind of late," Rockefeller said chuckling, "mine's gone — I have answered questions on everything from my personal finances to the state of the economy."

The main target of Rockefeller's remarks was Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who was the former governor's toughest questioner at last week's Senate hearings.

U.S. People Said Groping With Change

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American people, aware that the 1970s are "a true watershed" in the nation's history, are groping for answers to the social, economic and political changes now taking place, the executive director of the Commission on Critical Choices for Americans said last night.

Henry L. Diamond, leader of the 42-member commission set up 10 months ago by Nelson Rockefeller, now vice president-designate, to examine issues facing the United States in the years ahead, reported on the group's progress at the 15th Annual Conference of United Press International Editors and Publishers.

"What is required is a deep understanding of the present and an ability to determine the implications of what we're doing today, where we are going to be 10 years from now," he told the Edicon meeting.

"Every generation thinks that it is living in a time of great change, but the evidence that the mid-seventies are a true watershed seems to be supported.

"Furthermore," he continued, "the people of this country perceive that this is a time of change and they are deeply concerned about it."

Diamond said that "as the problems become more difficult, the tendency is to reach for ever-more stringent regulation."

He cautioned that "the cumulative impact on human freedom of accepting the reasonable recommendations put forward to solve sets of pressing problems may be so huge as to create another problem larger than the ones with which we started — the loss of liberty."

Negative Cancer Test For Nixon

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Richard Nixon does not have cancer and will be released from the hospital later this week, the former president's doctor says.

Nixon's bout with phlebitis, and the lengthy convalescence urged by his physician, were expected to keep him off the witness stand at the Watergate cover-up trial for a month or more, possibly preventing any appearance.

Dr. John Lungren reported yesterday that an extensive battery of tests since Nixon was admitted to Long Beach Memorial hospital 10 days ago "have failed to reveal any hidden malignancy" — cancer — as the cause of the phlebitis.

The doctor had never indicated public concern over cancer, which is connected with phlebitis only in rare cases.

About two per cent of the phlebitis cases in the United States turn out to be caused by cancer of the pancreas, medical sources said.

Nixon's treatment continues to go satisfactorily, Lungren said in a written statement to newsmen, and he will be released "at the end of this week." The doctor did not say what day.

TODAY'S WORLD

4 Smog Violations Issued In August

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four notices for violating smog regulations were issued in Marin and Southern Sonoma during August and the first half of September, the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has reported.

The only violation cited in Marin was against Freeman and Sondgroth at the Silveira pit north of Novato. In Petaluma, two notices were issued against the Pioneer Shell Co., 100 East D Street, and one against the Foundation Construction Co. at the Highway 101 overpass.

Snake Finally Ends Sit-In

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Police in suburban Evandale yesterday ended a three-month battle with a snake.

The long black snake had been placed in a police car's trunk by an officer after a citizen complained about the presence of the reptile.

When the officer tried to get the snake to set it free in a wooded area, he found the reptile had slithered into an inaccessible section of the trunk.

The police car was placed out of service for the three-month period until yesterday, when a pesticide firm managed to force the reptile from the auto.

The snake was given to Adam Chacksfield, 11, of suburban Norwood, an avid snake collector.

Fourth Liner Joins Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 547-foot SS Santa Magdalena has been recommissioned to become the fourth passenger-cargo liner of the Prudential Lines.

The Santa Magdalena, capable of carrying 100 passengers and 7,000 tons of cargo, made her maiden voyage in East Coast service in 1963. She was withdrawn from passenger service four years ago.

The vessel, along with the SS Santa Mariana, SS Santa Maria and SS Santa Mercedes provides San Francisco, Vancouver, B.C., Tacoma, Wash., and Los Angeles with regular scheduled sailings every other week to Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean and around South America.

Date Set For Trial Motions

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday set Oct. 17 for hearing motions in the bribery, conspiracy and influence peddling trial of Sen. Edward J. Gurney, D-Fla., and six co-defendants.

Gurney

U.S. District Court Judge Ben F. Krentzman is expected to hear defense motions for dismissal of the 11-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury last July 10 in an alleged housing fraud.

Gurney's attorneys are seeking dismissal of the charges on the ground the grand jury was improperly impaneled.

Indicted with Gurney were former aides James Groot of Washington, and Joseph Bastien of Winter Park; former state GOP chairman Earl Crittendent and former GOP state finance committee Chairman George Anderson, both of Orlando and former Housing and Urban Development Department HUD officials Ralph M. Koontz of Jacksonville and Wayne Swiger of Tampa.

Coalition Nears End

ROME (UPI) — Socialist leaders told Italian Premier Mariano Rumor today the end of his coalition rule is inevitable, threatening Italy with its worst government crisis since the war and clearing the way for Communist and neo-Facist gains in new elections.

Aides said the premier was ready to resign in the face of a 21 per cent annual inflation rate, growing unemployment and terrorist bombings throughout the country.

Alert In Mideast

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israel military sources today reported a heightening level of alert along the Golan Heights, and Damascus Radio disclosed that Syria had carried out a series of war games believed to involve sophisticated new armor and MIGs supplied by the Soviet Union.

Israel newspapers said Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin took account of stepped up Soviet weaponry shipments to Syria — including city-to-city Scud missiles and advanced MIG23s — very seriously.

Natural Oil Slick

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Oil washed up on beaches here today, but the source of the slick was a centuries-old natural seep. Coast Guard officials said the oil was not from offshore oil drilling platforms.

Pea-sized balls of crude oil began washing ashore along a 12-mile stretch of Santa Barbara and Ventura county beaches last night, said Lt. Terrence O'Connell, Coast Guard group commander.

The seepage has been going on for centuries, and was referred to in writings by early white residents, and apparently was observed by Indians for ages before that.

Outpost Shelled

SAIGON (UPI) — The government lost all radio communications with a 400-man government military headquarters in the Central Highlands today after the outpost came under heavy shelling, the Saigon military command said.

The command reported Communist gunners fired at least 800 rounds of mortar, rocket and artillery shells into Chuong Nghia subsector, about 30 miles northeast of Kontum provincial capital, and 265 miles north of Saigon.

Salam Takes Over

BEIRUT (UPI) — Veteran Lebanese politician Saeb Salam announced today he has been asked to form a new government. He said he intended "to apply the sovereignty of law and make it supreme" to deal with such problems as inflation and government-guerrilla clashes.

Salam, 69, said in a statement broadcast by Beirut Radio that President Suleiman Franjieh had asked him to form a new government.

Heath Vows Unity

LONDON (UPI) — Conservative opposition leader Edward Heath today promised "open government" in front of television cameras to seek ways out of Britain's inflation-fired economic crisis if his party wins the Oct. 10 general election.

He renewed an earlier promise to form a "government of national unity," including representatives of other parties and experts outside politics.

Betty Ford 'Better'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford is feeling well enough to start taking note of the thousands of persons who have sent her get-well messages.

President Ford, who visited his wife at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center last night, said she was "feeling much much better."

Greek Elections Set

ATHENS (UPI) — Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis went before the Greek people today to announce the first parliamentary elections in a decade and a referendum on whether to restore deposed King Constantine II to the throne.

Gentleman Rocky Annoyed By Delays

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller yesterday suggested in his first major speech since nomination as vice president that he is somewhat annoyed with the prospect of Congress delaying his confirmation until after election day.

Filling in for President Ford at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, and here at a meeting of UPI editors and publishers yesterday, Rockefeller never directly criticized the Democratic controlled House and Senate.

In fact, when asked directly if the delay bothered him Rockefeller responded, "I have total confidence in the committees and in the Congress — whatever their decision may be."

But in his speeches he showed a gentlemanly annoyance at the announced intention of the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Rules Committee not to take up his nomination before recessing Oct. 11 for elections.

Rockefeller said he was in a "suspended state — I'm almost halfway through hearings that have been suspended until after elections — so I don't know what my status is. So my ability to speak is somewhat limited."

Rockefeller recounted how the President has asked him to take over the leadership of the National Commission on Privacy — a job Ford held as vice president.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER
Annoyed by delays

"I said it's kind of late," Rockefeller said chuckling, "mine's gone — I have answered questions on everything from my personal finances to the state of the economy."

The main target of Rockefeller's remarks was Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who was the former governor's toughest questioner at last week's Senate hearings.

U.S. People Said Groping With Change

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American people, aware that the 1970s are "a true watershed" in the nation's history, are groping for answers to the social, economic and political changes now taking place, the executive director of the Commission on Critical Choices for Americans said last night.

Henry L. Diamond, leader of the 42-member commission set up 10 months ago by Nelson Rockefeller, now vice president-designate, to examine issues facing the United States in the years ahead, reported on the group's progress at the 15th Annual Conference of United Press International Editors and Publishers.

"What is required is a deep understanding of the present and an ability to determine the implications of what we're doing today, where we are going to be 10 years from now," he told the Edicon meeting.

"Every generation thinks that it is living in a time of great change, but the evidence that the mid-seventies are a true watershed seems to be supported.

"Furthermore," he continued, "the people of this country perceive that this is a time of change and they are deeply concerned about it."

Diamond said that "as the problems become more difficult, the tendency is to reach for ever-more stringent regulation."

He cautioned that "the cumulative impact on human freedom of accepting the reasonable recommendations put forward to solve sets of pressing problems may be so huge as to create another problem larger than the ones with which we started — the loss of liberty."

Negative Cancer Test For Nixon

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Richard Nixon does not have cancer and will be released from the hospital later this week, the former president's doctor says.

Nixon's bout with phlebitis, and the lengthy convalescence urged by his physician, were expected to keep him off the witness stand at the Watergate cover-up trial for a month or more, possibly preventing any appearance.

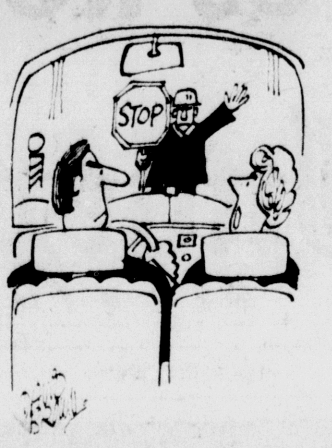
Dr. John Lungren reported yesterday that an extensive battery of tests since Nixon was admitted to Long Beach Memorial hospital 10 days ago "have failed to reveal any hidden malignancy" — cancer — as the cause of the phlebitis.

The doctor had never indicated public concern over cancer, which is connected with phlebitis only in rare cases.

About two per cent of the phlebitis cases in the United States turn out to be caused by cancer of the pancreas, medical sources said.

Nixon's treatment continues to go satisfactorily, Lungren said in a written statement to newsmen, and he will be released "at the end of this week." The doctor did not say what day.

TODAY'S WORLD



"You're blaming him for the delay just because he makes more money than you do."

4 Smog Violations Issued In August

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four notices for violating smog regulations were issued in Marin and Southern Sonoma during August and the first half of September, the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has reported.

The only violation cited in Marin was against Freeman and Sondgroth at the Silveira pit north of Novato. In Petaluma, two notices were issued against the Pioneer Shell Co., 100 East D Street, and one against the Foundation Construction Co. at the Highway 101 overpass.

Snake Finally Ends Sit-In

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Police in suburban Evandale yesterday ended a three-month battle with a snake.

The long black snake had been placed in a police car's trunk by an officer after a citizen complained about the presence of the reptile.

When the officer tried to get the snake to set it free in a wooded area, he found the reptile had slithered into an inaccessible section of the trunk.

The police car was placed out of service for the three-month period until yesterday, when a pesticide firm managed to force the reptile from the auto.

The snake was given to Adam Chacksfield, 11, of suburban Norwood, an avid snake collector.

Fourth Liner Joins Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 547-foot SS Santa Magdalena has been recommissioned to become the fourth passenger-cargo liner of the Prudential Lines.

The Santa Magdalena, capable of carrying 100 passengers and 7,000 tons of cargo, made her maiden voyage in East Coast service in 1963. She was withdrawn from passenger service four years ago.

The vessel, along with the SS Santa Mariana, SS Santa Maria and SS Santa Mercedes provides San Francisco, Vancouver, B.C., Tacoma, Wash., and Los Angeles with regular scheduled sailings every other week to Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean and around South America.

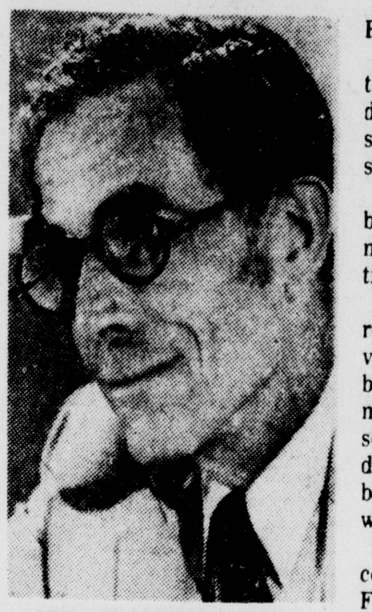
Cuba Changes From Garrison State To Improving Nation

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., returned Monday from his first visit to Cuba since 1960. He was accompanied by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., on the unofficial visit.)

By SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL



SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL
Compares trips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuba, the tropical island of sugar cane and Castro-brand communism just 90 miles off U.S. shores, has changed greatly from my last trip there in December, 1960.

Cuba today is a country struggling with the usual problems of undeveloped countries — poverty, hunger, inadequate housing, lack of education and health care.

But there are many signs that the elaborate social programs of the Communist system there are working, and that the average Cuban working man and farmer is better off today than he was in the days before 1959 "when the revolution triumphed," as the Cuban Communists continually say.

I last went to Havana as a senator-elect from Rhode Island to see for myself what conditions were like. The Nacional Hotel where I stayed was chockablock full of "barbudas," the bearded revolutionaries in green army fatigues, most of them carrying pistols or submachine guns.

The Cuban people I met in 1960 seemed generally supportive of the Castro regime. Those who opposed the revolution had fled, died or been imprisoned.

Most of those who remained appeared genuinely relieved that the despised, rotten Batista government had been overthrown.

Back in Washington, I reported my observations to Central Intelligence Agency Director Allen Dulles and his key advisers and suggested it would be unwise for our country to try to spark a revolt by violence in Cuba since the majority of the people either supported or were acquiescent to the Castro regime.

My advice was disregarded and a few weeks later the Bay of Pigs invasion occurred.

Last weekend I returned to Havana with Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York — once again to find out what conditions were like.

We were received warmly by Cuban officials and met for a total of more than 10 hours with the highest government leaders, including Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The biggest change I noticed from 1960 was the almost complete absence of weapons and of policemen on the streets of Havana.

With the exception of Fidel and Ramon Castro, there were no more "barbudas" and only the military still wore their revolutionary battle fatigues.

Cars and trucks were in much poorer shape. Many of the cars on the road were badly deteriorated, pre-1960 American models. The modern vehicles we saw were either Russian or Japanese.

At the fishing fleet's repair port, I noticed that the new machinery was Russian-made.

In general, the Russian influence, almost nonexistent 14 years ago, was now very apparent. Havana harbor was filled with Soviet vessels, including modern missile and fishing ships.

In Cuba today clothing and staples are rationed and prices are lower than in this country. Luxury goods, however, are very expensive.

Havana itself is a startling mixture of the old and new. In many places it has the look of a blighted American city in the process of urban renewal.

In the oldest section of the city it is still possible to get an idea of the historic Spanish influence, with beautiful churches and narrow streets leading off small squares. But old Havana is decaying.

The Cubans have maintained some of the trappings of prerevolutionary tourism. Our hotel, the Riviera, was well maintained, air-conditioned and comfortable. But the Havana Libre, once the famous Havana Hilton, has become shabby.

In some sections of Havana, the old buildings have been demolished and modern, though sparse, housing has been constructed.

In the countryside there has been, as a matter of government policy, far more construction.

We visited a cattle and dairy region about 50 miles from Havana where new villages have been built, each with its own modern housing, elementary school and medical clinic with a doctor and nurse. Others are being built across the island, we were told.

Our guide for this tour of the countryside was Ramon Castro, Fidel's older brother, who dresses and looks very much like the prime minister.

Their parents were once amongst Cuba's biggest sugar plantation owners, but after the revolution, they voluntarily nationalized their plantation. Ramon Castro said: "I nationalized myself. I am now just a soldier of the revolution."

The Cubans are extremely proud of the great progress they have made in education.

Both the percentage of children who attend school and the rate of literacy have improved greatly since 1959, and modern schools are being built everywhere.

The Cuban government is particularly anxious to train young people with technical skills and much of the educational system is devoted to that end.

The health system also has been improved. After 1959 more than half of the island's 6,000 doctors fled.

Today, according to Cuban figures, there are 9,000 doctors with 1,000 more being graduated each year. At present there is one doctor for every 1,000 Cubans.

Senator Javits and I also visited a school being built by political prisoners.

We were surprised there were only six guards for the 123 prisoners who spend their week building a branch of the university system at the prevailing Cuban wage.

We spoke with a group of the prisoners, many of whom had been imprisoned for more than 10 years.

The prisoners are permitted conjugal visits to their homes one weekend a month. They were allowed visitors Sunday mornings and afternoons.

Their meals seemed adequate — a slim breakfast, as is Cuban custom, but meat or fish and beans or vegetables at the other two meals.

The prisoners confirmed it was a privilege to be allowed out in such work camps, that they volunteered to do so and that if they misbehaved, they would be returned to prison.

They said they did not have to undergo political lectures if they did not wish to.

No provisions were made for church services, but those who wished to attend could do so on their monthly visits home.

In the Cuban society, we were told prostitution was pretty well eliminated.

This was quite a change since the Batista era, when there were 100,000 prostitutes in a nation of six million, or one prostitute among every 26 or 27 women.

We saw no beggars and our tips to waiters or musicians were politely refused.

Our final evening I spent dining and talking with Fidel Castro, a man of curious contrast.

I had expected to find an aging, burly, loud revolutionary. I found instead a relatively shy man, young for his years and softspoken.

It was difficult to realize he had come to power as a practitioner of violence and is today the leading revolutionary in the Western hemisphere.

We came away from our meeting with the view that there will be no abrupt return to normal relations between our countries.

The problems remain huge — more than two billion dollars of seized American property, the presence of almost a dozen American prisoners arrested for political or espionage reasons as well as thousands of Cuban political prisoners, and our embargo, which forces Cuba to depend almost totally on the Soviet Union for more than two-thirds of a billion dollars annually in support.

But we did leave with the impression that the Cubans are very conscious that they are part of the Western hemisphere and that they would welcome a transition to more normal relations.

Having the pride of a small nation and having established that they are able to go it alone — at least without American help — I believe they are ready for a step-by-step movement into the family of the Americas.

Injections Make Elderly Rats Seem Younger

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A Michigan State University researcher says he may have found a key to the secret of youth — in rat cages.

Physiologist Gail Riegle said he injected rats with l-dopa, a compound important to nerve function in both rats and humans.

He said reproductive systems of aged rats were brought to "a more youthful condition" by the injections. Inactive ovaries of old female rats began producing eggs and acquired a more youthful hormonal balance, he said.

Riegle said many effects associated with aging were due to nerve changes that control hormone levels. Higher levels of l-dopa are present in the nerve cells of young animals, he said.

Mobil Reduces Gasoline Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The Mobil Oil Corp. today cut the price of its gasoline by two cents per gallon, in line with federal regulations linking wholesale gas prices to the company's crude oil costs.

Motorists are certain to get a break only at company-owned service stations. Dealers owning their own stations will pay lower wholesale costs for their gasoline, but have an option of not passing on the lower prices.

Present price levels vary geographically, and oil firms generally do not announce the prices charged to wholesale purchasers.

School Stocks Glut Of Glitter

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Officials disclosed yesterday that the city school system has purchased $1,562 worth of glitter for decorating packages, valentines and the faces of students.

The large purchase was made, a spokesman said, because the district wanted to "stock up in preparation for an impending glitter shortage."

Cuba Changes From Garrison State To Improving Nation

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., returned Monday from his first visit to Cuba since 1960. He was accompanied by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., on the unofficial visit.)

By SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuba, the tropical island of sugar cane and Castro-brand communism just 90 miles off U.S. shores, has changed greatly from my last trip there in December, 1960.

Cuba today is a country struggling with the usual problems of undeveloped countries — poverty, hunger, inadequate housing, lack of education and health care.

But there are many signs that the elaborate social programs of the Communist system there are working, and that the average Cuban working man and farmer is better off today than he was in the days before 1959 "when the revolution triumphed," as the Cuban Communists continually say.

I last went to Havana as a senator-elect from Rhode Island to see for myself what conditions were like. The Nacional Hotel where I stayed was chockablock full of "barbudas," the bearded revolutionaries in green army fatigues, most of them carrying pistols or submachine guns.

The Cuban people I met in 1960 seemed generally supportive of the Castro regime. Those who opposed the revolution had fled, died or been imprisoned.

Most of those who remained appeared genuinely relieved that the despised, rotten Batista government had been overthrown.

Back in Washington, I reported my observations to Central Intelligence Agency Director Allen Dulles and his key advisers and suggested it would be unwise for our country to try to spark a revolt by violence in Cuba since the majority of the people either supported or were acquiescent to the Castro regime.

My advice was disregarded and a few weeks later the Bay of Pigs invasion occurred.

Last weekend I returned to Havana with Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York — once again to find out what conditions were like.

We were received warmly by Cuban officials and met for a total of more than 10 hours with the highest government leaders, including Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL
Compares trips

The biggest change I noticed from 1960 was the almost complete absence of weapons and of policemen on the streets of Havana.

With the exception of Fidel and Ramon Castro, there were no more "barbudas" and only the military still wore their revolutionary battle fatigues.

Cars and trucks were in much poorer shape. Many of the cars on the road were badly deteriorated, pre-1960 American models. The modern vehicles we saw were either Russian or Japanese.

At the fishing fleet's repair port, I noticed that the new machinery was Russian-made.

In general, the Russian influence, almost nonexistent 14 years ago, was now very apparent. Havana harbor was filled with Soviet vessels, including modern missile and fishing ships.

In Cuba today clothing and staples are rationed and prices are lower than in this country. Luxury goods, however, are very expensive.

Havana itself is a startling mixture of the old and new. In many places it has the look of a blighted American city in the process of urban renewal.

In the oldest section of the city it is still possible to get an idea of the historic Spanish influence, with beautiful churches and narrow streets leading off small squares. But old Havana is decaying.

The Cubans have maintained some of the trappings of prerevolutionary tourism. Our hotel, the Riviera, was well maintained, air-conditioned and comfortable. But the Havana Libre, once the famous Havana Hilton, has become shabby.

In some sections of Havana, the old buildings have been demolished and modern, though sparse, housing has been constructed.

In the countryside there has been, as a matter of government policy, far more construction.

We visited a cattle and dairy region about 50 miles from Havana where new villages have been built, each with its own modern housing, elementary school and medical clinic with a doctor and nurse. Others are being built across the island, we were told.

Our guide for this tour of the countryside was Ramon Castro, Fidel's older brother, who dresses and looks very much like the prime minister.

San Rafael Chamber Drops Subsidy Plea

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce board decided unanimously yesterday to drop a request for a $23,000 city subsidy and go it alone as a self-financing organization.

The move — reversing attitudes of many years standing — came as the chamber's board of directors met at the Bank of Marin.

"We just had a change of attitude, that's the truth," said chamber vice president David D. Muir. "We're better off going our own separate financial way."

Muir said that dropping the funding request and ending an $8,000 "contract for services" it received from the city last year will make the chamber a politically stronger organization.

"We want to reorganize our goals to business, rather than this just being a visitors' and convention bureau," he said.

The chamber intends to raise funds by economizing and a membership drive and perhaps even a boost in dues, he said.

Chamber manager Richard Rush, in a written statement, said today that "this decision should be in no way construed as a separation or severance between the goals of the city of San Rafael and the entire business community, nor should this decision become a point of conflict in our mutual abilities to work out problems that relate to the city.

"However, the board does feel that this decision will ultimately strengthen the voice of business in San Rafael and hence will also strengthen the relationship between business and government."

The city has given the chamber $8,000 annually for the past two years, saying the organization is a city information agency. Though the city is limited by charter to spending no more than $1,000 for promotion and advertising, the council has skirted the stipulation by granting allocations "for specific services" on a contractual basis.

The chamber received only $1,000 annually from the city before 1972.

Chambers of commerce or merchants organizations in Tiburon, Larkspur and Fairfax also pay their own way. The Mill Valley chamber receives $4,500 annually from the city council; the Sausalito Artists and Merchants, $2,000, and the San Anselmo Chamber, $3,000.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce receives 25 per cent of the city business tax or $10,000, which is less, each year.

8 Miss Disclosure Filing Deadline

your office and disqualification from holding public office in the future."

Most public officials who filed — including city councilmen, planning commissioners, city managers, planning directors, supervisors and various other county officials — did so in strict accordance with the law, listing merely the broad business entity or business activity which generated income.

San Rafael City Councilmen and a number of Belvedere officials, however, went beyond the law and reported the names of individual clients, although not required to do so.

Belvedere planning commissioners Howard Backen and William M. Lukens filed names of clients because they thought the law required it. The wife of Belvedere Councilman E. Allan Steinau, filing for her husband since he was out of the country, mailed in an exhaustive list of clients.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon filed names of clients generating income of more than $250 who might "materially be affected" by official actions or inaction since the city council last April unanimously voted to proceed with full disclosures before requirements of the law were clear.

The council's full disclosure policy was spearheaded by Nixon and endorsed unanimously after some reluctance from Bettini, who balked at the time involved in listing clients. City Atty. Fred C. Robbins also recommended full disclosure.

The state Supreme Court, however, later ruled that names of individual clients, customers or patients were not required by law.

(The Independent-Journal on Tuesday noted that Bettini has in the past voted on matters affecting his clients, voting in their favor occasionally, against them other times. The mayor has denied any conflict of interest, saying he weighs a matter on its merits regardless of who is appearing before the council.

(The report noted that Nixon, too, voted in favor of a client, when on Nov. 19, 1973 he voted with Lawrence E. Mulryan and John A. Miskimen in favor of a final map for Kenneth M. Levy's "Session Rise" condominium project.

(Nixon, noting that he is accustomed to abstaining on issues affecting clients, said then that the vote was an oversight even though the issue was a routine "formality . . . I didn't think twice about it because it was a formality."

(The I-J learned yesterday that Levy was a contributor to Nixon's 1973 council campaign, as well as a client, and that Nixon had cast a vote favoring Levy's project on a previous occasion.

(Nixon on Sept. 17, 1973, voted with his four council colleagues to approve exempting client Levy's project from planned unit development application procedures required under a city moratorium on conversion of apartments to condominiums.)

Statements filed by county supervisors are indicative of the kind of information made public by most officials in Marin under the anticonflict of interest law.

Following the advice of County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, supervisors listed genral sources of income such as the firms they worked for, but not specific clients.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere listed several real estate investments — including the Robin Hood Land Co. and the Drake's Bay Sales Co. — in addition to his San Rafael real estate office.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. listed income of "more than $1,000" as vice president of Dean Witter's San Francisco office but did not report individual clients.

He reported about 20 securities listed on the New York and American Stock exchanges, however, as well as real estate in Black Point and a second home in Stinson Beach.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, an attorney, listed several San Rafael law firms as sources of income. He reported an investment of "under $10,000 — in Pacific Gas and Electric."

Chairman Michael Wornum, meanwhile, listed about eight income properties in Sausalito, more than $10,000 invested in Bio-Kinetics of San Francisco, a sewage treatment firm, among other things.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste showed no investment and more than $1,000 income from Pacific Maritime Association, which he has since left.

Disclosures by other public officials in Marin included reports by San Anselmo Mayor Martin G. Blinder that he owns stock in a Las Vegas gambling machine manufacturing firm. Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford listed real estate holdings including seven properties on Bridgeway and Second streets, as well as property in Santa Venetia and in Mendocino, San Francisco and Sonoma counties.

About a half dozen persons attended the morning forum in the supervisors chambers of the Marin Civic Center. It was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area and the Public Interest Economic Center.

The first of the three forums, held Tuesday in Berkeley, also drew a tiny audience. The last was held today in Palo Alto.

Also speaking were: Paul N. Brand, a public information officer for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District; John T. Warren, a senior planner with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, and David C. Calkins, chief of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's air and water planning branch in San Francisco.

Brand tackled the Ford Motor Co. for suggesting this week that tougher air pollution controls for cars be shelved for five years. Noting that the company said the five-year delay was needed to control inflation, Brand commented that "last year it was energy, and next year it'll be something else."

Warren, with an eye to the sparse audience, said "people either don't know there is air pollution, or don't care that there is air pollution."

College Plan Discussed, No Action

The Marin Community College District trustees last night discussed but took no action on updating the college 10-year construction plan.

The state law requires that each community college district submit a 10-year construction plan each year, according to Erlene Jones of the information office.

The trustees considered a 2 per cent decline in enrollment in the coming years, but concluded it would hold the College of Marin at 5,000 day students, she said.

Things considered by the board include a theater-lecture hall and physical education field at Indian Valley Colleges, and a corporation yard, pumping station and acquisition of a service station site at the College of Marin.

The updated plan is due to go to the state Oct. 31, Mrs. Jones said.

The Marin Community College Board also:

HIRED — Hired Julia Shepard as a temporary affirmative action officer at $1,200 for six months. The board had turned down hiring her on Sept. 18 by a split vote.

COURSES — Approved adding two new courses to the College of Marin, ethnic studies and community chorus.

WORK — Approved a work-experience program for the next two years as required by the education code.

FUND — Increased the revolving cash fund from $6,000 to $8,000.

EQUIPMENT — Approved replacing $7,736 worth of stolen equipment, taken Sept. 14 or 15, from the communications department at Harlan Center. The college maintains a fund for replacing stolen equipment rather than carrying theft insurance.

TELEPHONE — Authorized advertising for bids for the telephone system at Indian Valley Colleges and allowed 60 days for review by the staff.

RESIDENCY — Approved having the day before the opening of classes as the date of determination of residency for students.

FEES — Approved giving students on financial aid and emeritus students parking permits for $5 instead of $10 per semester and waiving fees for needy students by the dean of students.

TREES — Approved a request by the Kent School District to remove certain chestnut trees on the border of the Kent School and college because the tree roots are causing trouble with the underground pipes.

the commission's action to supervisors, though he was present.)

Neumeier said the commission also sought to have one of its members named to the selection committee for a new superintendent at Juvenile Hall.

Subsequently, he continued, a former commissioner (Rex Silvernale) was appointed.

"The commission received no help whatsoever from the probation department in having its voice heard in this critical matter," Neumeier said. "On the contrary, there is good reason to believe that the chief probation officer strongly opposed commission participation."

He said the commission also was not informed of an architect's study of Juvenile Hall, recommending millions of dollars in changes.

That study "totally ignored" the commission's Juvenile Hall report, the product of a year's investigation, recommending a major portion of the hall be closed and cottages built.

"In spite of a request three weeks in advance by the commission to the department for copies of the architectural study, commissioners did not see the initial report until the same day it went to the board of supervisors," Neumeier wrote. That did not give ample time for study and comment.

He said in February, the commission directed the department to send all commission documents to the press.

"A check with several newspapers in the county indicates that these materials have not been received by the media," he continued.

His last point deals with a training program for probation department employees, proposed last October.

In November, he said, Brewer agreed to consider the proposal with his "education officer" and that a workshop would be scheduled in "six to eight weeks."

"On June 25, again at the request for information on this program the chief probation officer said he had no report from his education officer," Neumeier recounted. "Almost a year later, the commission also has had no report of any action taken on its motion."

He said his concerns, taken singly, may not seem of major significance. "To me, however, the neglect of the Juvenile Hall study, the related architectural study and the superintendent selection process are of tremendous importance to the function of this commission as mandated by state law.

"In the aggregate, these five points convince me that community participation is a hollow gesture under these circumstances," he concluded.

San Rafael Chamber Drops Subsidy Plea

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce board decided unanimously yesterday to drop a request for a $23,000 city subsidy and go it alone as a self-financing organization.

The move — reversing attitudes of many years standing — came as the chamber's board of directors met at the Bank of Marin.

"We just had a change of attitude, that's the truth," said chamber vice president David D. Muir. "We're better off going our own separate financial way."

Muir said that dropping the funding request and ending an $8,000 "contract for services" it received from the city last year will make the chamber a politically stronger organization.

"We want to reorganize our goals to business, rather than this just being a visitors' and convention bureau," he said.

The chamber intends to raise funds by economizing and a membership drive and perhaps even a boost in dues, he said.

Chamber manager Richard Rush, in a written statement, said today that "this decision should be in no way construed as a separation or severance between the goals of the city of San Rafael and the entire business community, nor should this decision become a point of conflict in our mutual abilities to work out problems that relate to the city.

"However, the board does feel that this decision will ultimately strengthen the voice of business in San Rafael and hence will also strengthen the relationship between business and government."

The city has given the chamber $8,000 annually for the past two years, saying the organization is a city information agency. Though the city is limited by charter to spending no more than $1,000 for promotion and advertising, the council has skirted the stipulation by granting allocations "for specific services" on a contractual basis.

The chamber received only $1,000 annually from the city before 1972.

Chambers of commerce or merchants organizations in Tiburon, Larkspur and Fairfax also pay their own way. The Mill Valley chamber receives $4,500 annually from the city council; the Sausalito Artists and Merchants, $2,000, and the San Anselmo Chamber, $3,000.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce receives 25 per cent of the city business tax or $10,000, which is less, each year.

8 Miss Disclosure Filing Deadline

your office and disqualification from holding public office in the future."

Most public officials who filed — including city councilmen, planning commissioners, city managers, planning directors, supervisors and various other county officials — did so in strict accordance with the law, listing merely the broad business entity or business activity which generated income.

San Rafael City Councilmen and a number of Belvedere officials, however, went beyond the law and reported the names of individual clients, although not required to do so.

Belvedere planning commissioners Howard Backen and William M. Lukens filed names of clients because they thought the law required it. The wife of Belvedere Councilman E. Allan Steinau, filing for her husband since he was out of the country, mailed in an exhaustive list of clients.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon filed names of clients generating income of more than $250 who might "materially be affected" by official actions or inaction since the city council last April unanimously voted to proceed with full disclosures before requirements of the law were clear.

The council's full disclosure policy was spearheaded by Nixon and endorsed unanimously after some reluctance from Bettini, who balked at the time involved in listing clients. City Atty. Fred C. Robbins also recommended full disclosure.

The state Supreme Court, however, later ruled that names of individual clients, customers or patients were not required by law.

(The Independent-Journal on Tuesday noted that Bettini has in the past voted on matters affecting his clients, voting in their favor occasionally, against them other times. The mayor has denied any conflict of interest, saying he weighs a matter on its merits regardless of who is appearing before the council.

(The report noted that Nixon, too, voted in favor of a client, when on Nov. 19, 1973 he voted with Lawrence E. Mulryan and John A. Miskimen in favor of a final map for Kenneth M. Levy's "Session Rise" condominium project.

(Nixon, noting that he is accustomed to abstaining on issues affecting clients, said then that the vote was an oversight even though the issue was a routine "formality . . . I didn't think twice about it because it was a formality."

(The I-J learned yesterday that Levy was a contributor to Nixon's 1973 council campaign, as well as a client, and that Nixon had cast a vote favoring Levy's project on a previous occasion.

(Nixon on Sept. 17, 1973, voted with his four council colleagues to approve exempting client Levy's project from planned unit development application procedures required under a city moratorium on conversion of apartments to condominiums.)

Statements filed by county supervisors are indicative of the kind of information made public by most officials in Marin under the anticonflict of interest law.

Following the advice of County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, supervisors listed genral sources of income such as the firms they worked for, but not specific clients.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere listed several real estate investments — including the Robin Hood Land Co. and the Drake's Bay Sales Co. — in addition to his San Rafael real estate office.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. listed income of "more than $1,000" as vice president of Dean Witter's San Francisco office but did not report individual clients.

He reported about 20 securities listed on the New York and American Stock exchanges, however, as well as real estate in Black Point and a second home in Stinson Beach.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, an attorney, listed several San Rafael law firms as sources of income. He reported an investment of "under $10,000 — in Pacific Gas and Electric."

Chairman Michael Wornum, meanwhile, listed about eight income properties in Sausalito, more than $10,000 invested in Bio-Kinetics of San Francisco, a sewage treatment firm, among other things.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste showed no investment and more than $1,000 income from Pacific Maritime Association, which he has since left.

Disclosures by other public officials in Marin included reports by San Anselmo Mayor Martin G. Blinder that he owns stock in a Las Vegas gambling machine manufacturing firm. Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford listed real estate holdings including seven properties on Bridgeway and Second streets, as well as property in Santa Venetia and in Mendocino, San Francisco and Sonoma counties.

About a half dozen persons attended the morning forum in the supervisors chambers of the Marin Civic Center. It was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area and the Public Interest Economic Center.

The first of the three forums, held Tuesday in Berkeley, also drew a tiny audience. The last was held today in Palo Alto.

Also speaking were: Paul N. Brand, a public information officer for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District; John T. Warren, a senior planner with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, and David C. Calkins, chief of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's air and water planning branch in San Francisco.

Brand tackled the Ford Motor Co. for suggesting this week that tougher air pollution controls for cars be shelved for five years. Noting that the company said the five-year delay was needed to control inflation, Brand commented that "last year it was energy, and next year it'll be something else."

Warren, with an eye to the sparse audience, said "people either don't know there is air pollution, or don't care that there is air pollution."

College Plan Discussed, No Action

The Marin Community College District trustees last night discussed but took no action on updating the college 10-year construction plan.

The state law requires that each community college district submit a 10-year construction plan each year, according to Erlene Jones of the information office.

The trustees considered a 2 per cent decline in enrollment in the coming years, but concluded it would hold the College of Marin at 5,000 day students, she said.

Things considered by the board include a theater-lecture hall and physical education field at Indian Valley Colleges, and a corporation yard, pumping station and acquisition of a service station site at the College of Marin.

The updated plan is due to go to the state Oct. 31, Mrs. Jones said.

The Marin Community College Board also:

HIRED — Hired Julia Shepard as a temporary affirmative action officer at $1,200 for six months. The board had turned down hiring her on Sept. 18 by a split vote.

COURSES — Approved adding two new courses to the College of Marin, ethnic studies and community chorus.

WORK — Approved a work-experience program for the next two years as required by the education code.

FUND — Increased the revolving cash fund from $6,000 to $8,000.

EQUIPMENT — Approved replacing $7,736 worth of stolen equipment, taken Sept. 14 or 15, from the communications department at Harlan Center. The college maintains a fund for replacing stolen equipment rather than carrying theft insurance.

TELEPHONE — Authorized advertising for bids for the telephone system at Indian Valley Colleges and allowed 60 days for review by the staff.

RESIDENCY — Approved having the day before the opening of classes as the date of determination of residency for students.

FEES — Approved giving students on financial aid and emeritus students parking permits for $5 instead of $10 per semester and waiving fees for needy students by the dean of students.

TREES — Approved a request by the Kent School District to remove certain chestnut trees on the border of the Kent School and college because the tree roots are causing trouble with the underground pipes.

the commission's action to supervisors, though he was present.)

Neumeier said the commission also sought to have one of its members named to the selection committee for a new superintendent at Juvenile Hall.

Subsequently, he continued, a former commissioner (Rex Silvernale) was appointed.

"The commission received no help whatsoever from the probation department in having its voice heard in this critical matter," Neumeier said. "On the contrary, there is good reason to believe that the chief probation officer strongly opposed commission participation."

He said the commission also was not informed of an architect's study of Juvenile Hall, recommending millions of dollars in changes.

That study "totally ignored" the commission's Juvenile Hall report, the product of a year's investigation, recommending a major portion of the hall be closed and cottages built.

"In spite of a request three weeks in advance by the commission to the department for copies of the architectural study, commissioners did not see the initial report until the same day it went to the board of supervisors," Neumeier wrote. That did not give ample time for study and comment.

He said in February, the commission directed the department to send all commission documents to the press.

"A check with several newspapers in the county indicates that these materials have not been received by the media," he continued.

His last point deals with a training program for probation department employees, proposed last October.

In November, he said, Brewer agreed to consider the proposal with his "education officer" and that a workshop would be scheduled in "six to eight weeks."

"On June 25, again at the request for information on this program the chief probation officer said he had no report from his education officer," Neumeier recounted. "Almost a year later, the commission also has had no report of any action taken on its motion."

He said his concerns, taken singly, may not seem of major significance. "To me, however, the neglect of the Juvenile Hall study, the related architectural study and the superintendent selection process are of tremendous importance to the function of this commission as mandated by state law.

"In the aggregate, these five points convince me that community participation is a hollow gesture under these circumstances," he concluded.

San Rafael Chamber Drops Subsidy Plea

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce board decided unanimously yesterday to drop a request for a $23,000 city subsidy and go it alone as a self-financing organization.

The move — reversing attitudes of many years standing — came as the chamber's board of directors met at the Bank of Marin.

"We just had a change of attitude, that's the truth," said chamber vice president David D. Muir. "We're better off going our own separate financial way."

Muir said that dropping the funding request and ending an $8,000 "contract for services" it received from the city last year will make the chamber a politically stronger organization.

"We want to reorganize our goals to business, rather than this just being a visitors' and convention bureau," he said.

The chamber intends to raise funds by economizing and a membership drive and perhaps even a boost in dues, he said.

Chamber manager Richard Rush, in a written statement, said today that "this decision should be in no way construed as a separation or severance between the goals of the city of San Rafael and the entire business community, nor should this decision become a point of conflict in our mutual abilities to work out problems that relate to the city.

"However, the board does feel that this decision will ultimately strengthen the voice of business in San Rafael and hence will also strengthen the relationship between business and government."

The city has given the chamber $8,000 annually for the past two years, saying the organization is a city information agency. Though the city is limited by charter to spending no more than $1,000 for promotion and advertising, the council has skirted the stipulation by granting allocations "for specific services" on a contractual basis.

The chamber received only $1,000 annually from the city before 1972.

Chambers of commerce or merchants organizations in Tiburon, Larkspur and Fairfax also pay their own way. The Mill Valley chamber receives $4,500 annually from the city council; the Sausalito Artists and Merchants, $2,000, and the San Anselmo Chamber, $3,000.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce receives 25 per cent of the city business tax or $10,000, which is less, each year.

8 Miss Disclosure Filing Deadline

your office and disqualification from holding public office in the future."

Most public officials who filed — including city councilmen, planning commissioners, city managers, planning directors, supervisors and various other county officials — did so in strict accordance with the law, listing merely the broad business entity or business activity which generated income.

San Rafael City Councilmen and a number of Belvedere officials, however, went beyond the law and reported the names of individual clients, although not required to do so.

Belvedere planning commissioners Howard Backen and William M. Lukens filed names of clients because they thought the law required it. The wife of Belvedere Councilman E. Allan Steinau, filing for her husband since he was out of the country, mailed in an exhaustive list of clients.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon filed names of clients generating income of more than $250 who might "materially be affected" by official actions or inaction since the city council last April unanimously voted to proceed with full disclosures before requirements of the law were clear.

The council's full disclosure policy was spearheaded by Nixon and endorsed unanimously after some reluctance from Bettini, who balked at the time involved in listing clients. City Atty. Fred C. Robbins also recommended full disclosure.

The state Supreme Court, however, later ruled that names of individual clients, customers or patients were not required by law.

(The Independent-Journal on Tuesday noted that Bettini has in the past voted on matters affecting his clients, voting in their favor occasionally, against them other times. The mayor has denied any conflict of interest, saying he weighs a matter on its merits regardless of who is appearing before the council.

(The report noted that Nixon, too, voted in favor of a client, when on Nov. 19, 1973 he voted with Lawrence E. Mulryan and John A. Miskimen in favor of a final map for Kenneth M. Levy's "Session Rise" condominium project.

(Nixon, noting that he is accustomed to abstaining on issues affecting clients, said then that the vote was an oversight even though the issue was a routine "formality . . . I didn't think twice about it because it was a formality."

(The I-J learned yesterday that Levy was a contributor to Nixon's 1973 council campaign, as well as a client, and that Nixon had cast a vote favoring Levy's project on a previous occasion.

(Nixon on Sept. 17, 1973, voted with his four council colleagues to approve exempting client Levy's project from planned unit development application procedures required under a city moratorium on conversion of apartments to condominiums.)

Statements filed by county supervisors are indicative of the kind of information made public by most officials in Marin under the anticonflict of interest law.

Following the advice of County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, supervisors listed genral sources of income such as the firms they worked for, but not specific clients.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere listed several real estate investments — including the Robin Hood Land Co. and the Drake's Bay Sales Co. — in addition to his San Rafael real estate office.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. listed income of "more than $1,000" as vice president of Dean Witter's San Francisco office but did not report individual clients.

He reported about 20 securities listed on the New York and American Stock exchanges, however, as well as real estate in Black Point and a second home in Stinson Beach.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, an attorney, listed several San Rafael law firms as sources of income. He reported an investment of "under $10,000 — in Pacific Gas and Electric."

Chairman Michael Wornum, meanwhile, listed about eight income properties in Sausalito, more than $10,000 invested in Bio-Kinetics of San Francisco, a sewage treatment firm, among other things.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste showed no investment and more than $1,000 income from Pacific Maritime Association, which he has since left.

Disclosures by other public officials in Marin included reports by San Anselmo Mayor Martin G. Blinder that he owns stock in a Las Vegas gambling machine manufacturing firm. Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford listed real estate holdings including seven properties on Bridgeway and Second streets, as well as property in Santa Venetia and in Mendocino, San Francisco and Sonoma counties.

About a half dozen persons attended the morning forum in the supervisors chambers of the Marin Civic Center. It was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area and the Public Interest Economic Center.

The first of the three forums, held Tuesday in Berkeley, also drew a tiny audience. The last was held today in Palo Alto.

Also speaking were: Paul N. Brand, a public information officer for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District; John T. Warren, a senior planner with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, and David C. Calkins, chief of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's air and water planning branch in San Francisco.

Brand tackled the Ford Motor Co. for suggesting this week that tougher air pollution controls for cars be shelved for five years. Noting that the company said the five-year delay was needed to control inflation, Brand commented that "last year it was energy, and next year it'll be something else."

Warren, with an eye to the sparse audience, said "people either don't know there is air pollution, or don't care that there is air pollution."

College Plan Discussed, No Action

The Marin Community College District trustees last night discussed but took no action on updating the college 10-year construction plan.

The state law requires that each community college district submit a 10-year construction plan each year, according to Erlene Jones of the information office.

The trustees considered a 2 per cent decline in enrollment in the coming years, but concluded it would hold the College of Marin at 5,000 day students, she said.

Things considered by the board include a theater-lecture hall and physical education field at Indian Valley Colleges, and a corporation yard, pumping station and acquisition of a service station site at the College of Marin.

The updated plan is due to go to the state Oct. 31, Mrs. Jones said.

The Marin Community College Board also:

HIRED — Hired Julia Shepard as a temporary affirmative action officer at $1,200 for six months. The board had turned down hiring her on Sept. 18 by a split vote.

COURSES — Approved adding two new courses to the College of Marin, ethnic studies and community chorus.

WORK — Approved a work-experience program for the next two years as required by the education code.

FUND — Increased the revolving cash fund from $6,000 to $8,000.

EQUIPMENT — Approved replacing $7,736 worth of stolen equipment, taken Sept. 14 or 15, from the communications department at Harlan Center. The college maintains a fund for replacing stolen equipment rather than carrying theft insurance.

TELEPHONE — Authorized advertising for bids for the telephone system at Indian Valley Colleges and allowed 60 days for review by the staff.

RESIDENCY — Approved having the day before the opening of classes as the date of determination of residency for students.

FEES — Approved giving students on financial aid and emeritus students parking permits for $5 instead of $10 per semester and waiving fees for needy students by the dean of students.

TREES — Approved a request by the Kent School District to remove certain chestnut trees on the border of the Kent School and college because the tree roots are causing trouble with the underground pipes.

Neumeier said the commission also sought to have one of its members named to the selection committee for a new superintendent at Juvenile Hall.

Subsequently, he continued, a former commissioner (Rex Silvernale) was appointed.

"The commission received no help whatsoever from the probation department in having its voice heard in this critical matter," Neumeier said. "On the contrary, there is good reason to believe that the chief probation officer strongly opposed commission participation."

He said the commission also was not informed of an architect's study of Juvenile Hall, recommending millions of dollars in changes.

That study "totally ignored" the commission's Juvenile Hall report, the product of a year's investigation, recommending a major portion of the hall be closed and cottages built.

"In spite of a request three weeks in advance by the commission to the department for copies of the architectural study, commissioners did not see the initial report until the same day it went to the board of supervisors," Neumeier wrote. That did not give ample time for study and comment.

He said in February, the commission directed the department to send all commission documents to the press.

"A check with several newspapers in the county indicates that these materials have not been received by the media," he continued.

His last point deals with a training program for probation department employees, proposed last October.

In November, he said, Brewer agreed to consider the proposal with his "education officer" and that a workshop would be scheduled in "six to eight weeks."

"On June 25, again at the request for information on this program the chief probation officer said he had no report from his education officer," Neumeier recounted. "Almost a year later, the commission also has had no report of any action taken on its motion."

He said his concerns, taken singly, may not seem of major significance. "To me, however, the neglect of the Juvenile Hall study, the related architectural study and the superintendent selection process are of tremendous importance to the function of this commission as mandated by state law.

"In the aggregate, these five points convince me that community participation is a hollow gesture under these circumstances," he concluded.

MAKING HAY — THE EASY WAY

"Bigroll Baler," the newest addition to International Harvester's hay equipment line, which will give hay growers advantages in harvesting operation, was unveiled yesterday in Chicago. Simple in design, the baler can make bales five to six feet in diameter, with each bale containing as much hay as 20 to 25 conventional bales. Storage structures are not neded because the big, compact bales shed water and can be stored outside with a minimum loss in quality.

Surprised Commuters Miss Boat

A busload of Marin commuters got a rude surprise yesterday morning when they got to Sausalito to catch the ferry.

It already had pulled away from the dock and was steaming across the bay.

The irate passengers trooped over to the nearby bus stop, and after a few minutes boarded a regular commuter bus to San Francisco.

H. Donald White, bus transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, said the driver of the ferry feeder bus took too long to reach Sausalito from Mill Valley.

Once he missed the connection, he should have telephoned a dispatcher and driven the passengers into San Francisco himself, White said.

The driver was on his second day of work with the district but had completed five weeks of training. By yesterday afternoon, White said, the driver was back in training.

It was the first time the bus missed the ferry, White said.

Missing Ring Is Found In Throat

HALIFAX, England (UPI) — Dentist Nasser Salari found more than teeth when 12-year-old Beverley Warburton opened her mouthwide for an extraction at Halifax General Hospital.

There was a gold ring lodged in Beverley's throat — lost since shortly after the girl's grandmother gave it to her as a gift 11 years ago.

Petaluma Planners Back Development

A 250-unit planned residential development has been approved by the Petaluma Planning Commission for a 45-acre parcel in the city's southeast corner.

Casa De Arroyo, a development firm from the San Jose area, told the commission Tuesday that plans called for a mixture of single-family homes, duplexes and "cluster" dwellings on the site.

The commission granted the company's request for planned unit zoning for the land, which is now zoned for agricultural use and single-family developments.

Commissioners Mervin Watters and Fred V. Mattei voted against the zoning recommendation, citing their disapproval of the developer's plans to extend South McDowell Boulevard through the property and connect it with Lakeville Highway.

Mattei said he was unsure the extension was necessary.

The commission's recommendation for rezoning will go before the city council at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

SIGN — Instructed staff to work out a compromise between the Rev. Carl Young of the Free Will Baptist Church, 200 Ely Boulevard South, and neighbors who oppose his plans for a 16-foot high illuminated sign bearing scriptural quotations.

OFFICERS — Elected M. Patricia Hilligoss chairman for the next year and John Balshaw, vice chairman.

Onassis Won't Pose In Nude

LONDON (UPI) — Toni Holt of Playgirl magazine said she offered Aristotle Onassis a chance to be a nude centerfold, but Onassis turned it down.

"I wanted to picture Mr. Onassis naked sitting on top of thousands of dollar bills," she said.

Miss Holt, who roams the world looking at naked men as possible pin-ups for the woman's magazine, said her idea of a really magnetically handsome and sexy man is Aristotle Onassis, millionaire shipowner and husband of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

A busload of Marin commuters got a rude surprise yesterday morning when they got to Sausalito to catch the ferry.

It already had pulled away from the dock and was steaming across the bay.

The irate passengers trooped over to the nearby bus stop, and after a few minutes boarded a regular commuter bus to San Francisco.

H. Donald White, bus transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, said the driver of the ferry feeder bus took too long to reach Sausalito from Mill Valley.

Once he missed the connection, he should have telephoned a dispatcher and driven the passengers into San Francisco himself, White said.

The driver was on his second day of work with the district but had completed five weeks of training. By yesterday afternoon, White said, the driver was back in training.

It was the first time the bus missed the ferry, White said.

Missing Ring Is Found In Throat

HALIFAX, England (UPI) — Dentist Nasser Salari found more than teeth when 12-year-old Beverley Warburton opened her mouthwide for an extraction at Halifax General Hospital.

There was a gold ring lodged in Beverley's throat — lost since shortly after the girl's grandmother gave it to her as a gift 11 years ago.

Petaluma Planners Back Development

A 250-unit planned residential development has been approved by the Petaluma Planning Commission for a 45-acre parcel in the city's southeast corner.

Casa De Arroyo, a development firm from the San Jose area, told the commission Tuesday that plans called for a mixture of single-family homes, duplexes and "cluster" dwellings on the site.

The commission granted the company's request for planned unit zoning for the land, which is now zoned for agricultural use and single-family developments.

Commissioners Mervin Watters and Fred V. Mattei voted against the zoning recommendation, citing their disapproval of the developer's plans to extend South McDowell Boulevard through the property and connect it with Lakeville Highway.

Mattei said he was unsure the extension was necessary.

The commission's recommendation for rezoning will go before the city council at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

SIGN — Instructed staff to work out a compromise between the Rev. Carl Young of the Free Will Baptist Church, 200 Ely Boulevard South, and neighbors who oppose his plans for a 16-foot high illuminated sign bearing scriptural quotations.

OFFICERS — Elected M. Patricia Hilligoss chairman for the next year and John Balshaw, vice chairman.

Onassis Won't Pose In Nude

LONDON (UPI) — Toni Holt of Playgirl magazine said she offered Aristotle Onassis a chance to be a nude centerfold, but Onassis turned it down.

"I wanted to picture Mr. Onassis naked sitting on top of thousands of dollar bills," she said.

Miss Holt, who roams the world looking at naked men as possible pin-ups for the woman's magazine, said her idea of a really magnetically handsome and sexy man is Aristotle Onassis, millionaire shipowner and husband of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

MAKING HAY — THE EASY WAY

"Bigroll Baler," the newest addition to International Harvester's hay equipment line, which will give hay growers advantages in harvesting operation, was unveiled yesterday in Chicago. Simple in design, the baler can make bales five to six feet in diameter, with each bale containing as much hay as 20 to 25 conventional bales. Storage structures are not neded because the big, compact bales shed water and can be stored outside with a minimum loss in quality.

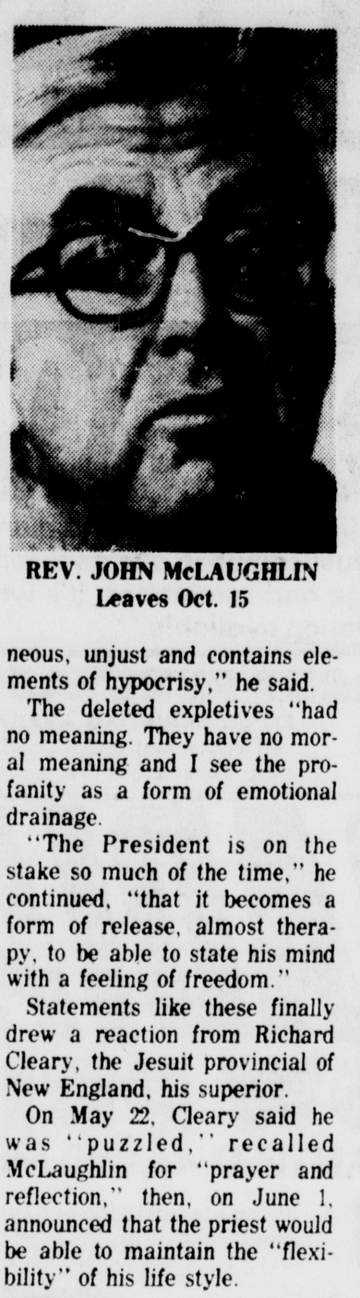
Rev. McLaughlin Will Step Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin is leaving the White House staff.

His resignation letter, dated yesterday and effective Oct. 15, told President Ford:

"I also take particular satisfaction in my work for your predecessor — whose achievements for the nation and the world will live on in history — at the time when he was facing personal adversity and when the effects of that strain were being felt by the nation."



REV. JOHN McLAUGHLIN
Leaves Oct. 15

He, like all in his order, vowed "perpetual poverty." Yet he has an apartment in the Watergate apartment building and, as a White House speech writer, earned around $32,000 a year. He has declined to say what he does with the money.

He ran for the Senate from Rhode Island in 1970 in Roman collar and black suit, but when he came to the White House after his defeat by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I. he began wearing well-tailored, "tasteful" laymen's garb.

McLaughlin, who plans a news conference tomorrow, was an outspoken and colorful member of the White House staff for three years and three months. He served both as a speech writer and speech maker.

"Power as an experience is as intense as sex," McLaughlin once told the Washington Post. "Power is more pervasive and unremitting."

Tall and husky, McLaughlin defended the former President in a booming voice. In a May 8 meeting with reporters, he said he wanted to explain the language on Nixon's Watergate tapes.

"The conclusion that they are amoral or immoral is erroneous, unjust and contains elements of hypocrisy," he said.

The deleted expletives "had no meaning. They have no moral meaning and I see the profanity as a form of emotional drainage.

"The President is on the stake so much of the time," he continued, "that it becomes a form of release, almost therapy, to be able to state his mind with a feeling of freedom."

Statements like these finally drew a reaction from Richard Cleary, the Jesuit provincial of New England, his superior.

On May 22, Cleary said he was "puzzled," recalled McLaughlin for "prayer and reflection," then, on June 1, announced that the priest would be able to maintain the "flexibility" of his life style.

When Nixon resigned and President Ford took over, McLaughlin became a subject of interest once again.

Former spokesman J. F. terHorst said he had discovered McLaughlin was on the payroll of the White House Press Office and, "I have no place for him."

"You may think my days are numbered," McLaughlin told an inquiring reporter, but he stayed longer than terHorst, who resigned about a month after Ford took office.

The Wet American

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average American uses 60 gallons of water each day for drinking, bathing and cleansing — or roughly 300 gallons for an average family, water expects at Ecdoyne Corp. say.

Senate CIA Committee Expanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's oversight subcommittee on the Central Intelligence Agency will be expanded to include Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott, it was announced today.

The announcement by Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the CIA subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, came after a bid was made yesterday by Senate liberals to restrict the activities of the CIA abroad.

The Senate accepted an amendment to the foreign aid authorization bill, before it was sent back to committee, that would have banned the agency's covert operations in foreign countries, unless the President declared them to be in the interest of national security.

Stennis resisted efforts to curb CIA activities on the floor of the Senate without full hearings on the agency's activities and proposed legislation to place stronger reins over its operations.

Stennis said that Mansfield and Scott have agreed to "sit with and participate in the activities" of the panel.

"In my view," Stennis said in a statement, "it is highly fitting that the Senate leaders should participate in the work of this subcommittee. In a broad sense they will represent the entire Senate membership in these important matters."

Mill Valley Units To Study Parking

The Mill Valley Planning Commission and Architectural Advisory Commission will meet today at 8 p.m. to discuss five methods for changing parking and landscaping around the old downtown Mill Valley bus depot.

All plans drawn up by architect Ralph Alexander hinge on enlarging the depot's pedestrian plaza, increasing landscaping and changing traffic circulation around the depot, according to Robert J. Hanna, associate planner.

Kissinger Working To Set Up Future International Oil Talks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who saw galloping inflation and political turmoil ravage Germany in the 1930s, fears the world's current economic problems could undermine Western democratic governments.

The secretary of state has been telling visiting foreign ministers of his worries and trying to lay the groundwork for future talks between oil states and industrialized Western nations.

The aim of such negotiations would be to ease world financial pressures, lower the quadrupled price of oil and reinforce the stability of Western democracies.

"The world's financial institutions are staggering under the most massive rapid movements in history," Kissinger warned the United Nations General Assembly in a major foreign policy speech Sept. 23.

He went on to tell the 29th annual assembly session that "profound questions have arisen about meeting man's most fundamental needs for energy and food."

Kissinger isn't seeking a "quick fix" to the world's economic woes, but rather a carefully developed, long-range approach.

While he has talked in New York with top diplomats of such oil-producing countries as Saudi Arabia and Algeria, he has carefully avoided appealing directly for an immediate cut in the price of oil.

Rather, he has sought to emphasize to oil producers that the Western countries do not seek a major economic confrontation, but reasonable negotiations to ease the world financial ccrisis.

Kissinger's views were relayed by reliable diplomatic sources as the secretary of state prepared to return to Washington this afternoon.

During his hectic round of talks, Kissinger has also:

Sought to define the next stage in a major new Middle East peace offensive, which may be launched after he tours Cairo, Damascus, Amman and Jerusalem beginning Oct. 9.

Assured Latin American foreign ministers that the United States has an "open mind" in discussing political relationships in the Western hemisphere — an apparent reference to the growing desire of Latin countries to normalize relations with Cuba.

Hosted Ambassador Huang Hua, Chinese representative to the United Nations, and found U.S.-Chinese relations to be in good shape despite the unsolved problem of Taiwan.

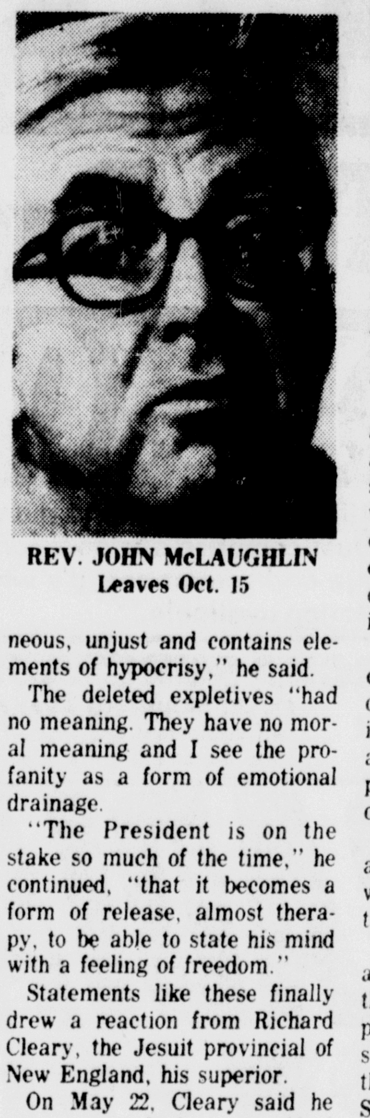
Rev. McLaughlin Will Step Down



REV. JOHN McLAUGHLIN
Leaves Oct. 15

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin is leaving the White House staff.

His resignation letter, dated yesterday and effective Oct. 15, told President Ford:

"I also take particular satisfaction in my work for your predecessor — whose achievements for the nation and the world will live on in history — at the time when he was facing personal adversity and when the effects of that strain were being felt by the nation."

He, like all in his order, vowed "perpetual poverty." Yet he has an apartment in the Watergate apartment building and, as a White House speech writer, earned around $32,000 a year. He has declined to say what he does with the money.

He ran for the Senate from Rhode Island in 1970 in Roman collar and black suit, but when he came to the White House after his defeat by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I. he began wearing well-tailored, "tasteful" laymen's garb.

McLaughlin, who plans a news conference tomorrow, was an outspoken and colorful member of the White House staff for three years and three months. He served both as a speech writer and speech maker.

"Power as an experience is as intense as sex," McLaughlin once told the Washington Post. "Power is more pervasive and unremitting."

Tall and husky, McLaughlin defended the former President in a booming voice. In a May 8 meeting with reporters, he said he wanted to explain the language on Nixon's Watergate tapes.

"The conclusion that they are amoral or immoral is erroneous, unjust and contains elements of hypocrisy," he said.

The deleted expletives "had no meaning. They have no moral meaning and I see the profanity as a form of emotional drainage.

"The President is on the stake so much of the time," he continued, "that it becomes a form of release, almost therapy, to be able to state his mind with a feeling of freedom."

On May 22, Cleary said he was "puzzled," recalled McLaughlin for "prayer and reflection," then, on June 1, announced that the priest would be able to maintain the "flexibility" of his life style.

When Nixon resigned and President Ford took over, McLaughlin became a subject of interest once again.

Former spokesman J. F. terHorst said he had discovered McLaughlin was on the payroll of the White House Press Office and, "I have no place for him."

"You may think my days are numbered," McLaughlin told an inquiring reporter, but he stayed longer than terHorst, who resigned about a month after Ford took office.

The Wet American

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average American uses 60 gallons of water each day for drinking, bathing and cleansing — or roughly 300 gallons for an average family, water expects at Ecdoyne Corp. say.

Senate CIA Committee Expanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's oversight subcommittee on the Central Intelligence Agency will be expanded to include Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott, it was announced today.

The announcement by Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the CIA subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, came after a bid was made yesterday by Senate liberals to restrict the activities of the CIA abroad.

The Senate accepted an amendment to the foreign aid authorization bill, before it was sent back to committee, that would have banned the agency's covert operations in foreign countries, unless the President declared them to be in the interest of national security.

Stennis resisted efforts to curb CIA activities on the floor of the Senate without full hearings on the agency's activities and proposed legislation to place stronger reins over its operations.

Stennis said that Mansfield and Scott have agreed to "sit with and participate in the activities" of the panel.

"In my view," Stennis said in a statement, "it is highly fitting that the Senate leaders should participate in the work of this subcommittee. In a broad sense they will represent the entire Senate membership in these important matters."

Mill Valley Units To Study Parking

The Mill Valley Planning Commission and Architectural Advisory Commission will meet today at 8 p.m. to discuss five methods for changing parking and landscaping around the old downtown Mill Valley bus depot.

All plans drawn up by architect Ralph Alexander hinge on enlarging the depot's pedestrian plaza, increasing landscaping and changing traffic circulation around the depot, according to Robert J. Hanna, associate planner.

Kissinger Working To Set Up Future International Oil Talks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who saw galloping inflation and political turmoil ravage Germany in the 1930s, fears the world's current economic problems could undermine Western democratic governments.

The secretary of state has been telling visiting foreign ministers of his worries and trying to lay the groundwork for future talks between oil states and industrialized Western nations.

The aim of such negotiations would be to ease world financial pressures, lower the quadrupled price of oil and reinforce the stability of Western democracies.

"The world's financial institutions are staggering under the most massive rapid movements in history," Kissinger warned the United Nations General Assembly in a major foreign policy speech Sept. 23.

He went on to tell the 29th annual assembly session that "profound questions have arisen about meeting man's most fundamental needs for energy and food."

Kissinger isn't seeking a "quick fix" to the world's economic woes, but rather a carefully developed, long-range approach.

While he has talked in New York with top diplomats of such oil-producing countries as Saudi Arabia and Algeria, he has carefully avoided appealing directly for an immediate cut in the price of oil.

Rather, he has sought to emphasize to oil producers that the Western countries do not seek a major economic confrontation, but reasonable negotiations to ease the world financial ccrisis.

Kissinger's views were relayed by reliable diplomatic sources as the secretary of state prepared to return to Washington this afternoon.

During his hectic round of talks, Kissinger has also:

Sought to define the next stage in a major new Middle East peace offensive, which may be launched after he tours Cairo, Damascus, Amman and Jerusalem beginning Oct. 9.

Assured Latin American foreign ministers that the United States has an "open mind" in discussing political relationships in the Western hemisphere — an apparent reference to the growing desire of Latin countries to normalize relations with Cuba.

Hosted Ambassador Huang Hua, Chinese representative to the United Nations, and found U.S.-Chinese relations to be in good shape despite the unsolved problem of Taiwan.

LAUNDRY SIEGE

Fugitive Helmut Pflug, 31, holds a gun to the head of a terrified Margarethe Schaefer while brandishing a knife in his other hand. He held the woman hostage for three hours in a Vienna laundry today, demanding a ransom of $1,600. Police finally overpowered Pflug and released the woman unharmed. Pflug had been sought for questioning in connection with an attempted rape yesterday.

Wider View Sought On Merging Districts

A special committee studying possible consolidation of water and sanitary districts in Marin last night agreed that its activities should be broadened to include review of long-range sewage collection and treatment plans.

The 22-member committee, appointed by the Local Agency Formation Commission to study creation of a countywide municipal utilities district, voted unanimously to ask its parent commission to expand its charge.

The decision came on the recommendation of Charles A. Joseph, general manager of the Novato Sanitary District. He argued that it would be better to decide what sewage and water facilities will be needed in the future before determining the kind of governmental agency needed to finance and build them.

Joseph, not a member of the special committee, said another group known as the Wastewater Planning Coordinating Committee has already contracted for a new "facilities study," which is due early next year.

He urged the committee to drop its probe into possible consolidation, for the time being, and join with the wastewater committee in reviewing various sewage collection and treatment proposals in the upcoming report.

The Novato official prefaced his remarks with a brief history sewage seweage planning, saying past studies, in effect, were made obsolete before their completion by ever changing state and federal wastewater disposal requirements.

Joseph estimated it will take at least nine months for the sewage treatment study — which is actually an updating of past studies — to be completed, reviewed and given public hearings.

Following that, he said, the special committee will be in a better position to discuss the kind of governmental structure best suited to carry out an agreed-upon treatment plan.

That plan is expected to outline where best to locate treatment plants and disposal sites in Marin and Sonoma counties, as well as various collections systems and financing schemes, Joseph said.

The special committee, made up of both citizens and officials from Marin's 20 or so water and sanitary districts, agreed to join with the wastewater committee if the local agency formation commission approved.

That action, while appearing to sidetrack the special committee's main charge studying formation of a municipal utilities district, was labeled a step forward by some committee members.

They said that during last month's meeting, representatives of the various sewage agencies nearly voted to disband the committee over fears of being railroaded into a consolidated agency.

"At least we will still be meeting and talking," one member told the Independent-Journal after last night's session.

The next meeting of the committee is slated for Nov. 13 at the Civic Center and will include discussion with an official of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District on operation of that agency.

Cotati Man Held In Jail

Bert L. Leslie, 20, of 910 Rockwell Court, Cotati, was arrested yesterday by Cotati police on suspicion of possession of stolen property and forgery.

He was held in Sonoma County jail in lieu of $3,000 bail to appear today in Sonoma County Municipal Court.

Economist Calls For Tax On Rich

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Leon Keyserling, former President Truman's head economic adviser, says the government could help stop a recession by increasing income taxes to persons in the top financial brackets — such as himself.

Keyserling told a symposium yesterday at California State University, Long Beach, that taxes should be increased for those in his own bracket and decreased for middle and low income tax families.

"They're telling us that there's nothing much that anybody can do about (it) recession," Keyserling said.

"Well, for heaven's sake we're a great nation and a great people and we've had much more difficult economic situations."

Sausalito Seeks To Lift Reconstruction Barrier

Sausalito planning commissioners last night asked planning staff to develop zoning amendments that would eliminate penalties against owners of structures that do not conform with zoning throughout the city.

The change would permit nonconforming buildings to be rebuilt should they be more than 50 per cent destroyed by fire or other causes.

It would apply in all zones in the city, and permit, for example, the Trident-Ondine Restaurant on the city waterfront to be reconstructed should it be razed by fire. The owner of the restaurant building has long sought a variance that would permit the structure to be rebuilt.

The prohibition against rebuilding recently drew fire from a large contingent of residents of a neighborhood north of the south ridgeland. They protested a proposed zoning change that would make their homes nonconforming and prevent them from being rebuilt. They also claimed property values would plummet.

Discussion on the matter was continued to Nov. 7, according to Planning Director Herb Case.

Wider View Sought On Merging Districts

A special committee studying possible consolidation of water and sanitary districts in Marin last night agreed that its activities should be broadened to include review of long-range sewage collection and treatment plans.

The 22-member committee, appointed by the Local Agency Formation Commission to study creation of a countywide municipal utilities district, voted unanimously to ask its parent commission to expand its charge.

The decision came on the recommendation of Charles A. Joseph, general manager of the Novato Sanitary District. He argued that it would be better to decide what sewage and water facilities will be needed in the future before determining the kind of governmental agency needed to finance and build them.

Joseph, not a member of the special committee, said another group known as the Wastewater Planning Coordinating Committee has already contracted for a new "facilities study," which is due early next year.

He urged the committee to drop its probe into possible consolidation, for the time being, and join with the wastewater committee in reviewing various sewage collection and treatment proposals in the upcoming report.

The Novato official prefaced his remarks with a brief history sewage seweage planning, saying past studies, in effect, were made obsolete before their completion by ever changing state and federal wastewater disposal requirements.

Joseph estimated it will take at least nine months for the sewage treatment study — which is actually an updating of past studies — to be completed, reviewed and given public hearings.

Following that, he said, the special committee will be in a better position to discuss the kind of governmental structure best suited to carry out an agreed-upon treatment plan.

That plan is expected to outline where best to locate treatment plants and disposal sites in Marin and Sonoma counties, as well as various collections systems and financing schemes, Joseph said.

The special committee, made up of both citizens and officials from Marin's 20 or so water and sanitary districts, agreed to join with the wastewater committee if the local agency formation commission approved.

That action, while appearing to sidetrack the special committee's main charge studying formation of a municipal utilities district, was labeled a step forward by some committee members.

They said that during last month's meeting, representatives of the various sewage agencies nearly voted to disband the committee over fears of being railroaded into a consolidated agency.

"At least we will still be meeting and talking," one member told the Independent-Journal after last night's session.

The next meeting of the committee is slated for Nov. 13 at the Civic Center and will include discussion with an official of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District on operation of that agency.

Economist Calls For Tax On Rich

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Leon Keyserling, former President Truman's head economic adviser, says the government could help stop a recession by increasing income taxes to persons in the top financial brackets — such as himself.

Keyserling told a symposium yesterday at California State University, Long Beach, that taxes should be increased for those in his own bracket and decreased for middle and low income tax families.

"They're telling us that there's nothing much that anybody can do about (it) recession," Keyserling said.

"Well, for heaven's sake we're a great nation and a great people and we've had much more difficult economic situations."

Sausalito Seeks To Lift Reconstruction Barrier

Sausalito planning commissioners last night asked planning staff to develop zoning amendments that would eliminate penalties against owners of structures that do not conform with zoning throughout the city.

The change would permit nonconforming buildings to be rebuilt should they be more than 50 per cent destroyed by fire or other causes.

It would apply in all zones in the city, and permit, for example, the Trident-Ondine Restaurant on the city waterfront to be reconstructed should it be razed by fire. The owner of the restaurant building has long sought a variance that would permit the structure to be rebuilt.

The prohibition against rebuilding recently drew fire from a large contingent of residents of a neighborhood north of the south ridgeland. They protested a proposed zoning change that would make their homes nonconforming and prevent them from being rebuilt. They also claimed property values would plummet.

Discussion on the matter was continued to Nov. 7, according to Planning Director Herb Case.

Old Persons Viewed As 'Rotting'—Poll

DETROIT (UPI) — The average citizen thinks of senior citizens as "old people rotting away in poor health," according to a nationwide Harris poll released in Detroit.

Pollster Louis Harris announced yesterday the results of what he called the most definitive study ever conducted of people over 65 at a national convention of the council on Aging.

"To put it bluntly," he said, "the portrait of mature citizens drawn by those who have not yet reached maturity is that of unalert, physically inert, narrow minded, ineffective, sexually finished old people rotting away in poor health, without proper medical care and without enough money to live on."

Even sadder, he said, is that older persons view their own age group essentially the same, although those polled did not believe they personally fit the image.

Harris blamed the attitudes on enforced stereotypes about older people as well as pity and lack of respect shown towards the elderly by younger persons.

"But the key fact is that people 65 and over are very much alive and well," he said. "They are decidedly not prepared to view themselves as individuals who are rotting away."

A total of 4,254 adults, including 2,797 old persons, was interviewed last spring by the Harris firm for the Commission on Aging.

Some 61 per cent of the younger persons surveyed believed the elderly suffered from loneliness, but only 12 per cent of the elderly said they did. And while 68 per cent of older persons considered themsleves bright and alert, only 29 per cent of the younger sample believed the elderly were alert, Harris said.

"It is not hard to predict that we shall see a wave of militancy among senior citizens as their numbers rise," Harris said.

Binding Arbitration Upheld In City, County Disputes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Supreme Court has upheld binding arbitration agreements in labor disputes involving city and county employees.

The unanimous opinion yesterday concerned a suit brought by the Vallejo Fire Department and permits outside experts to settle wage and working conditions.

Specifically, the justices ordered the city to turn over unresolved issues with the AFL-CIO Vallejo Firefighters Union to an arbitrator.

Attorney Richard Whitemore, who represented a dozen cities that joined Vallejo in the case, protested the justices had "set up taxation without representation."

He said, "You're going to have somebody spending the (government's) money who is not responsible to the public that the money is collected from."

Binding arbitration is included in Vallejo's 1970 city charter.

Reagan's Pile Of Vetoes Withstands Last Assault

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — They huffed and they puffed, but Gov. Ronald Reagan's final heap of vetoes still stands.

Two days of concentrated, and even sometimes bipartisan, efforts in the legislature to override Reagan collapsed yesterday when the absentee-ridden Senate turned up one vote short.

Left intact after adjournment were all of the Republican governor's record 198 "cut, squeeze and trim" vetoes this year, including measures to provide millions of dollars in inflation relief to schools and the elderly.

Four overrides were rejected in the Senate; five in the Assembly, which was a turnabout from the previous day when a bipartisan majority of assemblymen voted in quick order to reverse nine Reagan vetoes.

In the scramble for votes, angry senators called for a search and the arrest of colleagues who were not in attendance. A few were vacationing, one as far away as Greece.

"What are the sergeants-at-arms doing to find these members?" demanded veteran Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach.

"I'm sure they're doing everything they can," replied the presiding officer, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose.

"I'd be glad to take a subpoena to Greece," volunteered Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, referring to vacationing Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland.

The effort netted a single senator--Democrat Alan Robbins of Van Nuys, who was 200 feet down the hall in the Assembly chamber.

Seven of 39 senators were absent. Perhaps a dozen more attended only part of the daylong proceedings.

There also were partisan overtones. The search was initiated by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and aimed partly at his GOP election opponent, Sen. John L. Harmer, who was campaigning and not officially excused from the Senate.

Dymally sought to force Harmer to fly from Southern California to cast a vote on an override, but the Senate adjourned only minutes later.

Here is a rundown on yesterday's override attempts:

Schools. Appropriates $74 million to help schools meet risking costs. Defeated in the Senate 25-6, short of the 27 votes needed. SB1592-Dills, D-Gardena.

Elderly. Reduces property taxes $60 million a year for the elderly. Defeated in the Senate 26-6. AB417-Wilson, D-La Mesa.

Contracts. Provides for payment to public work's contractors when subcontractor work in dispute. Defeated in the Senate 19-12. AB3330-Powers, D-Sacramento.

Mobile. Grants owners of mobile homes new rights in dealing with trailer park landlords. Defeated in Senate 15-10. AB4336-Keene, D-Eureka.

Choke. Requires restaurants to have available "choke saver" devices for patrons. Defeated in Assembly 42-5, short of the 54 votes needed. AB2696-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Prison. Provides for state reimbursement of trial costs in cases where inmates escape from state prisons. Defeated in Assembly 20-6. AB2573-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Television. Establishes a public telecommunications council. Defeated in Assembly 20-8. AB493-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Ambulance. Allows some counties state reimbursement for ambulance service provided indigents. Defeated in Assembly 31-22. AB218-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Aged. Prohibited inspection fees on federally-subsidized housing for the elderly to cut rents. Defeated in Assembly 33-22. AB4186-Kapiloff, D-San Diego.

Knott's Berry Farm To Grow

BUENA PARK (UPI) — A multi-million dollar expansion project is being planned for Knott's Berry Farm, it was announced Tuesday.

According to Marion Knott Anderson, daughter of the Farm's founder, Walter Knott, the expansion will contain rides, a town plaza and other structures reminiscent of the 1920s.

The project, which will replace a "gypsy camp" on a five-acre site, will be the most expensive in the 54-year-history of the tourist attraction.

Seven of 39 senators were absent. Perhaps a dozen more attended only part of the daylong proceedings.

There also were partisan overtones. The search was initiated by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and aimed partly at his GOP election opponent, Sen. John L. Harmer, who was campaigning and not officially excused from the Senate.

Dymally sought to force Harmer to fly from Southern California to cast a vote on an override, but the Senate adjourned only minutes later.

Here is a rundown on yesterday's override attempts:

Schools. Appropriates $74 million to help schools meet risking costs. Defeated in the Senate 25-6, short of the 27 votes needed. SB1592-Dills, D-Gardena.

Elderly. Reduces property taxes $60 million a year for the elderly. Defeated in the Senate 26-6. AB417-Wilson, D-La Mesa.

Contracts. Provides for payment to public work's contractors when subcontractor work in dispute. Defeated in the Senate 19-12. AB3330-Powers, D-Sacramento.

Mobile. Grants owners of mobile homes new rights in dealing with trailer park landlords. Defeated in Senate 15-10. AB4336-Keene, D-Eureka.

Choke. Requires restaurants to have available "choke saver" devices for patrons. Defeated in Assembly 42-5, short of the 54 votes needed. AB2696-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Prison. Provides for state reimbursement of trial costs in cases where inmates escape from state prisons. Defeated in Assembly 20-6. AB2573-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Television. Establishes a public telecommunications council. Defeated in Assembly 20-8. AB493-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Ambulance. Allows some counties state reimbursement for ambulance service provided indigents. Defeated in Assembly 31-22. AB218-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

Aged. Prohibited inspection fees on federally-subsidized housing for the elderly to cut rents. Defeated in Assembly 33-22. AB4186-Kapiloff, D-San Diego.

Knott's Berry Farm To Grow

BUENA PARK (UPI) — A multi-million dollar expansion project is being planned for Knott's Berry Farm, it was announced Tuesday.

According to Marion Knott Anderson, daughter of the Farm's founder, Walter Knott, the expansion will contain rides, a town plaza and other structures reminiscent of the 1920s.

The project, which will replace a "gypsy camp" on a five-acre site, will be the most expensive in the 54-year-history of the tourist attraction.

Old Persons Viewed As 'Rotting'—Poll

DETROIT (UPI) — The average citizen thinks of senior citizens as "old people rotting away in poor health," according to a nationwide Harris poll released in Detroit.

Pollster Louis Harris announced yesterday the results of what he called the most definitive study ever conducted of people over 65 at a national convention of the council on Aging.

"To put it bluntly," he said, "the portrait of mature citizens drawn by those who have not yet reached maturity is that of unalert, physically inert, narrow minded, ineffective, sexually finished old people rotting away in poor health, without proper medical care and without enough money to live on."

Even sadder, he said, is that older persons view their own age group essentially the same, although those polled did not believe they personally fit the image.

Harris blamed the attitudes on enforced stereotypes about older people as well as pity and lack of respect shown towards the elderly by younger persons.

"But the key fact is that people 65 and over are very much alive and well," he said. "They are decidedly not prepared to view themselves as individuals who are rotting away."

A total of 4,254 adults, including 2,797 old persons, was interviewed last spring by the Harris firm for the Commission on Aging.

Some 61 per cent of the younger persons surveyed believed the elderly suffered from loneliness, but only 12 per cent of the elderly said they did. And while 68 per cent of older persons considered themsleves bright and alert, only 29 per cent of the younger sample believed the elderly were alert, Harris said.

"It is not hard to predict that we shall see a wave of militancy among senior citizens as their numbers rise," Harris said.

Binding Arbitration Upheld In City, County Disputes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Supreme Court has upheld binding arbitration agreements in labor disputes involving city and county employees.

The unanimous opinion yesterday concerned a suit brought by the Vallejo Fire Department and permits outside experts to settle wage and working conditions.

Specifically, the justices ordered the city to turn over unresolved issues with the AFL-CIO Vallejo Firefighters Union to an arbitrator.

Attorney Richard Whitemore, who represented a dozen cities that joined Vallejo in the case, protested the justices had "set up taxation without representation."

He said, "You're going to have somebody spending the (government's) money who is not responsible to the public that the money is collected from."

Binding arbitration is included in Vallejo's 1970 city charter.

Reagan's Pile Of Vetoes Withstands Last Assault

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — They huffed and they puffed, but Gov. Ronald Reagan's final heap of vetoes still stands.

Two days of concentrated, and even sometimes bipartisan, efforts in the legislature to override Reagan collapsed yesterday when the absentee-ridden Senate turned up one vote short.

Left intact after adjournment were all of the Republican governor's record 198 "cut, squeeze and trim" vetoes this year, including measures to provide millions of dollars in inflation relief to schools and the elderly.

Four overrides were rejected in the Senate; five in the Assembly, which was a turnabout from the previous day when a bipartisan majority of assemblymen voted in quick order to reverse nine Reagan vetoes.

In the scramble for votes, angry senators called for a search and the arrest of colleagues who were not in attendance. A few were vacationing, one as far away as Greece.

"What are the sergeants-at-arms doing to find these members?" demanded veteran Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach.

"I'm sure they're doing everything they can," replied the presiding officer, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose.

"I'd be glad to take a subpoena to Greece," volunteered Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, referring to vacationing Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland.

The effort netted a single senator--Democrat Alan Robbins of Van Nuys, who was 200 feet down the hall in the Assembly chamber.

Seven of 39 senators were absent. Perhaps a dozen more attended only part of the daylong proceedings.

There also were partisan overtones. The search was initiated by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and aimed partly at his GOP election opponent, Sen. John L. Harmer, who was campaigning and not officially excused from the Senate.

Manson Prosecutor Wins A Dismissal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A perjury charge against Manson trial prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi was dismissed in Superior Court today largely as a result of newsman William Farr's refusal to testify about sources of a story he wrote during the "family" murder trial.

Special prosecutor Theodore Shield told the court that Farr's refusal to reveal the source of the story made it inadvisable for the state to attempt to continue the case against Bugliosi, who ran unsuccessfully for the office of attorney general and district attorney.

Shield made a motion to dismiss the perjury charge and Judge Earl C. Broady immediately granted the motion.

Bugliosi was charged with lying under oath when he said he did not furnish a transcript which was the basis of a story Farr worte in 1970 about alleged plans of the Manson family to murder other celebrities after the Tate-LaBianca slayings.

Farr had said before Superior Court Judge Charles Older who presided at the Manson trial, that the transcripts came from two of the attorneys in the case. When he refused to identify them further, Older sentenced him for contempt and he served 46 days in jail before he was released on the order of U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

In moving for dismissal of the case, Shield was highly critical of Farr's refusal to answer questions about the source of his material.

"I don't criticize his motives and I am sure that in his mind they are proper. But his action in refusing to testify in this case has dealt a fatal blow to prosecution," Shield said.

"Not only has it thwarted the prosecution but it has prevented the defendant (Bugliosi) from having established his innocence in court. It also has perpetuated a cloud over other persons involved in the case."

Daye Shinn, a defense attorney at the Manson trial, had been indicted along with Bugliosi on the perjury charge when he also denied he was the source of the Farr story.

Shinn's trial was separated from that of Bugliosi.

Eyeless Girl Named National Poster Child

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Jamie Weaver, a 9-year-old girl born without eyes due to a rare birth defect known as congenital anopthalmos, is the 1975 March of Dimes National Poster Child.

In that role, she will travel throughout the country on behalf of the March of Dimes program, and will publicize the problem of birth defects.

Because of her defect, Jamie has worn artificial eyes since the age of two.

But she attends public school, sings in a church choir and takes horseback riding, swimmind and skiing lessons.

Teachers Agree To Settlement

Mill Valley teachers have accepted a wage settlement package for this year with the school district which will give them an 8.2 per cent cost of living increase.

Supt. Peter Palches said the increase given to 155 teachers also is being proposed for the district's 50 maintenance and clerical employees and that the total cost of this wage boost annually will be $260,000.

The increase is what teachers asked earlier this year.

The district board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the Middle School to authorize the settlement.

Congress Softens Stand On Aid To Turkey, Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House-Senate conference committee voted today to remove a ban on U.S. military aid to Turkey and Chile from legislation needed to keep the foreign aid program alive.

Instead, conferees substituted milder language that would allow arms aid to continue to Turkey if President Ford certifies to Congress that country is making "good faith efforts to achieve a negotiated settlement in Cyprus."

The conference approved the "continuing resolution" after removing the amendment by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., concerning Turkey.

Ford said he would veto the measure because it threatened to "destroy any hope" for U.S. success in settling the Greek-Turkish conflict.

Ford earlier indicated he could accept the "good faith" language, which was added to the bill by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass.

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Jamie Weaver, a 9-year-old girl born without eyes due to a rare birth defect known as congenital anopthalmos, is the 1975 March of Dimes National Poster Child.

In that role, she will travel throughout the country on behalf of the March of Dimes program, and will publicize the problem of birth defects.

Because of her defect, Jamie has worn artificial eyes since the age of two.

But she attends public school, sings in a church choir and takes horseback riding, swimmind and skiing lessons.

Teachers Agree To Settlement

Mill Valley teachers have accepted a wage settlement package for this year with the school district which will give them an 8.2 per cent cost of living increase.

Supt. Peter Palches said the increase given to 155 teachers also is being proposed for the district's 50 maintenance and clerical employees and that the total cost of this wage boost annually will be $260,000.

The increase is what teachers asked earlier this year.

The district board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the Middle School to authorize the settlement.

Congress Softens Stand On Aid To Turkey, Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House-Senate conference committee voted today to remove a ban on U.S. military aid to Turkey and Chile from legislation needed to keep the foreign aid program alive.

Instead, conferees substituted milder language that would allow arms aid to continue to Turkey if President Ford certifies to Congress that country is making "good faith efforts to achieve a negotiated settlement in Cyprus."

The conference approved the "continuing resolution" after removing the amendment by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., concerning Turkey.

Ford said he would veto the measure because it threatened to "destroy any hope" for U.S. success in settling the Greek-Turkish conflict.

Ford earlier indicated he could accept the "good faith" language, which was added to the bill by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass.

Manson Prosecutor Wins A Dismissal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A perjury charge against Manson trial prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi was dismissed in Superior Court today largely as a result of newsman William Farr's refusal to testify about sources of a story he wrote during the "family" murder trial.

Special prosecutor Theodore Shield told the court that Farr's refusal to reveal the source of the story made it inadvisable for the state to attempt to continue the case against Bugliosi, who ran unsuccessfully for the office of attorney general and district attorney.

Shield made a motion to dismiss the perjury charge and Judge Earl C. Broady immediately granted the motion.

Bugliosi was charged with lying under oath when he said he did not furnish a transcript which was the basis of a story Farr worte in 1970 about alleged plans of the Manson family to murder other celebrities after the Tate-LaBianca slayings.

Farr had said before Superior Court Judge Charles Older who presided at the Manson trial, that the transcripts came from two of the attorneys in the case. When he refused to identify them further, Older sentenced him for contempt and he served 46 days in jail before he was released on the order of U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

In moving for dismissal of the case, Shield was highly critical of Farr's refusal to answer questions about the source of his material.

"I don't criticize his motives and I am sure that in his mind they are proper. But his action in refusing to testify in this case has dealt a fatal blow to prosecution," Shield said.

"Not only has it thwarted the prosecution but it has prevented the defendant (Bugliosi) from having established his innocence in court. It also has perpetuated a cloud over other persons involved in the case."

Daye Shinn, a defense attorney at the Manson trial, had been indicted along with Bugliosi on the perjury charge when he also denied he was the source of the Farr story.

Shinn's trial was separated from that of Bugliosi.

Purchase Of Dollar Estate Is Debated Before League

By PAUL CANE

The proposed city purchase of the 11-acre Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue in San Rafael is either an opportunity to preserve forever a quaint city landmark or a program that will drain taxpayers' dollars for years to come — depending on the speaker.

Proponents and adversaries of proposed city purchase of the estate for $250,000 — Proposition G on the November 5 ballot — gathered there today to debate the issue for members of the San Rafael Home and Business Preservation League.

Mary C. Dekker, representing Marin Heritage — the historical society that sparked the city purchase plan — told the 30-member audience that preserving the mansion and estate would be a boon for future residents of San Rafael.

"Not too many of us can live like this anymore," she said. "It's important for our children to see what San Rafael used to be like."

But attorney Thomas Schaal, whose plans for a multimillion-dollar development of the area were rejected two years ago by city officials, told the audience that they would have to keep paying for the property far longer than is now proposed.

He also said that removing the property from the tax rolls would cost taxing agencies more than $150,000 per year that they would receive if the land were developed.

"Is this new tax rate merely for openers? We're entitled to see the bottom line of cost before we vote on this measure," he said.

Proposition G would add 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the tax rate for three years, and then 2 cents per $100 thereafter. It requires a simple majority to pass.

Schaal and members of the audience asked City Mgr. William J. Bielser if the revenue generated by the tax rate would be enough to cover all expenses, such as additional parking and needed restoration. The third floor of the building does not measure up to the Uniform Building Code and would have to be improved for safety, he said.

Bielser said that estimates of cost for the third floor improvements had been included, but said that other costs — such as added parking — were not included because "We don't really know what we want to do with the building yet."

Schaal said he was speaking as a "concerned citizen" and not as a developer, because he no longer has an option to buy the estate. But, he told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that he has not ruled out the possibility of modifying his development plans and again seeking city approval to build.

Homeowners Snub Utility Tunneling

Homeowners replying to a survey taken in the Enchanted Knolls area of Mill Valley have said overwhelmingly that they do not want to underground utility lines in their subdivision.

Elin Modjeska, treasurer of the subdivision's homeowners association, said the association board reported last night that voting was 72 against and 16 for the idea.

The board then dropped plans for spending $800 from its treasury for a preliminary engineering study of the undergrounding.

The project would have cost each homeowner between $2,500 and $4,000.

Also last night the board agreed that the new general plan for Mill Valley should specify that marshland between the Middle School and Enchanted Knolls should be used for shallow water activities only, such as smallboat sailing.

Man Guilty Of Kidnap, Assault

A dishwasher with a history of convictions on sex offenses was found guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday of kidnap and assault with intent to commit rape.

Roy Garcia Garcia, 24, of Sebastopol, is to return to court Friday for a hearing on whether he is mentally disordered and should be committed to a state hospital.

The jury convicted Garcia of pulling a knife on a 22-year-old San Rafael college student in September 1973 and forcing her to accompany him to a vacant lot, where he assaulted her.

Garcia previously had been treated at Atascadero State Hospital after pleading guilty in 1970 to raping a San Rafael housewife.

At that time he was on parole from the California Youth Authority on a rape conviction.

Garcia also pleaded guilty to similar charges in San Francisco last month and was declared mentally disordered and committed to a state hospital.

Graham Fills Half A Stadium

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury joined Billy Graham for the opening of the American evangelist's Brazilian crusade, but less than half the vast Maracana stadium was filled.

Graham filled Maracana, the world's largest soccer stadium, with an estimated 200,000 people for a rally in 1960. There were 85,000 on hand last night for the first meeting in the five-day crusade Graham is holding in predominantly Roman Catholic Brazil.

"Many of our world leaders are warning about a third world war," Graham said. "Man has proven himself to be a moral failure. God is the only hope at this hour."

Purchase Of Dollar Estate Is Debated Before League

By PAUL CANE

The proposed city purchase of the 11-acre Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue in San Rafael is either an opportunity to preserve forever a quaint city landmark or a program that will drain taxpayers' dollars for years to come — depending on the speaker.

Proponents and adversaries of proposed city purchase of the estate for $250,000 — Proposition G on the November 5 ballot — gathered there today to debate the issue for members of the San Rafael Home and Business Preservation League.

Mary C. Dekker, representing Marin Heritage — the historical society that sparked the city purchase plan — told the 30-member audience that preserving the mansion and estate would be a boon for future residents of San Rafael.

"Not too many of us can live like this anymore," she said. "It's important for our children to see what San Rafael used to be like."

But attorney Thomas Schaal, whose plans for a multimillion-dollar development of the area were rejected two years ago by city officials, told the audience that they would have to keep paying for the property far longer than is now proposed.

He also said that removing the property from the tax rolls would cost taxing agencies more than $150,000 per year that they would receive if the land were developed.

"Is this new tax rate merely for openers? We're entitled to see the bottom line of cost before we vote on this measure," he said.

Proposition G would add 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the tax rate for three years, and then 2 cents per $100 thereafter. It requires a simple majority to pass.

Schaal and members of the audience asked City Mgr. William J. Bielser if the revenue generated by the tax rate would be enough to cover all expenses, such as additional parking and needed restoration. The third floor of the building does not measure up to the Uniform Building Code and would have to be improved for safety, he said.

Bielser said that estimates of cost for the third floor improvements had been included, but said that other costs — such as added parking — were not included because "We don't really know what we want to do with the building yet."

Schaal said he was speaking as a "concerned citizen" and not as a developer, because he no longer has an option to buy the estate. But, he told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that he has not ruled out the possibility of modifying his development plans and again seeking city approval to build.

Homeowners Snub Utility Tunneling

Homeowners replying to a survey taken in the Enchanted Knolls area of Mill Valley have said overwhelmingly that they do not want to underground utility lines in their subdivision.

Elin Modjeska, treasurer of the subdivision's homeowners association, said the association board reported last night that voting was 72 against and 16 for the idea.

The board then dropped plans for spending $800 from its treasury for a preliminary engineering study of the undergrounding.

The project would have cost each homeowner between $2,500 and $4,000.

Also last night the board agreed that the new general plan for Mill Valley should specify that marshland between the Middle School and Enchanted Knolls should be used for shallow water activities only, such as smallboat sailing.

Man Guilty Of Kidnap, Assault

A dishwasher with a history of convictions on sex offenses was found guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday of kidnap and assault with intent to commit rape.

Roy Garcia Garcia, 24, of Sebastopol, is to return to court Friday for a hearing on whether he is mentally disordered and should be committed to a state hospital.

The jury convicted Garcia of pulling a knife on a 22-year-old San Rafael college student in September 1973 and forcing her to accompany him to a vacant lot, where he assaulted her.

Garcia previously had been treated at Atascadero State Hospital after pleading guilty in 1970 to raping a San Rafael housewife.

At that time he was on parole from the California Youth Authority on a rape conviction.

Garcia also pleaded guilty to similar charges in San Francisco last month and was declared mentally disordered and committed to a state hospital.

Graham Fills Half A Stadium

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury joined Billy Graham for the opening of the American evangelist's Brazilian crusade, but less than half the vast Maracana stadium was filled.

Graham filled Maracana, the world's largest soccer stadium, with an estimated 200,000 people for a rally in 1960. There were 85,000 on hand last night for the first meeting in the five-day crusade Graham is holding in predominantly Roman Catholic Brazil.

"Many of our world leaders are warning about a third world war," Graham said. "Man has proven himself to be a moral failure. God is the only hope at this hour."

Police Arrest Youth In A Boston School

BOSTON (UPI) — A 15-year-old black youth was arrested for disorderly conduct inside racially troubled South Boston High School today as police staged weapons searches of students entering the building. The action followed a disturbance yesterday in which 10 persons were injured.

Increased numbers of police were stationed inside and outside the building to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's cafeteria fight. Police, called to quell the disorder, confiscated a number of weapons, including a knife and baseball bat.

Two black girls who allegedly pulled a knife on a policeman were arrested yesterday and charged with delinquency and disturbing a public assembly.

Officials also reported at least one other arrest today, the 16th day of a court-ordered busing plan to integrate Boston's schools. A 14-year-old black girl was arrested in the Rogers Annex to Hyde Park High School after she assaulted a white girl.

Yesterday's incident at South Boston started with a scuffle at the water cooler, according to Headmaster William J. Reid.

"Then, a lunch tray was thrown and the lunchroom became the scene of flying trays," he added. "Staff and police moved in and youngsters were sent to separate parts of the building and order was restored."

Reid said one of those injured, a 15-year-old black girl, was taken to the hospital where she was treated and released for a hip injury. He said the other injuries were minor.

School Department officials said many of the white students walked out of the building after the flareup and went home. School officials met and decided to let classes out an hour early. Buses were called to take blacks away.

After school, some of the black students met with a black School Department community relations employee and a black community leader to discuss the incident.

At the same time, Reid met at the school with a number of concerned parents.

Attendance at South Boston High yesterday reached a new high of 504, including 294 whites and 194 blacks, an increase of 33 over Tuesday.

The citywide attendance rate, including kindergarten, was 80.8 per cent, about the same as Tuesday.

Although South Boston High had been the scene of violence outside — mostly rock throwing by large crowds demonstrating when the desegration program began last month — Tuesday and yesterday's incidents were the first inside.

She's Another Computer Ghost

PHILOMATH, Ore. (UPI) — The state of Oregon declared Mrs. Edith Smith dead, but she insists she's the "liveliest old ghost the state ever saw."

The state Department of Revenue sent her a letter asking whether her tavern would be operated by her estate since she was "dead."

Mrs. Smith said yesterday that she wrote back asking whether her death was accidental and could she collect double indemnity, whether she was removed from the tax rolls and whether she had a tax refund coming.

She singed the letter: "Yours from the beyond."

A red-faced state official said it was all the fault of the computer. "There are an awful lot of Smiths, you know," he said.

She's Another Computer Ghost

PHILOMATH, Ore. (UPI) — The state of Oregon declared Mrs. Edith Smith dead, but she insists she's the "liveliest old ghost the state ever saw."

The state Department of Revenue sent her a letter asking whether her tavern would be operated by her estate since she was "dead."

Mrs. Smith said yesterday that she wrote back asking whether her death was accidental and could she collect double indemnity, whether she was removed from the tax rolls and whether she had a tax refund coming.

She singed the letter: "Yours from the beyond."

A red-faced state official said it was all the fault of the computer. "There are an awful lot of Smiths, you know," he said.

Police Arrest Youth In A Boston School

BOSTON (UPI) — A 15-year-old black youth was arrested for disorderly conduct inside racially troubled South Boston High School today as police staged weapons searches of students entering the building. The action followed a disturbance yesterday in which 10 persons were injured.

Increased numbers of police were stationed inside and outside the building to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's cafeteria fight. Police, called to quell the disorder, confiscated a number of weapons, including a knife and baseball bat.

Two black girls who allegedly pulled a knife on a policeman were arrested yesterday and charged with delinquency and disturbing a public assembly.

Officials also reported at least one other arrest today, the 16th day of a court-ordered busing plan to integrate Boston's schools. A 14-year-old black girl was arrested in the Rogers Annex to Hyde Park High School after she assaulted a white girl.

Yesterday's incident at South Boston started with a scuffle at the water cooler, according to Headmaster William J. Reid.

"Then, a lunch tray was thrown and the lunchroom became the scene of flying trays," he added. "Staff and police moved in and youngsters were sent to separate parts of the building and order was restored."

Reid said one of those injured, a 15-year-old black girl, was taken to the hospital where she was treated and released for a hip injury. He said the other injuries were minor.

School Department officials said many of the white students walked out of the building after the flareup and went home. School officials met and decided to let classes out an hour early. Buses were called to take blacks away.

After school, some of the black students met with a black School Department community relations employee and a black community leader to discuss the incident.

At the same time, Reid met at the school with a number of concerned parents.

Attendance at South Boston High yesterday reached a new high of 504, including 294 whites and 194 blacks, an increase of 33 over Tuesday.

The citywide attendance rate, including kindergarten, was 80.8 per cent, about the same as Tuesday.

Although South Boston High had been the scene of violence outside — mostly rock throwing by large crowds demonstrating when the desegration program began last month — Tuesday and yesterday's incidents were the first inside.

FACES OF MARIN CITY

A Festive Air Turns Jaded

A moderate-income home, according to 1973 figures in the county general plan, is priced between $19,500 and $26,000, although that range must be revised upward as a result of inflation since the plan was produced, planning officials said.

However, many persons, including members of the Marin City Council, Community Services District board and Public Housing Tenants Representation Association, object to the absence of low-income units and to only 20 per cent moderate-income housing in the second phase.

They feel redevelopment should improve housing conditions for those who already live in Marin City.

They fear the highlands will become a white, middle-class singles development, further isolating from the mainstream of Marin the blacks clustered in the basin below. They point to plans for access roads to the ridges, which would permit future residents to bypass black neighborhoods entirely, to justify their anxieties.

The Legal Aid Society of Marin recently met with Darryl Graves, western representative for Mid-City, to request 20 per cent low and moderate income housing in each phase of the project, according to goals set down by the community in a late 1950's master plan for Marin City. Graves told the Independent-Journal that during the meeting legal aid representatives leveled "innuendos" that they would seek to halt the project if their demands were not met.

But a legal aid spokesman told the Independent-Journal the organization "has no intention" of stopping the project.

And yesterday, the chief attorney for legal aid, Richard A. Hirsch, assured an angry board of supervisors that the society and its clients would not push for the low-cost housing, but would devote itself to insuring that the agreed-upon amount of moderate-cost housing is built.

The supervisors had sharply rebuked the society for seeming to threaten a halt or delay in the redevelopment so long and thoroughly reviewed by numerous private and public agencies, including the board of supervisors.

Although opponents of the present Mid-City plan as currently proposed are the most vocal, there are many who disagree.

One is Jesse Berry, a member of the Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association who believes there is scarce demand for low-income housing in Marin and to jeopardize the project at this late date would only jeopardize the possibility of jobs for Marin City residents in the construction work.

Berry was hired by Mid-City as community coordinator of the project's affirmative action program, set up to insure the hiring of Marin City residents, a post for which he is paid $500 a month.

Another is Juanita Cobb, a longtime resident and former redevelopment agency director and director of the community services district. She says middle-income housing will give Marin City the strong tax base it never has had, perhaps paving the way for the community to incorporate and more directly control its own destiny.

She, as did Berry, bought one of the 82 single-family houses built by the California Development Co., the community's first developer, and is grateful for the opportunity to own her own home.

Shepherd, who took over the administrative reigns of the redevelopment agency in 1970, says more low-income units would be contrary to federal policy on redevelopment.

"If 20 per cent low-income units were included in Richardson Highlands," Shepherd said, "then the community as a whole would be 60 per cent low income. That's the problem with Marin City now."

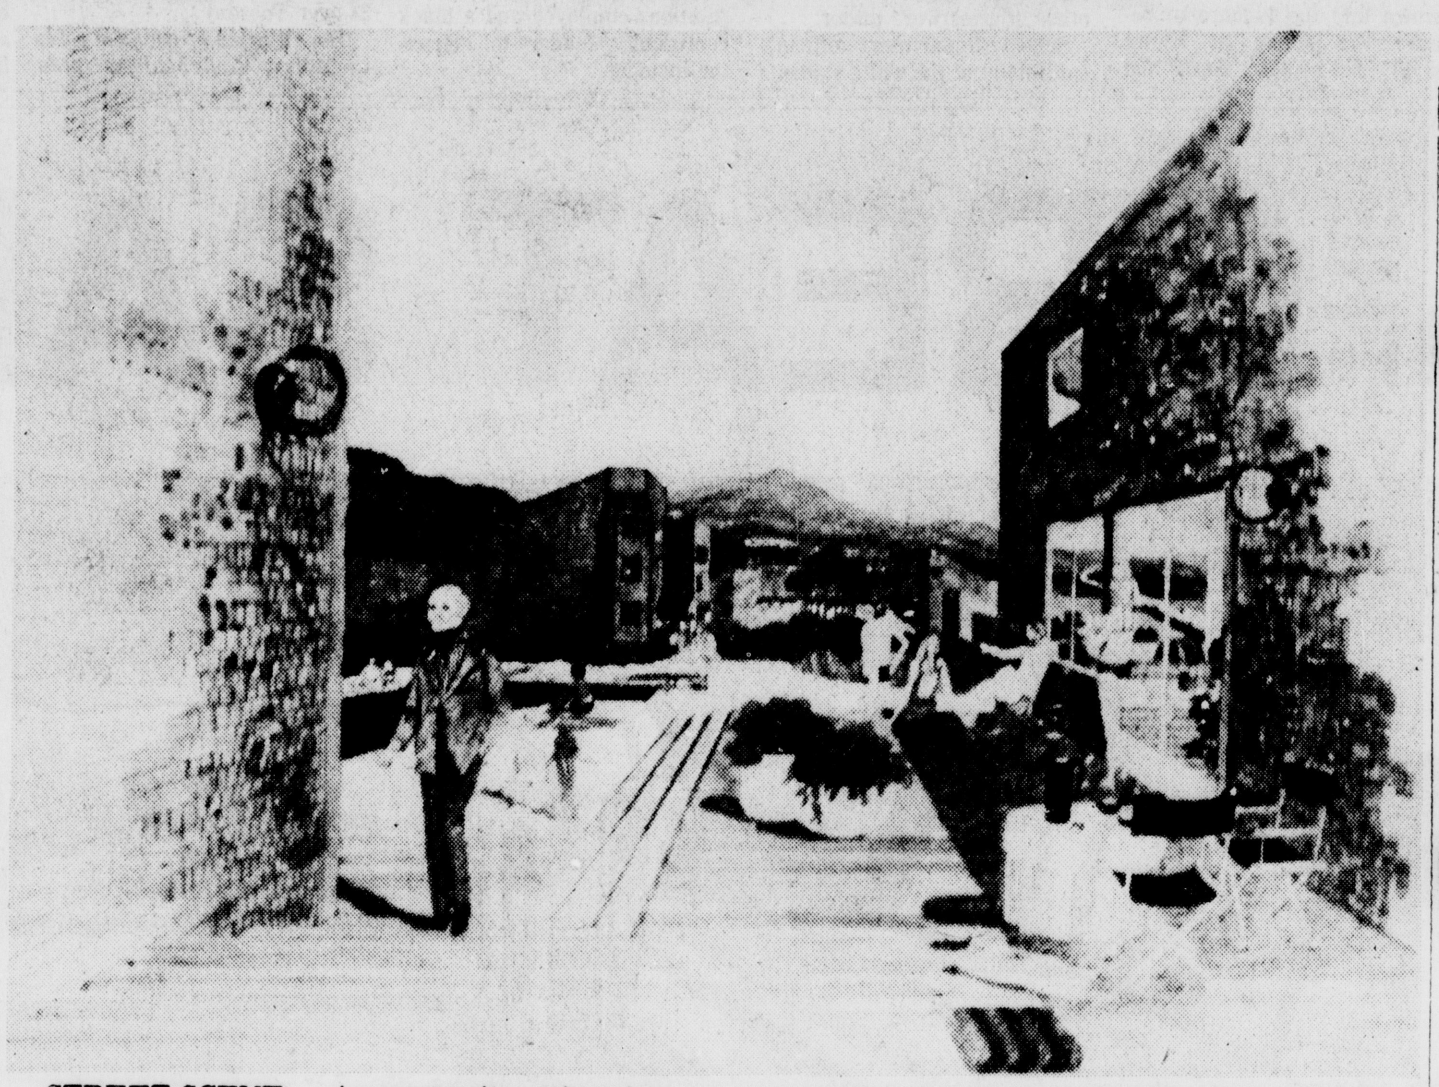
Sale of the highlands leaves the redevelopment agency with almost no land under its control. The only raw land remaining is a seven-acre commercial parcel and about 30 vacant acres held by the Tamalpais High School District.

The agency long ago sold 167 acres of ridgelands above the community to California Development Co. Although no firm plans have been submitted for development of this prime acreage, as many as 650 dwellings could be built on the ridgelands under county density regulations.

Under an agreement with Cal Development, the redevelopment agency will be paid $1,000 for every multiple family unit and $2,000 for every single-family unit built, according to Shepherd.

With today's tight money and high interest rates and the soaring cost of construction materials, it is very doubtful that low income housing will be built on the ridge, even if more housing for the poor in Marin City were the goal, which is not the case.

After 20 often stormy years, redevelopment in Marin City appears to be winding down. But with plans for the highlands being challenged, and construction not expected until next spring, much can happen before the final chapter of the redevelopment story can be written.



STREET SCENE — A community swimming pool (left); broad, carless and casual streets; all blend to create a special atmosphere in this architect's impression of the development proposed by Mid-City Developers on 30 acres of highlands in Marin City. Work, the developers, say will begin next spring, a year later than announced last December.

Forest Service To Buy Private Land At Tahoe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service is exercising an option to buy 10,000 acres of privately owned land on the north shore of Lake Tahoe, Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif. reported yesterday.

Johnson said the $10 million purchase from the Fiberboard Corp. would make it unnecessary to obtain the land through an exchange that would have cost 16 northern California counties about $2.5 million in school and road funds.

The congressman said the needed funds were added to the budget of the Interior Department and related agencies at his request.

As originally planned, the Forest Service would have acquired the land at Lake Tahoe through a swap of national forest land in northern California. The result would have been a loss to the counties of their share of revenues from government timber sales.

She says middle-income housing will give Marin City the strong tax base it never has had, perhaps paving the way for the community to incorporate and more directly control its own destiny.

She, as did Berry, bought one of the 82 single-family houses built by the California Development Co., the community's first developer, and is grateful for the opportunity to own her own home.

Shepherd, who took over the administrative reigns of the redevelopment agency in 1970, says more low-income units would be contrary to federal policy on redevelopment.

"If 20 per cent low-income units were included in Richardson Highlands," Shepherd said, "then the community as a whole would be 60 per cent low income. That's the problem with Marin City now."

Sale of the highlands leaves the redevelopment agency with almost no land under its control. The only raw land remaining is a seven-acre commercial parcel and about 30 vacant acres held by the Tamalpais High School District.

The agency long ago sold 167 acres of ridgelands above the community to California Development Co. Although no firm plans have been submitted for development of this prime acreage, as many as 650 dwellings could be built on the ridgelands under county density regulations.

Under an agreement with Cal Development, the redevelopment agency will be paid $1,000 for every multiple family unit and $2,000 for every single-family unit built, according to Shepherd.

With today's tight money and high interest rates and the soaring cost of construction materials, it is very doubtful that low income housing will be built on the ridge, even if more housing for the poor in Marin City were the goal, which is not the case.

After 20 often stormy years, redevelopment in Marin City appears to be winding down. But with plans for the highlands being challenged, and construction not expected until next spring, much can happen before the final chapter of the redevelopment story can be written.

Forest Service To Buy Private Land At Tahoe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service is exercising an option to buy 10,000 acres of privately owned land on the north shore of Lake Tahoe, Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif. reported yesterday.

Johnson said the $10 million purchase from the Fiberboard Corp. would make it unnecessary to obtain the land through an exchange that would have cost 16 northern California counties about $2.5 million in school and road funds.

The congressman said the needed funds were added to the budget of the Interior Department and related agencies at his request.

As originally planned, the Forest Service would have acquired the land at Lake Tahoe through a swap of national forest land in northern California. The result would have been a loss to the counties of their share of revenues from government timber sales.

FACES OF MARIN CITY

A moderate-income home, according to 1973 figures in the county general plan, is priced between $19,500 and $26,000, although that range must be revised upward as a result of inflation since the plan was produced, planning officials said.

However, many persons, including members of the Marin City Council, Community Services District board and Public Housing Tenants Representation Association, object to the absence of low-income units and to only 20 per cent moderate-income housing in the second phase.

They feel redevelopment should improve housing conditions for those who already live in Marin City.

They fear the highlands will become a white, middle-class singles development, further isolating from the mainstream of Marin the blacks clustered in the basin below. They point to plans for access roads to the ridges, which would permit future residents to bypass black neighborhoods entirely, to justify their anxieties.

The Legal Aid Society of Marin recently met with Darryl Graves, western representative for Mid-City, to request 20 per cent low and moderate income housing in each phase of the project, according to goals set down by the community in a late 1950's master plan for Marin City. Graves told the Independent-Journal that during the meeting legal aid representatives leveled "innuendos" that they would seek to halt the project if their demands were not met.

But a legal aid spokesman told the Independent-Journal the organization "has no intention" of stopping the project.

And yesterday, the chief attorney for legal aid, Richard A. Hirsch, assured an angry board of supervisors that the society and its clients would not push for the low-cost housing, but would devote itself to insuring that the agreed-upon amount of moderate-cost housing is built.

The supervisors had sharply rebuked the society for seeming to threaten a halt or delay in the redevelopment so long and thoroughly reviewed by numerous private and public agencies, including the board of supervisors.

Although opponents of the present Mid-City plan as currently proposed are the most vocal, there are many who disagree.

One is Jesse Berry, a member of the Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association who believes there is scarce demand for low-income housing in Marin and to jeopardize the project at this late date would only jeopardize the possibility of jobs for Marin City residents in the construction work.

Berry was hired by Mid-City as community coordinator of the project's affirmative action program, set up to insure the hiring of Marin City residents, a post for which he is paid $500 a month.

Another is Juanita Cobb, a longtime resident and former redevelopment agency director and director of the community services district. She says middle-income housing will give Marin City the strong tax base it never has had, perhaps paving the way for the community to incorporate and more directly control its own destiny.

She, as did Berry, bought one of the 82 single-family houses built by the California Development Co., the community's first developer, and is grateful for the opportunity to own her own home.

Shepherd, who took over the administrative reigns of the redevelopment agency in 1970, says more low-income units would be contrary to federal policy on redevelopment.

"If 20 per cent low-income units were included in Richardson Highlands," Shepherd said, "then the community as a whole would be 60 per cent low income. That's the problem with Marin City now."

STREET SCENE — A community swimming pool (left); broad, carless and casual streets; all blend to create a special atmosphere in this architect's impression of the development proposed by Mid-City Developers on 30 acres of highlands in Marin City. Work, the developers, say will begin next spring, a year later than announced last December.

WOMEN AND CRIME

Babysitter Must Be Alert

By KAREN PETERSON
(Fourth of five articles.)

Retired San Rafael Chief of Police Joseph J. Brusatori gave this warning to babysitters in an open letter printed in the police department Crime Prevention Manual. Babysitters, without a doubt, hold a very important position. They are taking it upon themselves to care for a very important person in the lives of parents.

The following are safety tips the manual has outlined for the babysitter:

LOCK DOORS

Lock all doors, including the garage, as soon as your employer leaves. Lock the windows, turn off the porch light (when it is on, it indicates you are expecting visitors), turn on several inside lights and draw drapes or pull shades.

Don't let the child out at night.

Use the telephone only for needed calls and don't let the child answer the phone. When you answer the phone, just say hello, find out who the caller is and say the person asked for is unable to come to the phone.

Ask if there is a message and a number, saying that the party called will return it later. Hang up on discourteous callers and never tell a calling party that you are the babysitter.

If someone comes to the door, do not open it. Peek through the viewer or window and speak through the door. Open the door only if it is necessary and keep the screen locked.

Admit only a known member of the family or a policeman. If a policeman is in plain clothes, ask to see both his badge and identification.

Do not make it obvious that the parents are not in the house. If the caller is a salesman, say, "No thank you." If they persist, tell them to wait, shut the door and call the police.

SUDDEN NOISE

In a strange home, you're bound to hear noises uncommon to you such as blinds flapping, shrubs or trees rubbing against the house or window.

Try to locate and identify these sounds and correct them if you can. If the people have a dog, learn to identify his barks. It will tell you if something is wrong.

If you can't identify a noise, and it persists, call the police.

Go directly to the phone and dial the local police department. Speak in a normal voice, slowly and calmly.

Tell the officer there is a noise. Give your name, address and phone number of the house you are at. Stay on the phone, giving the location of the sound as it moves.

Stay on the phone until the policeman knocks. Make sure it is the police before you open the door.

PLAYING OUTSIDE

If the child is permitted to play outdoors, be sure it is in a safe area. Observe all traffic laws if you take the child for a walk.

Never speak to strangers or permit children in your care to do so or accept gifts of any kind.

Don't let the child play with strange animals.

Be sure to get the phone number of where the parents are going, relatives or a close family friend in case of a question or emergency.

If the people you are sitting for do not return within an hour of the expected time, and have not telephoned, call your parents and let them know.

Don't touch any weapons in the home, don't experiment with food or drink and do not explore the medicine cabinets.

During the year, many county organizations hold special babysitting courses for teenagers. If you babysit often, it could be beneficial to enroll in such a course.

If you are serious about your career as a babysitter, it could be helpful to take a basic first aid course.

SOME PRECAUTIONS

Find out the child's special fears, food habits, bedtime, medication, or allergies. Never give any medication except on specific orders of the parent.

Keep sharp objects, plastic bags, easily swollowed items, glassware, medicines and hot liquids away from the child. Don't let the child play near plugs and cords, heaters and radiators, fireplaces, open windows, stoves, stairways, open windows, cords on venetian blinds or table cloths.

If you bathe the child (don't do this unless you've had experience) test the water temperature first, hold baby firmly at all times, support on one arm to protect head and to keep it out of the water, keep water and soap off the floor and never touch an electric switch with wet hands.

When you put a baby to bed, make sure the clothes are adequate for normal temperature and loose enough to allow movement. Secure the blanket, keep crib sides up and keep all small things out of the crib. Check the child often during the evening.

In case of fire, keep calm, know exits beforehand and get the child out of the house. Call the fire department immediately.

Never throw water on a grease, oil or petroleum fire. Smother it instead with a blanket or rug. If clothing catches fire, wrap in a rug or blanket to smother the flames.

If a child sustains any injury aside from minor cuts and or scratches, call the parent.

(Tomorrow: Child safety.)

Belvedere-Tiburon Tennis Tourney Set

Some 140 Tiburon peninsula residents will compete in the first annual Belvedere-Tiburon Doubles Tennis Championships Friday through Sunday.

The tournament is a community-wide affair: tennis partners will battle on donated courts of homes, clubs and the City of Tiburon. Entry fees and sponsorships will benefit the building fund of St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere.

Abult players will compete at all levels. The only qualification is residence in Belvedere or Tiburon.

Women's doubles will be played Friday. Men's and mixed doubles will be played on Saturday and Sunday.

Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., a cocktail party for players, tournament sponsors and court owners is planned at the Belvedere home of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark. The Belvedere-Tiburon Guild of St. Stephen's Church will provide the food.

The Clarks' home was the Belvedere Golf Club before the Depression. The rustic house, built on 30 acres on Belvedere Island in 1908, now has two acres including a pool and tennis court.

Others who have donated courts are Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Kilgore and Messrs. and Mmes. David Winslow, Kurt Heath and Russell Keil.

Belvedere Tennis Club and Tiburon Peninsula Club have donated courts, as well as the City of Tiburon.

Tournament co-chairmen Harry Likas and Connie Wiley are assisted by Dr. Fenimore Cady, tournament director; David Houston, assistant tournament director; and Don Moulin, official referee.

Gifted Child Has Special Needs

By BETH ASHLEY

Greenbrae mother Clare Harper, who had "never been around children very much," thought it a little odd when her first child Patrick began winding up his own toys at six months, reading at age 2, beating her at chess when he was 4.

Her emerging conviction was confirmed when Patrick was 5: psychological testing established that he was indeed a "gifted" child, with a "very superior" IQ.

For Clare Harper and her husband Clarence, the challenge to provide him with appropriate guidance and education began from the moment of discovery and is with them now and for the immediate future.

Patrick is now 10. His brother Michael, equally bright, is 8.

Both are students in a new class for gifted children at Greenbrae School, a pilot class which Mrs. Harper helped establish.

Until now, the Harpers have been on their own in seeking an answer to their problem: what do you do when you are the parents of a highly gifted child?

"It is not a popular problem," Mrs. Harper said. "Your friends do not commiserate with you as they would if you had a physically handicapped or mentally retarded child. And yet these (gifted) children have very real needs, too, which for the most part are not being met in our society."

What did the Harpers do?

"A friend of ours who was an educational counselor met Patrick when he was 2½," Mrs. Harper said. "She perceived that he was exceptional, and encouraged us to enroll him in nursery school. The next morning, we took him to the Montessori School of Yvonne Van Boeckel in San Rafael, and they took him on a trial basis. The teachers there acknowledged that he was doing the work of an average 4 or 5-year-old."

They enrolled him in Marin Country Day School at 5, and after one semester he was promoted to the second grade. After that he attended the Independent Learning School in Corte Madera, where work was totally individualized, and by age 8, Patrick was working at the high school level.

"But we were concerned with the whole child, not just with his academic progress," Mrs. Harper said. "We wanted him to have an experience where there would be more interchange of ideas and a chance for interaction with youngsters his own age. We wanted him (and by this time, his brother Michael) to have the advantage of such classes as P.E. and music."

Two years ago, the Harpers enrolled their children at Greenbrae School. "We took the gamble, because we found in Greenbrae Principal Ed Allen a person sympathetic to our problem."

Mrs. Harper became involved in Kentfield School District's effort to find a good educational solution to the problem posed by the Harper children and other gifted students in the district. She ultimately became chairman of a citizens advisory committee task force which recommended the self-contained classroom for a group of the gifted. There are 20 children in the class which opened in September. (Minimum IQ to qualify for the class is 132.)

"I'm very proud of the Kentfield School Board for recognizing that gifted children have special educational needs and that it is acting to meet these needs," she said.

As far as Mrs. Harper knows, Kentfield's program is unique in Marin. A pilot program this year, it will be studied for modification or expansion next year.

While the schools have a large part in educating a gifted child, much of the education as well as decision making falls on the parent.

From the time Patrick began screwing the cap back on the vaseline jar when she was changing his diapers, Mrs. Harper has tried to provide her children with challenging toys and games. She read books to them at an early age, since the children quickly read by themselves, she made trips to the

CERTAIN TRAITS SHOW IF A CHILD IS GIFTED

How can you tell if your child is gifted?

"It's hard to define," according to Clare Harper of Greenbrae. "I feel that I can tell if from a child's eyes: you can just see the wheels going around in there."

But in trying to characterize giftedness she said, most experts in the field agree that a gifted child:

Learns quickly and easily when interested;

Demonstrates the power to learn, retain and apply his learning;

Has a wide interest range, is basically curious;

Has a profound interest in a single area — is an "expert" on some subject of special interest, evidencing a specific aptitude;

Shows intense desire to know and understand;

Exhibits independence in thinking (non-conformist);

Can be noticeably creative and inventive (originality);

Evidences greater sensitivity and awareness regarding self and others (supersensitivity and perceptiveness);

Tends to be a perfectionist — severely self-critical with high standards of personal achievement and desire to excel.

Mrs. Harper said gifted children often have "a fantastic sense of humor" and they "soak up information like a sponge."

Lock all doors, including the garage, as soon as your employer leaves. Lock the windows, turn off the porch light (when it is on, it indicates you are expecting visitors), turn on several inside lights and draw drapes or pull shades.

Don't let the child out at night.

Use the telephone only for needed calls and don't let the child answer the phone. When you answer the phone, just say hello, find out who the caller is and say the person asked for is unable to come to the phone.

Ask if there is a message and a number, saying that the party called will return it later. Hang up on discourteous callers and never tell a calling party that you are the babysitter.

If someone comes to the door, do not open it. Peek through the viewer or window and speak through the door. Open the door only if it is necessary and keep the screen locked.

Admit only a known member of the family or a policeman. If a policeman is in plain clothes, ask to see both his badge and identification.

Do not make it obvious that the parents are not in the house. If the caller is a salesman, say, "No thank you." If they persist, tell them to wait, shut the door and call the police.

SUDDEN NOISE

In a strange home, you're bound to hear noises uncommon to you such as blinds flapping, shrubs or trees rubbing against the house or window.

Try to locate and identify these sounds and correct them if you can. If the people have a dog, learn to identify his barks. It will tell you if something is wrong.

If you can't identify a noise, and it persists, call the police.

Go directly to the phone and dial the local police department. Speak in a normal voice, slowly and calmly.

Tell the officer there is a noise. Give your name, address and phone number of the house you are at. Stay on the phone, giving the location of the sound as it moves.

Stay on the phone until the policeman knocks. Make sure it is the police before you open the door.

PLAYING OUTSIDE

If the child is permitted to play outdoors, be sure it is in a safe area. Observe all traffic laws if you take the child for a walk.

Never speak to strangers or permit children in your care to do so or accept gifts of any kind.

Don't let the child play with strange animals.

Be sure to get the phone number of where the parents are going, relatives or a close family friend in case of a question or emergency.

If the people you are sitting for do not return within an hour of the expected time, and have not telephoned, call your parents and let them know.

Don't touch any weapons in the home, don't experiment with food or drink and do not explore the medicine cabinets.

During the year, many county organizations hold special babysitting courses for teenagers. If you babysit often, it could be beneficial to enroll in such a course.

If you are serious about your career as a babysitter, it could be helpful to take a basic first aid course.

SOME PRECAUTIONS

Find out the child's special fears, food habits, bedtime, medication, or allergies. Never give any medication except on specific orders of the parent.

Keep sharp objects, plastic bags, easily swollowed items, glassware, medicines and hot liquids away from the child. Don't let the child play near plugs and cords, heaters and radiators, fireplaces, open windows, stoves, stairways, open windows, cords on venetian blinds or table cloths.

If you bathe the child (don't do this unless you've had experience) test the water temperature first, hold baby firmly at all times, support on one arm to protect head and to keep it out of the water, keep water and soap off the floor and never touch an electric switch with wet hands.

When you put a baby to bed, make sure the clothes are adequate for normal temperature and loose enough to allow movement. Secure the blanket, keep crib sides up and keep all small things out of the crib. Check the child often during the evening.

In case of fire, keep calm, know exits beforehand and get the child out of the house. Call the fire department immediately.

Never throw water on a grease, oil or petroleum fire. Smother it instead with a blanket or rug. If clothing catches fire, wrap in a rug or blanket to smother the flames.

If a child sustains any injury aside from minor cuts and or scratches, call the parent.

January Rites Scheduled For Miss Soldavini

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Soldavini of Petaluma have announced the engagement of their daughter Marianne to Dennis de la Montanya of San Geronimo.

The couple plans to be married Jan. 11 at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Petaluma.

Marianne is the sister of Marjorie Lipori of Petaluma and William F. Soldavini of Milpitas. She was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School, College of Marin and Sonoma State College, where she is working toward a teaching credential.

Dennis is the son of Irene Bianchi of San Geronimo and the late Dean de la Montanya. He is the brother of Steven, Nancy and Edward de la Montanya and the grandson of Sylvester Cervantes of Cotati and Mildred de la Montanya of San Geronimo. He was also graduated from Drake High School and College of Marin and is a student at Sonoma State College.

Gifted Child Has Special Needs

By BETH ASHLEY

Greenbrae mother Clare Harper, who had "never been around children very much," thought it a little odd when her first child Patrick began winding up his own toys at six months, reading at age 2, beating her at chess when he was 4.

Her emerging conviction was confirmed when Patrick was 5: psychological testing established that he was indeed a "gifted" child, with a "very superior" IQ.

For Clare Harper and her husband Clarence, the challenge to provide him with appropriate guidance and education began from the moment of discovery and is with them now and for the immediate future.

Patrick is now 10. His brother Michael, equally bright, is 8.

Both are students in a new class for gifted children at Greenbrae School, a pilot class which Mrs. Harper helped establish.

Until now, the Harpers have been on their own in seeking an answer to their problem: what do you do when you are the parents of a highly gifted child?

"It is not a popular problem," Mrs. Harper said. "Your friends do not commiserate with you as they would if you had a physically handicapped or mentally retarded child. And yet these (gifted) children have very real needs, too, which for the most part are not being met in our society."

What did the Harpers do?

"A friend of ours who was an educational counselor met Patrick when he was 2½," Mrs. Harper said. "She perceived that he was exceptional, and encouraged us to enroll him in nursery school. The next morning, we took him to the Montessori School of Yvonne Van Boeckel in San Rafael, and they took him on a trial basis. The teachers there acknowledged that he was doing the work of an average 4 or 5-year-old."

They enrolled him in Marin Country Day School at 5, and after one semester he was promoted to the second grade. After that he attended the Independent Learning School in Corte Madera, where work was totally individualized, and by age 8, Patrick was working at the high school level.

"But we were concerned with the whole child, not just with his academic progress," Mrs. Harper said. "We wanted him to have an experience where there would be more interchange of ideas and a chance for interaction with youngsters his own age. We wanted him (and by this time, his brother Michael) to have the advantage of such classes as P.E. and music."

Two years ago, the Harpers enrolled their children at Greenbrae School. "We took the gamble, because we found in Greenbrae Principal Ed Allen a person sympathetic to our problem."

Mrs. Harper became involved in Kentfield School District's effort to find a good educational solution to the problem posed by the Harper children and other gifted students in the district. She ultimately became chairman of a citizens advisory committee task force which recommended the self-contained classroom for a group of the gifted. There are 20 children in the class which opened in September. (Minimum IQ to qualify for the class is 132.)

"I'm very proud of the Kentfield School Board for recognizing that gifted children have special educational needs and that it is acting to meet these needs," she said.

As far as Mrs. Harper knows, Kentfield's program is unique in Marin. A pilot program this year, it will be studied for modification or expansion next year.

While the schools have a large part in educating a gifted child, much of the education as well as decision making falls on the parent.

From the time Patrick began screwing the cap back on the vaseline jar when she was changing his diapers, Mrs. Harper has tried to provide her children with challenging toys and games. She read books to them at an early age, since the children quickly read by themselves, she made trips to the

How can you tell if your child is gifted?

"It's hard to define," according to Clare Harper of Greenbrae. "I feel that I can tell if from a child's eyes: you can just see the wheels going around in there."

But in trying to characterize giftedness she said, most experts in the field agree that a gifted child:

Learns quickly and easily when interested;

Demonstrates the power to learn, retain and apply his learning;

Has a wide interest range, is basically curious;

Has a profound interest in a single area — is an "expert" on some subject of special interest, evidencing a specific aptitude;

Shows intense desire to know and understand;

Exhibits independence in thinking (non-conformist);

Shows initiative in pursuing "outside projects" of his own choosing;

Can be noticeably creative and inventive (originality);

Evidences greater sensitivity and awareness regarding self and others (supersensitivity and perceptiveness);

Tends to be a perfectionist — severely self-critical with high standards of personal achievement and desire to excel.

Mrs. Harper said gifted children often have "a fantastic sense of humor" and they "soak up information like a sponge."

Babysitter Must Be Alert

By KAREN PETERSON
(Fourth of five articles.)

"As a babysitter, you are at a disadvantage from the start. The parents know well the problems and personality of their child and you must try, in a short time, to learn them. Remember, always be alert."

Retired San Rafael Chief of Police Joseph J. Brusatori gave this warning to babysitters in an open letter printed in the police department Crime Prevention Manual. Babysitters, without a doubt, hold a very important position. They are taking it upon themselves to care for a very important person in the lives of parents.

The following are safety tips the manual has outlined for the babysitter:

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Has One Boyfriend; And Now She Must Drop Him, Face Parents

RAP:

My parents wouldn't allow me to date anyone but Jim, the son of their best friends. To get out of the house, mostly, I went with him for 18 months. He was my first and only boyfriend. After a while, he expected sex, and well, it beat staying home. I've never thought of him as anything but an escape. (I'm an A-average student, a little shy, and have never been in trouble).

You'd think, after all the Watergate stuff, I'd heve better sense than to keep "proof" of what I'd done, but like a dummy I had a diary that I thought was well hidden.

Nothing is ever hidden from my mother! She reads my mail, third-degrees friends — anything. So she found my diary and now she's calling me a prostitute. Says a girl should protect her virginity with her life and it's always her fault. Funny — she doesn't even blame Jim. He's the one who said he'd drop me if I didn't do "what every other girl does."

Now I've got three choices: 1. Get married to protect my honor (mom's version) or get away from parents I can't stand (my excuse); 2. Leave home and try to find a job (I'm a high school senior so that would be hard); 3. Break up with Jim and suffocate at home, as my parents won't trust me out of their sight again. They said, "Once more, and I'll go to reform school."

Which? And am I as bad as my folks think? — L.H.

L.H.:

I think your parents "crime" was much worse than yours: They forced you into a situation you weren't able to handle, and now they're blaming you for their mistake.

Also, it's too bad there's no law that gives a child the right of privacy. Your diary and your mail should be off limits to anyone but you!

Which choice?

The first two would only get you in deeper, more permanent trouble; so go with No. 3 and try to make the best of it. — SUE

DEAR L:

School (and perhaps a part-time job) will take you away from home nearly half your waking hours. Concentrate on making friends, and enjoy the companionships you have there.

Keep thinking, "This part of my life is nearly over — I can make my own decisions soon." After all, you've weathered 17 years. Is another final one so difficult?

And don't give up hope of change! Even stone-rigid parents have been know to improve, offered the right impetus. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Is a girl ever absolutely sure she wants to get married? I'm sure I'm in love — at least I thought I was — but the nearer we come to the date, the more chicken I get. Sometimes I look at him and think, "You're giving up your freedom to move around as you please for — what?"

Would you ask your other readers to give me reassurance, or courage, or whatever it takes to really want to walk down that aisle. — FALTERING

DEAR FALTERING:

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Has One Boyfriend; And Now She Must Drop Him, Face Parents

RAP:

My parents wouldn't allow me to date anyone but Jim, the son of their best friends. To get out of the house, mostly, I went with him for 18 months. He was my first and only boyfriend. After a while, he expected sex, and well, it beat staying home. I've never thought of him as anything but an escape. (I'm an A-average student, a little shy, and have never been in trouble).

You'd think, after all the Watergate stuff, I'd heve better sense than to keep "proof" of what I'd done, but like a dummy I had a diary that I thought was well hidden.

Nothing is ever hidden from my mother! She reads my mail, third-degrees friends — anything. So she found my diary and now she's calling me a prostitute. Says a girl should protect her virginity with her life and it's always her fault. Funny — she doesn't even blame Jim. He's the one who said he'd drop me if I didn't do "what every other girl does."

Now I've got three choices: 1. Get married to protect my honor (mom's version) or get away from parents I can't stand (my excuse); 2. Leave home and try to find a job (I'm a high school senior so that would be hard); 3. Break up with Jim and suffocate at home, as my parents won't trust me out of their sight again. They said, "Once more, and I'll go to reform school."

Which? And am I as bad as my folks think? — L.H.

L.H.:

I think your parents "crime" was much worse than yours: They forced you into a situation you weren't able to handle, and now they're blaming you for their mistake.

Also, it's too bad there's no law that gives a child the right of privacy. Your diary and your mail should be off limits to anyone but you!

Which choice?

The first two would only get you in deeper, more permanent trouble; so go with No. 3 and try to make the best of it. — SUE

DEAR L:

School (and perhaps a part-time job) will take you away from home nearly half your waking hours. Concentrate on making friends, and enjoy the companionships you have there.

Keep thinking, "This part of my life is nearly over — I can make my own decisions soon." After all, you've weathered 17 years. Is another final one so difficult?

And don't give up hope of change! Even stone-rigid parents have been know to improve, offered the right impetus. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Is a girl ever absolutely sure she wants to get married? I'm sure I'm in love — at least I thought I was — but the nearer we come to the date, the more chicken I get. Sometimes I look at him and think, "You're giving up your freedom to move around as you please for — what?"

Would you ask your other readers to give me reassurance, or courage, or whatever it takes to really want to walk down that aisle. — FALTERING

DEAR FALTERING:

Somewhere I read a description of true love: "We got married only when we realized we couldn't stand another day of not being married to each other."

It's usually not that intense, especially if you've had a long engagement. But if you're doubtful more than a fifth of the time, you'd better seriously examine your reasons for getting married!

My parents wouldn't allow me to date anyone but Jim, the son of their best friends. To get out of the house, mostly, I went with him for 18 months. He was my first and only boyfriend. After a while, he expected sex, and well, it beat staying home. I've never thought of him as anything but an escape. (I'm an A-average student, a little shy, and have never been in trouble).

You'd think, after all the Watergate stuff, I'd heve better sense than to keep "proof" of what I'd done, but like a dummy I had a diary that I thought was well hidden.

Nothing is ever hidden from my mother! She reads my mail, third-degrees friends — anything. So she found my diary and now she's calling me a prostitute. Says a girl should protect her virginity with her life and it's always her fault. Funny — she doesn't even blame Jim. He's the one who said he'd drop me if I didn't do "what every other girl does."

Now I've got three choices: 1. Get married to protect my honor (mom's version) or get away from parents I can't stand (my excuse); 2. Leave home and try to find a job (I'm a high school senior so that would be hard); 3. Break up with Jim and suffocate at home, as my parents won't trust me out of their sight again. They said, "Once more, and I'll go to reform school."

Which? And am I as bad as my folks think? — L.H.

L.H.:

I think your parents "crime" was much worse than yours: They forced you into a situation you weren't able to handle, and now they're blaming you for their mistake.

Also, it's too bad there's no law that gives a child the right of privacy. Your diary and your mail should be off limits to anyone but you!

Which choice?

The first two would only get you in deeper, more permanent trouble; so go with No. 3 and try to make the best of it. — SUE

DEAR L:

School (and perhaps a part-time job) will take you away from home nearly half your waking hours. Concentrate on making friends, and enjoy the companionships you have there.

Keep thinking, "This part of my life is nearly over — I can make my own decisions soon." After all, you've weathered 17 years. Is another final one so difficult?

And don't give up hope of change! Even stone-rigid parents have been know to improve, offered the right impetus. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Is a girl ever absolutely sure she wants to get married? I'm sure I'm in love — at least I thought I was — but the nearer we come to the date, the more chicken I get. Sometimes I look at him and think, "You're giving up your freedom to move around as you please for — what?"

Would you ask your other readers to give me reassurance, or courage, or whatever it takes to really want to walk down that aisle. — FALTERING

DEAR FALTERING:

Somewhere I read a description of true love: "We got married only when we realized we couldn't stand another day of not being married to each other."

It's usually not that intense, especially if you've had a long engagement. But if you're doubtful more than a fifth of the time, you'd better seriously examine your reasons for getting married!

Comments, readers ? — HELEN AND SUE

Works Well

Stovetop stewing and braising of beef works well for either large pieces or small chunks. Brown beef slowly to develop good color and flavor, season and add vegetables if desired. Then add liquid and cover — a tight fitting lid is most important to hold in the steam needed for tenderizing the beef.

The YMCA of Marin will offer two workshops in speech and drama beginning Monday at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the Y headquarters, 241 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

The workshops, open to young people age 7 to 18, will be conducted by actress Elena Cascales of Sausalito, a member of the Screen Actors Guild and a graduate of the University of California at Irvine.

The workshops will consist of improvisation, pantomime, dance movement and vocal exercises. Miss Cascales stresses that drama offers youth many insights and a means of using the body for self expression.

A freelance writer, she said she hoped to build a repertoire in which children will perform in written as well as original plays. She will encourage children to write their own material.

The workshop classes will run until Nov. 4. Enrollment will be conducted by the Y.

BEATON CANCELS

A.M. To Begin With Acting Duo

Man-and-wife acting team Alexander Scourby and Lori March will be the opening artists in the A.M. series of programs Oct. 18. Their presentation will be titled "It Started With Adam and Eve." Scourby and Miss March are replacing Sir Cecil Beaton as A.M. headliners. Beaton was forced to cancel his American lecture tour because of illness. Readings for the Oct. 18 program have been drawn from the prose and poetry of Mark Twain, Lord Byron, Anton Chekhov, Dorothy Parker, Robert Frost and others, and range from medieval ballads to love poems.

Scourby has acted on Broadway with John Gielgud, Maurice Evans and Uta Hagen and in 1972 appeared with Claire Bloom and Eileen Atkins in "Vivat! Vivat! Regina!" His film credits include "Giant," "The Silver Chalice," "Glory Brigade" and "The Big Heat." On television he has guest starred on "The Defenders" and "The Man From UNCLE" and narrated "The Law and the Prophets," "He Is Risen" and National Geographic specials.

Miss March has appeared in the films "The Chalk Garden" and "Cyrano de Bergerac." For the past five years she has played the role of Valerie Ames in "The Secret Storm" on television.

Other programs on the A.M. series are Nov. 15, Irene Kampen, "Life Without George," Jan. 17, Mme. Rosamond Bernier, "Picasso," Feb. 14, Nancy Dickerson, "Washington, Politics and Parties," and April 18, Joe Callaway, "Lincoln Speaks Today."

All programs will be at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 10:30 a.m. Season memberships are available at the Marin Box Office.

Classes will beheld at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays for two weeks. If there is enough interest it will continue for five weeks.

Included in the classes will be a study of masculine and feminine elements as they are rendered in kathak. Mathematical compositions are used to form dance patterns. Classical mime and gesture will also be explored.

Registration can be made at Women's Way, 412 Red Hill Avenue in San Anselmo.

Plans drama workshops

Marin YMCA To Give Drama Workshops

The YMCA of Marin will offer two workshops in speech and drama beginning Monday at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the Y headquarters, 241 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

The workshops, open to young people age 7 to 18, will be conducted by actress Elena Cascales of Sausalito, a member of the Screen Actors Guild and a graduate of the University of California at Irvine.

The workshops will consist of improvisation, pantomime, dance movement and vocal exercises. Miss Cascales stresses that drama offers youth many insights and a means of using the body for self expression.

A freelance writer, she said she hoped to build a repertoire in which children will perform in written as well as original plays. She will encourage children to write their own material.

The workshop classes will run until Nov. 4. Enrollment will be conducted by the Y.

Plant Party Scheduled

A plant party is scheduled Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Bank of Marin in San Rafael to benefit Birthright of Marin.

Carole Farris of Fairfax and Robin Klapperich of Woodacre, experts in the raising of houseplants, will conduct the party, which is open to the public without charge.

The two women, who give the parties under the title Party Plants of Marin, will discuss the "feeding, lighting and loving" of houseplants. They will offer a variety of plants — ferns, Swedish ivies, piggybacks, wandering Jews — as well as macrame hangers, misters and other accessories.

Proceeds from the sale of plants and paraphernalia will go to Birthright. Mmes. Farris and Klapperich will donate their time.

Birthright is an emergency pregnancy counseling service, stressing alternatives to abortion. It maintains a wide range of free services to women who choose to have their babies.

BEATON CANCELS

A.M. To Begin With Acting Duo

Man-and-wife acting team Alexander Scourby and Lori March will be the opening artists in the A.M. series of programs Oct. 18. Their presentation will be titled "It Started With Adam and Eve." Scourby and Miss March are replacing Sir Cecil Beaton as A.M. headliners. Beaton was forced to cancel his American lecture tour because of illness. Readings for the Oct. 18 program have been drawn from the prose and poetry of Mark Twain, Lord Byron, Anton Chekhov, Dorothy Parker, Robert Frost and others, and range from medieval ballads to love poems.

Scourby has acted on Broadway with John Gielgud, Maurice Evans and Uta Hagen and in 1972 appeared with Claire Bloom and Eileen Atkins in "Vivat! Vivat! Regina!" His film credits include "Giant," "The Silver Chalice," "Glory Brigade" and "The Big Heat." All programs will be at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 10:30 a.m. Season memberships are available at the Marin Box Office.

Classes will beheld at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays for two weeks. If there is enough interest it will continue for five weeks.

Included in the classes will be a study of masculine and feminine elements as they are rendered in kathak. Mathematical compositions are used to form dance patterns. Classical mime and gesture will also be explored.

Registration can be made at Women's Way, 412 Red Hill Avenue in San Anselmo.

Convention Lures Eight

Eight members of the Jolly Rogers Chapter of Children's Home Society will attend the CHS Auxiliary convention Oct. 10 and 11 at the Del Monte Hyatt House in Monterey.

Cigarette Campaigns Combat Smoking By Youngsters

They do it with peers on the playground in the school or at some restroom fun place. By the time they are 9 a lot of boys and girls have tried smoking. Some are already "regular users" of cigarettes.

Some confirmed 9 year old smokers already adopt the cigarette manipulation habits of adult smokers, said Helen Jones, of the American Lung Association. She said it tore her apart from head to toe to see a little kid with a cigarette parked behind an ear.

Miss Jones is one of many health workers whose agencies are engaged in a big crusade to snuff out smoking among kids. Or see that it never starts.

The American Lung Association, American Cancer Society and the Public Health Service are the big forces in the antismoking campaign aimed at the little kids and teen-agers.

The health detectives are trying to convince the young Americans that what's printed on every pack of cigarettes is true.

To wit:

"WARNING: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Smoking Is Dangerous To Your Health."

But the campaigns are not just antismoking. They play up the advantages of developing a healthful lifestyle.

Comic books, for grade and junior high school students, tell the antismoking story in a way that's palatable to the youngsters. Movies, television commercials, pamphlets with read-to stories for pre-school children, and other materials rain down the antismoking messge.

The Public Health Service offers a Teen-Age Self Test for Smoking.

That one, new, is available free from the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, Bethesda, Md. 20016.

The youngsters are tested on effects of smoking on health, on nonsmokers' rights, on the positive effects of smoking, on the manufactured reasons for smoking.

The American Cancer Society comic book "Where There's Smoke" has been given to nearly 10 million. It's newest little pamphlet — Huff 'N' Puff — is for preschool children. It's about the three pigs and the big bad wolf. The wolf gets in trouble with his smoking.

These materials and others are available free from the American Cancer Society, 219 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

"No Smoking — Lungs at Work" is a free children's pamphlet from the American Lung Association, 1740 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019.

That Christmas Seal agency's current teen-centered antismoking programs have at least two highlights.

One is the use of high school volunteers to talk to grade school children about smoking and health. Teen-age volunteers in Virginia, Florida, California and several other states are involved in this work.

The other is a direct appeal to teens themselves, and involves many activities. Among the more interesting are those that are also linked to the movement for the "rights of the nonsmokers."

In the state of Washington, for example, persons who expressed an interest in nonsmokers rights were asked to volunteer for specific activities, including speaking to high school students about smoking.

Young adults, specially, are sought for and interested in this activity.

Along another line is an event known as the "unsmokers" concert. The Chicago Lung Association last year sponsored an unsmokers' rock concert.

More than 2,000 attended. The concert included a deejay — Gerry Arens of WVVX — who quit on the air and persuaded 300 young people to quit with him, according to Margie Gillis of the Chicago Lung Association.

The American Lung Association hopes to reduce the number of teen-age smokers by aiming special messages at preschool and elementary school children.

Under development are animated television film spots for use during children's television programs, plus a pamphlet for kids aged six to 12 for use in connection with this program.

The major idea: convince the very young children that smoking is to be avoided. But that's not all.

As Miss Jones put it:

"We expect the children themselves to put pressure on older brothers and sisters and parents."

Teen-age Smoking is a bummer.

Trophies Awarded In Baby Beauty Pageant

Crowns and trophies went to a number of Marin children last weekend in the final judging of a baby beauty pageant sponsored by the Novato Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose.

Christie Rhoades, age 7 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Rhoades of San Rafael, was named supreme queen and 3-year-old Andrew MacKay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Mackay of Ignacio, wore the crown of supreme king in the event, held at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Two-year-old Joyce Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al J. Jordan of Novato, was named supreme princess. Richard Nelson, 5 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald J. Nelson of San Rafael, reigned as supreme prince.

Health and beauty winners were Tirkinya Johnson, age 10 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson of Hamilton Air Force Base, and Eric Worrell, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Worrell of Novato.

The supreme king and queen and court were chosen on the basis of health, beauty and number of votes cast. Proceeds from the voting went to Moose Lodge charitable homes in Illinois.

Willis Frey, secretary of the local lodge, announced the winners.

Many permanent press fabrics and synthetic knits need more moisture than a steam iron provides in pressing, reports United Press International. For extra moisture, use a dampened press cloth.

Michael E. London Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Don L. Woodside of Redwood City announce the engagement of their daughter Catherine to Michael E. London of Kihei, Maui, Hawaii, a graduate of Marin Catholic High School.

Planned Parenthood Unit Expands To Serve Adults

Planned Parenthood of Marin has expanded its birth control services to include adults in addition to those under the age of 18.

The Agency discontinued its birth control services to women 18 and over in 1970 because it was duplicating a service offered by the County of Marin.

The move to resume the services was begun because the agency wants to serve all women, according to Mary Buck, education director. The agency also is receiving government grants that forbid discrimination, she said.

Adult medical session will be held in the mornings, by appointment, and a short educational session will be required of all women new to birth control.

Planned Parenthood medical services include complete pelvic examinations, pap smears, breast examinations and other procedures related to the birth control method used. Fees are charged on a sliding scale.

The program of pregnancy testing and counseling for women of all ages will be continued.

Cigarette Campaigns Combat Smoking By Youngsters

They do it with peers on the playground in the school or at some restroom fun place. By the time they are 9 a lot of boys and girls have tried smoking. Some are already "regular users" of cigarettes.

Some confirmed 9 year old smokers already adopt the cigarette manipulation habits of adult smokers, said Helen Jones, of the American Lung Association. She said it tore her apart from head to toe to see a little kid with a cigarette parked behind an ear.

Miss Jones is one of many health workers whose agencies are engaged in a big crusade to snuff out smoking among kids. Or see that it never starts.

The American Lung Association, American Cancer Society and the Public Health Service are the big forces in the antismoking campaign aimed at the little kids and teen-agers.

The health detectives are trying to convince the young Americans that what's printed on every pack of cigarettes is true.

To wit:

"WARNING: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Smoking Is Dangerous To Your Health."

But the campaigns are not just antismoking. They play up the advantages of developing a healthful lifestyle.

Comic books, for grade and junior high school students, tell the antismoking story in a way that's palatable to the youngsters. Movies, television commercials, pamphlets with read-to stories for pre-school children, and other materials rain down the antismoking messge.

The Public Health Service offers a Teen-Age Self Test for Smoking.

That one, new, is available free from the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, Bethesda, Md. 20016.

The youngsters are tested on effects of smoking on health, on nonsmokers' rights, on the positive effects of smoking, on the manufactured reasons for smoking.

The American Cancer Society comic book "Where There's Smoke" has been given to nearly 10 million. It's newest little pamphlet — Huff 'N' Puff — is for preschool children. It's about the three pigs and the big bad wolf. The wolf gets in trouble with his smoking.

These materials and others are available free from the American Cancer Society, 219 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

"No Smoking — Lungs at Work" is a free children's pamphlet from the American Lung Association, 1740 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019.

That Christmas Seal agency's current teen-centered antismoking programs have at least two highlights.

One is the use of high school volunteers to talk to grade school children about smoking and health. Teen-age volunteers in Virginia, Florida, California and several other states are involved in this work.

The other is a direct appeal to teens themselves, and involves many activities. Among the more interesting are those that are also linked to the movement for the "rights of the nonsmokers."

In the state of Washington, for example, persons who expressed an interest in nonsmokers rights were asked to volunteer for specific activities, including speaking to high school students about smoking.

Young adults, specially, are sought for and interested in this activity.

Along another line is an event known as the "unsmokers" concert. The Chicago Lung Association last year sponsored an unsmokers' rock concert.

More than 2,000 attended. The concert included a deejay — Gerry Arens of WVVX — who quit on the air and persuaded 300 young people to quit with him, according to Margie Gillis of the Chicago Lung Association.

The American Lung Association hopes to reduce the number of teen-age smokers by aiming special messages at preschool and elementary school children.

Under development are animated television film spots for use during children's television programs, plus a pamphlet for kids aged six to 12 for use in connection with this program.

The major idea: convince the very young children that smoking is to be avoided. But that's not all.

As Miss Jones put it:

"We expect the children themselves to put pressure on older brothers and sisters and parents."

Teen-age Smoking is a bummer.

Michael E. London Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Don L. Woodside of Redwood City announce the engagement of their daughter Catherine to Michael E. London of Kihei, Maui, Hawaii, a graduate of Marin Catholic High School.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mel London of Greenbrae.

The future bride is the sister of Mark, Ellen, Matthew and Donna Woodside, all of Redwood City, and the granddaughter of Laura Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Woodside of San Francisco. She is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Belmont and Canada College in Redwood City. Catherine is a stewardess for Western Airlines.

Michael is the brother of Patrick and Laura London and the grandson of Vera Criez of Seattle, Wash. After graduating from Marin Catholic and the University of Santa Clara, he received a master's degree in civil engineering from Stanford University. He is employed by Swinerton and Walberg Co. in Kihei.

The couple plans to be married in April in Menlo Park.

Planned Parenthood Unit Expands To Serve Adults

Planned Parenthood of Marin has expanded its birth control services to include adults in addition to those under the age of 18.

The Agency discontinued its birth control services to women 18 and over in 1970 because it was duplicating a service offered by the County of Marin.

The move to resume the services was begun because the agency wants to serve all women, according to Mary Buck, education director. The agency also is receiving government grants that forbid discrimination, she said.

Adult medical session will be held in the mornings, by appointment, and a short educational session will be required of all women new to birth control.

Planned Parenthood medical services include complete pelvic examinations, pap smears, breast examinations and other procedures related to the birth control method used. Fees are charged on a sliding scale.

Gifted Children Require Unique Attitudes, Ideas

library an important part of their routine.

"But I had to remember always they were children, with the needs of children. While we were trying to meet their intellectual needs, we were simultaneously trying to treat them as the little boys that they were.

"All along the way, we have had to help them cope with the frustrations of being on different physical and intellectual levels. There were things they wanted to do intellectually that they simply could not do physically. Patrick, for instance, is convinced he can drive a car right now."

The Harpers have discussed their giftedness with the children. "We've explained to them that different people have different types of gifts. Some people are gifted in acting, some in music. They are gifted in the ability to think. We tell them they have a responsibility to use this gift, hopefully to help other people."

Mrs. Harper said some parents treat their gifted children "as though they were in awe of them.

"We certainly do not. After all, while we as their parents may not have the intellectual capacities that they have, we have experience to offer them." Both parents are doctors, Mrs. Harper a radiologist who works part time in San Francisco, her husband, an anesthesiologist with a practice in Marin. Both received college scholarships.

The children themselves have always seemed happy, Mrs. Harper said. Both boys play soccer and tennis, Patrick also plays in a basketball league. "Patrick always tended to play with children who are older," she said.

Michael, she said, is very sociable, Patrick a bit more reserved. Had the two of them not been identified as gifted, she feels Patrick might have developed into a discipline problem (because he tends to be nonconformist) and Michael, because he is undemanding, might merely have turned off to learning that was without challenge.

"If we do not provide these youngsters with a challenge, we are inviting them to be dropouts by high school.

"I firmly believe that the gifted are a resource with something to offer to society, particularly if they have been educated to their full potential."

Many a gifted child's parents probably will start by taking the child to a psychiatrist, Mrs. Harper said: "They know his behavior is different, and they think something is wrong."

Once giftedness has been established, she said, there is often another problem: school officials tend to turn off the parent who tells them a child is exceptional. "They are used to having every parent tell them the same thing." Precious time is lost until the school makes the same discovery.

Parents also have the problem of explaining a child's differentness to him, and giving him self acceptance.

Mrs. Harper recommended that parents join the Marin Association for Gifted Children, of which she is a former board member. "The first time I went to a meeting, I heard someone lecture about a typical gifted child who was non-conformist, perfectionist, and other things I had always thought were undesirable behavior — and I thought, 'That's my child!' It was tremendously reassuring."

Parents of gifted children receive information and give each other mutual support in the group, she said.

Mrs. Harper is chairman of the parent representation committee of the California Association for the Gifted, and is regional director of California Parents for the Gifted.

As one who has involved herself with giftedness for years, she has developed a credo: "We should not be concerned about whether our children turn out to be Albert Einsteins 10 years from now. I'm not going to worry as long as I can provide them an opportunity to learn about themselves.

"My biggest job is to help our children learn to accept themselves and other people."

Depots Set Up For P-TA Items

Depots have been set up in San Rafael to receive merchandise to be sold at the Santa Venetia Middle School Parent-Teacher Association flea market to be held Oct. 19.

Persons with items to donate can leave them at the homes of Lauretta Klarkowski, 955 Adrian Way; Marion Rossi, 161 Robinhood Drive; Eda Pell, 59 Dorian Way; Joan Nebel, 31 Indian Road; Pat Moezzi, 10 Portola Avenue, and Betty Sterner, 205 Corrillo Drive.

The P-TA is seeking toys, sporting goods, books, records, clothing, furniture, housewares, jewelry and other rummage items.

GAYLA R. GARGIULO
Engaged

Miss Gargiulo To Be Married In February

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Gargiulo of Novato are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Gayla Rose to Alan Michael Probert of Mill Valley.

Gayla is the sister of Ellen Gillen of Novato and the granddaughter of Anna Hicks of Sacramento. She was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin, where she received an associate of arts degree in music and liberal arts. She is employed at Ross Stores, Inc., in Novato.

Alan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Probert of San Anselmo. He is the brother of Mark and Wendy Probert and the grandson of Shirley Probert of Greenbrae and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Durham of San Rafael. The future bridegroom was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin. He is employed at Payless Super Drug Stores in San Rafael.

The couple plans to be married in February.

library an important part of their routine.

"But I had to remember always they were children, with the needs of children. While we were trying to meet their intellectual needs, we were simultaneously trying to treat them as the little boys that they were.

"All along the way, we have had to help them cope with the frustrations of being on different physical and intellectual levels. There were things they wanted to do intellectually that they simply could not do physically. Patrick, for instance, is convinced he can drive a car right now."

The Harpers have discussed their giftedness with the children. "We've explained to them that different people have different types of gifts. Some people are gifted in acting, some in music. They are gifted in the ability to think. We tell them they have a responsibility to use this gift, hopefully to help other people."

Mrs. Harper said some parents treat their gifted children "as though they were in awe of them.

"We certainly do not. After all, while we as their parents may not have the intellectual capacities that they have, we have experience to offer them." Both parents are doctors, Mrs. Harper a radiologist who works part time in San Francisco, her husband, an anesthesiologist with a practice in Marin. Both received college scholarships.

The children themselves have always seemed happy, Mrs. Harper said. Both boys play soccer and tennis, Patrick also plays in a basketball league. "Patrick always tended to play with children who are older," she said.

Michael, she said, is very sociable, Patrick a bit more reserved. Had the two of them not been identified as gifted, she feels Patrick might have developed into a discipline problem (because he tends to be nonconformist) and Michael, because he is undemanding, might merely have turned off to learning that was without challenge.

"If we do not provide these youngsters with a challenge, we are inviting them to be dropouts by high school.

"I firmly believe that the gifted are a resource with something to offer to society, particularly if they have been educated to their full potential."

Many a gifted child's parents probably will start by taking the child to a psychiatrist, Mrs. Harper said: "They know his behavior is different, and they think something is wrong."

Once giftedness has been established, she said, there is often another problem: school officials tend to turn off the parent who tells them a child is exceptional. "They are used to having every parent tell them the same thing." Precious time is lost until the school makes the same discovery.

Parents also have the problem of explaining a child's differentness to him, and giving him self acceptance.

Mrs. Harper recommended that parents join the Marin Association for Gifted Children, of which she is a former board member. "The first time I went to a meeting, I heard someone lecture about a typical gifted child who was non-conformist, perfectionist, and other things I had always thought were undesirable behavior — and I thought, 'That's my child!' It was tremendously reassuring."

Parents of gifted children receive information and give each other mutual support in the group, she said.

Mrs. Harper is chairman of the parent representation committee of the California Association for the Gifted, and is regional director of California Parents for the Gifted.

As one who has involved herself with giftedness for years, she has developed a credo: "We should not be concerned about whether our children turn out to be Albert Einsteins 10 years from now. I'm not going to worry as long as I can provide them an opportunity to learn about themselves.

"My biggest job is to help our children learn to accept themselves and other people."

Energy Savers Would Benefit In New Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering energy conservation measures that include heavy taxes for excessive use of gasoline, electricity, natural gas and other fuels.

The measures generally would provide tax relief for energy-thrifty Americans with incomes of $15,000 or less, government officials said.

One of the proposals, a "refundable fee" of 20 to 30 cents per gallon of gasoline, for motorists who drive less, drew an angry public response yesterday.

"The switchboard was jammed all day," said a spokesman for the Federal Energy Administration. "People were calling us and their congressmen to oppose it."

Other proposals under consideration are:

Excessive use surcharges if consumers use more natural gas and electricity than they did the previous year.

A tax credit for homeowners of up to 40 per cent of the amount spent for insulation, storm windows and other energy conserving expenditures.

Legislation to require large energy consumers to develop conservation programs and follow them. Voluntary projects sponsored by the Commerce Department last winter generally failed, one FEA official said.

The proposed "refundable fee" on gasoline was disclosed by FEA Administrator John Sawhill in Washington and Deputy FEA Administrator Roger Sant in San Francisco.

Under the Sawhill plan, which FEA officials said has "circulated at the highest levels in the White House," motorists would pay what amounts to a tax of 20 to 30 cents per gallon when they buy gasoline.

The government then would give each motorist $100 back each year. It would be paid to them through their employers, at the rate of $2 per week added to their paychecks.

With a 20 cent tax, a person who drives 10,000 miles a year in a car that gets 20 miles per gallon would break even, paying $100 in tax and getting $100 back.

If he drove less or his car was more efficient he would make money. If he drove more, with his car gulping gas, he would lose money.

Thus Americans would have incentive to save gasoline. According to one version of the plan, even Americans who do not drive at all would get $100, providing the biggest incentive of all to those who walk.

Reacting to earlier reports of a gasoline tax, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said: "Let's start rolling back the prices for gasoline before we start new taxes."

George M. Keller, vice chairman of Standard Oil of California, said the tax might reduce consumption but would do nothing to increase supplies.

Today is Thursday, Oct. 3, the 276th day of 1974 with 89 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Emily Post, American author and arbiter of etiquette, was born Oct. 3, 1873.

On this day in history:

In 1922, Mrs. Rebecca Felton, a Georgia Democrat, became the first woman to serve in the United States Senate.

In 1939, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini launched an attack on Ethiopia.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev refused to meet President Eisenhower in Paris unless the United States admitted U.S. spy plane flights over Russia were acts of aggression. Eisenhower refused.

In 1972, President Nixon and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko signed strategic arms limitation agreements putting the first restrictions on the two countries' nuclear weapons.

A thought for the day: German philosopher Arthur Schopenhauer said, "The fundamental fault of the female character is that it has no sense of justice."

JACK OPENS

West opened the jack of spades, and South won in his hand with the ace. The idea was to keep dummy's king of spades as an entry to the diamonds.

South planned to take the ace and queen of diamonds and then lead a low club. He would land back in dummy with the king of spades, and would lead out the king of diamonds. If the suit failed to break, he would try for an additional club trick.

This plan was quite reasonable, but it would have failed. The diamonds would break badly and the opponents would take two spades, two clubs and a diamond.

RESCUE BY OPPONENT

In the nick of time, however, East came to declarer's rescue. When South led the ace of diamonds. East dropped the nine. This was a disastrous play.

East intended to play his lower diamond next, thus telling his partner all about the doubleton. This information was as useless to West as the exact distance in inches from New York to Timbuktu.

The appearance of the nine of diamonds changed South's plan of play. He could now afford to overtake the queen of diamonds with dummy's king and return the ten of diamonds to force out the jack. This gave him four sure diamond tricks, assuring the game and rubber.

Energy Savers Would Benefit In New Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering energy conservation measures that include heavy taxes for excessive use of gasoline, electricity, natural gas and other fuels.

The measures generally would provide tax relief for energy-thrifty Americans with incomes of $15,000 or less, government officials said.

One of the proposals, a "refundable fee" of 20 to 30 cents per gallon of gasoline, for motorists who drive less, drew an angry public response yesterday.

"The switchboard was jammed all day," said a spokesman for the Federal Energy Administration. "People were calling us and their congressmen to oppose it."

Other proposals under consideration are:

Excessive use surcharges if consumers use more natural gas and electricity than they did the previous year.

A tax credit for homeowners of up to 40 per cent of the amount spent for insulation, storm windows and other energy conserving expenditures.

Legislation to require large energy consumers to develop conservation programs and follow them. Voluntary projects sponsored by the Commerce Department last winter generally failed, one FEA official said.

The proposed "refundable fee" on gasoline was disclosed by FEA Administrator John Sawhill in Washington and Deputy FEA Administrator Roger Sant in San Francisco.

Under the Sawhill plan, which FEA officials said has "circulated at the highest levels in the White House," motorists would pay what amounts to a tax of 20 to 30 cents per gallon when they buy gasoline.

The government then would give each motorist $100 back each year. It would be paid to them through their employers, at the rate of $2 per week added to their paychecks.

With a 20 cent tax, a person who drives 10,000 miles a year in a car that gets 20 miles per gallon would break even, paying $100 in tax and getting $100 back.

If he drove less or his car was more efficient he would make money. If he drove more, with his car gulping gas, he would lose money.

Thus Americans would have incentive to save gasoline. According to one version of the plan, even Americans who do not drive at all would get $100, providing the biggest incentive of all to those who walk.

Reacting to earlier reports of a gasoline tax, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said: "Let's start rolling back the prices for gasoline before we start new taxes."

George M. Keller, vice chairman of Standard Oil of California, said the tax might reduce consumption but would do nothing to increase supplies.

Parks Aide Increased To Full Time

The Larkspur City Council last night agreed to pay for a full-time supervisor for the city parks and recreation program, effective Oct. 1.

In a 4-1 vote, with William G. Fleckles dissenting, the council decided to hire its part-time recreation supervisor Sheldon Zatkin through next June 30 at a salary of $7,887, as recommended by the city park and recreation commission.

The money will come from a combination of unused secretarial and intern funds and fees from last summer's recreation classes.

Park and recreation commission chairman Gil Dubuc told the council that without a supervisor there was no one to oversee spending of the $227,628 parks and recreation budget, to develop and coordinate a year-around recreation program or to supervise development of the city's expanding parks program.

In dissenting, Councilman Fleckles said that he wasn't sure that other city departments couldn't do much of this work.

The council also decided to plan and run its 1975 summer recreation program jointly with Corte Madera instead of contracting out the program to Corte Madera as it did last summer. This, it felt, would give Larkspur control over its portion of the program and would require more of Zatkin's time.

Zatkin was hired last March for 12 hours a week, increased to full-time for the summer months.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

"That's Entertainment" — Juicy compilation of excerpts from the best old MGM musicals gives a lift to the spirit and a true insight into what entertainment is meant to be. A bit sophisticated for children under 10.

"What's Up Doc" — A fast-moving, nutty, slapstick comedy set in San Francisco starring Barbara Streisand.

ADULTS & TEENS

"Harold and Maude" — Black comedy, hard to swallow. For those who can laugh at funerals, old age, suicide and mental disturbance. A heavy-handed film about an old woman who teaches a young man how to enjoy life.

"Juggernaut" — A sea disaster melodrama on a luxury liner. Except for a married woman having an affair with the captain, characters are poorly drawn. Not too exciting. (Product Digest)

"King of Hearts" — An amusing French satire posing the question: Is it the lunatics in possession of a French village or armies that make war.

"The Mechanic" — Slick, suspenseful crime story about a man who executes crimes for the Mafia. Good photography, realistic acting, violence. (For over 14)

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Very entertaining but some sex and violence.

"Blume in Love" — A self-indulgent romance about a divorce lawyer who tries to win back his divorced wife. Nudity, sex, cursing. (Not for youth)

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles of 1937. Good caste and costuming. Brutal violance and nude love scenes.

"The Groove Tube" — In spite of some hilarious moments, this spoof of American TV diet is mostly in poor taste. Excessive nudity, sex, cursing.

"Papillon" — The best-seller about the evils of the old French penal system has been adapted into a long, grim movie, starring a deglamorized Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman — neither enlightening nor entertaining. One homosexual scene, nudity, cursing.

Bill Guarantees Jobs Of Jurors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill guaranteeing the jobs of persons who return to work from service on federal juries.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., was passed by voice vote yesterday after he cited news accounts of two persons on the federal Watergate grand jury and two other jurors in New York who had lost their jobs after they returned from long jury duty.

The bill provides that persons serving on federal juries must be hired by their employers if they return to work within 15 days after their dismissal from jury duty. They must be rehired at the same pay, status and seniority held previously.

Paso Robles-Cambria Highway Opens

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UPI) — A 22-mile highway link between Paso Robles and Cambria was opened yesterday, cutting the driving time a half hour to 45 minutes for visitors to the Hearst Castle from the Central Valley and Northern California.

Highway 46 links Highway 101 and Highway 1 at a cost of $11.8 million. It replaces a winding, 28-mile route.

PG&E Asks Rate Boost

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has proposed boosting its natural gas rates about $151 million a year.

PG&E said yesterday in its petition to the California Public Utilities Commission that the action was needed because of an order by the Canadian Government increasing gas export prices.

The PUC was told the PG&E hike would no more than meet Canada's new price for natural gas.

The rate hike would mean an increase of six cents a day for the average householder.

PG&E said about 40 per cent of its supply for Northern and Central California customers comes from Canada through the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. pipeline.

He Even Missed The Honeymoon

LONDON (UPI) — A judge granted Matthew Williams a divorce yesterday on the grounds of irretrievable breakdown of his marriage. Williams testified his wife, Elvira, walked out on their wedding day 18 years ago and he has not heard from her since.

Parks Aide Increased To Full Time

The Larkspur City Council last night agreed to pay for a full-time supervisor for the city parks and recreation program, effective Oct. 1.

In a 4-1 vote, with William G. Fleckles dissenting, the council decided to hire its part-time recreation supervisor Sheldon Zatkin through next June 30 at a salary of $7,887, as recommended by the city park and recreation commission.

The money will come from a combination of unused secretarial and intern funds and fees from last summer's recreation classes.

Park and recreation commission chairman Gil Dubuc told the council that without a supervisor there was no one to oversee spending of the $227,628 parks and recreation budget, to develop and coordinate a year-around recreation program or to supervise development of the city's expanding parks program.

In dissenting, Councilman Fleckles said that he wasn't sure that other city departments couldn't do much of this work.

The council also decided to plan and run its 1975 summer recreation program jointly with Corte Madera instead of contracting out the program to Corte Madera as it did last summer. This, it felt, would give Larkspur control over its portion of the program and would require more of Zatkin's time.

Zatkin was hired last March for 12 hours a week, increased to full-time for the summer months.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

ORDINANCES — Adopted ordinances to raise business license fees, establish incumbent appointment procedures and lower the speed limit to 15 miles per hour on Madrone Avenue from Magnolia Avenue to Onyx Street.

BUS — Supported concept of commuter bus use of additional lanes between Richardson Bay bridge and Greenbrae interchange and recommended such lanes also be used by car pool autos.

VESTS — Directed staff to consult police department on possible purchase of bullet-proof vests for police.

REVENUE — Instructed city manager to include revenue effects when introducing new ordinances.

Parks Aide Increased To Full Time

The Larkspur City Council last night agreed to pay for a full-time supervisor for the city parks and recreation program, effective Oct. 1.

In a 4-1 vote, with William G. Fleckles dissenting, the council decided to hire its part-time recreation supervisor Sheldon Zatkin through next June 30 at a salary of $7,887, as recommended by the city park and recreation commission.

The money will come from a combination of unused secretarial and intern funds and fees from last summer's recreation classes.

Park and recreation commission chairman Gil Dubuc told the council that without a supervisor there was no one to oversee spending of the $227,628 parks and recreation budget, to develop and coordinate a year-around recreation program or to supervise development of the city's expanding parks program.

In dissenting, Councilman Fleckles said that he wasn't sure that other city departments couldn't do much of this work.

The council also decided to plan and run its 1975 summer recreation program jointly with Corte Madera instead of contracting out the program to Corte Madera as it did last summer. This, it felt, would give Larkspur control over its portion of the program and would require more of Zatkin's time.

Zatkin was hired last March for 12 hours a week, increased to full-time for the summer months.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

ORDINANCES — Adopted ordinances to raise business license fees, establish incumbent appointment procedures and lower the speed limit to 15 miles per hour on Madrone Avenue from Magnolia Avenue to Onyx Street.

EMERGENCY — Endorsed county proposal for 911 emergency service telephone number.

BUS — Supported concept of commuter bus use of additional lanes between Richardson Bay bridge and Greenbrae interchange and recommended such lanes also be used by car pool autos.

VESTS — Directed staff to consult police department on possible purchase of bullet-proof vests for police.

REVENUE — Instructed city manager to include revenue effects when introducing new ordinances.

CLOSED — Sitting as the Parking Authority went into closed session to discuss condemnation litigation.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 16 at city hall.

PG&E Asks Rate Boost

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has proposed boosting its natural gas rates about $151 million a year.

PG&E said yesterday in its petition to the California Public Utilities Commission that the action was needed because of an order by the Canadian Government increasing gas export prices.

The PUC was told the PG&E hike would no more than meet Canada's new price for natural gas.

The rate hike would mean an increase of six cents a day for the average householder.

PG&E said about 40 per cent of its supply for Northern and Central California customers comes from Canada through the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. pipeline.

He Even Missed The Honeymoon

LONDON (UPI) — A judge granted Matthew Williams a divorce yesterday on the grounds of irretrievable breakdown of his marriage. Williams testified his wife, Elvira, walked out on their wedding day 18 years ago and he has not heard from her since.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture & T.V. Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The Council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association Magazine and Parents' Magazine, unless otherwise stated. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Godspell" — A modern musical version of the Gospel with the age-old words portrayed by carefree youth singing to ragtime, jive, waltz and pop music — spirited dancing. (Children over 10)

"That's Entertainment" — Juicy compilation of excerpts from the best old MGM musicals gives a lift to the spirit and a true insight into what entertainment is meant to be. A bit sophisticated for children under 10.

"What's Up Doc" — A fast-moving, nutty, slapstick comedy set in San Francisco starring Barbara Streisand.

ADULTS & TEENS

"Harold and Maude" — Black comedy, hard to swallow. For those who can laugh at funerals, old age, suicide and mental disturbance. A heavy-handed film about an old woman who teaches a young man how to enjoy life.

"Juggernaut" — A sea disaster melodrama on a luxury liner. Except for a married woman having an affair with the captain, characters are poorly drawn. Not too exciting. (Product Digest)

"King of Hearts" — An amusing French satire posing the question: Is it the lunatics in possession of a French village or armies that make war.

"The Mechanic" — Slick, suspenseful crime story about a man who executes crimes for the Mafia. Good photography, realistic acting, violence. (For over 14)

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Very entertaining but some sex and violence.

"Play It Again Sam" — A one-joke comedy about a movie buff. Most of the comedy stems from Woody Allen's constant self-depreciation. Amusing take-offs on old movies. Mature teens.

"When Eight Bells Toll" — Produced in Scotland and England, a James Bond type Royal Navy Officer masquerades as a marine biologist to break a ring hyjacking ships for gold bullion. (Box Office)

BORDER LINE

"The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz" — Well-made but cynical story of ambitious young man from Montreal's Jewish Ghetto — Cursing, sex. (Over 16)

"Cabaret" — Liza Minnelli's dazzling performance in a musical about a decadent time — set in Berlin in the 1930s. Sex and cursing. (For those over 17)

"California Split" — A series of comic episodes showing two men who get their kicks from gambling. Foul language. (Over 17)

"The Sterile Cuckoo" — Liza Minnelli in a romantic comedy drama about two college students and their hot and cold running love affair — A well-acted, and sensitive film.

ADULTS ONLY

"Blume in Love" — A self-indulgent romance about a divorce lawyer who tries to win back his divorced wife. Nudity, sex, cursing. (Not for youth)

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles of 1937. Good caste and costuming. Brutal violance and nude love scenes.

"The Groove Tube" — In spite of some hilarious moments, this spoof of American TV diet is mostly in poor taste. Excessive nudity, sex, cursing.

"Papillon" — The best-seller about the evils of the old French penal system has been adapted into a long, grim movie, starring a deglamorized Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman — neither enlightening nor entertaining. One homosexual scene, nudity, cursing.

Bill Guarantees Jobs Of Jurors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill guaranteeing the jobs of persons who return to work from service on federal juries.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., was passed by voice vote yesterday after he cited news accounts of two persons on the federal Watergate grand jury and two other jurors in New York who had lost their jobs after they returned from long jury duty.

The bill provides that persons serving on federal juries must be hired by their employers if they return to work within 15 days after their dismissal from jury duty. They must be rehired at the same pay, status and seniority held previously.

Paso Robles-Cambria Highway Opens

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UPI) — A 22-mile highway link between Paso Robles and Cambria was opened yesterday, cutting the driving time a half hour to 45 minutes for visitors to the Hearst Castle from the Central Valley and Northern California.

Highway 46 links Highway 101 and Highway 1 at a cost of $11.8 million. It replaces a winding, 28-mile route.

Two Swedes Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Swedish authors Eyvind Johnson and Harry Martinson, both relatively unknown internationally, won the 1974 Nobel Prize for literature today.

The 18-member academy cited Johnson, 74, for "narrative art, far seeing in lands and ages, in the service of freedom." The 70-year-old Martinson's citation was for "writings that catch the dewdrops and reflect the cosmos."

Karl-Ragnar Gierow, secretary of the Academy, said in announcing the selection: "I can tell you that the Academy now has confirmed its decision to award the 1974 Nobel Prize to Eyvind Johnson and Harry Martinson."

There had been speculation since Monday that the two Swedes would get the $123,000 prize and diploma at the Nobel festival here Dec. 10.

Sources close to the academy said earlier this year's winners would be selected so as not to upstage Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, who is expected to come to Stockholm during the awards ceremony to pick up the prize he won in 1970.

Both Johnson and Martinson are members of the Academy. Johnson's best-known work in English is the novel "Return to Ithaca," and Martinson is best known for the novel, "The Road."

Martinson, a former sailor who went to sea at the age of 14, has had only four books translated into English. He became known to a wider audience in 1956 with "Aniara" which was later made into a Swedish opera. Other books in English include "Cape Farewell," and "Flowering Nettles."

During his earlier years, Martinson sailed the high seas for many years as ship's boy, stoker, coal heaver, and cook, tramping for thousands of miles in India, Europe and South America, using his experiences in his writings.

In later years he displayed another side — a preoccupation with nature in all its forms, from the microscopic to the cosmic, with an interest in botany, zoology and physics.

Johnson, who has written 44 books, had had three translated into English. Like Martinson, critics describe him as an outstanding novelist by European standards, robbed of world fame by the not widely read language that is his mother tongue.

"To those who can understand him, he presents what he considers to be essentials: Man's greatness and the fear of his being degraded. Children's games and seriousness. Unhappiness and joy. Despair and consolation. The course of time: to view it with as undistracted a gaze as possible."

The quote is from Johnson's own book, "The Course of Time."

One of his major works was the autobiographical "Novel About Olof," published as a trilogy between 1934-37. Translated into English are "Return to Ithaca," the Odyssey retold as a modern novel, "The Days of his Grace," and "1914" another autobiographical novel published in 1934.

Ancient Skeleton Discovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oldest mammal skeleton found in North America has been discovered in Montana, and scientists say it opens the way to a better understanding of mammals during the age of dinosaurs 100 million years ago.

The bones belonged to a surprisingly large raccoon-sized creature with a long snout and well developed teeth. It preyed on insects and lizards.

"The teeth show that it is an entirely new form of triconodont, of a type unknown anywhere else in the world," said Dr. Farish A. Jenkins Jr., who led the Harvard University expedition this summer into badlands about 40 miles from Billings, Mont. "The skeleton is surprisingly large and robust."

The discovery was announced yesterday by the National Geographic Society, which sponsored the project. Jenkins said the fossil will push back man's knowledge of the "dark ages" of mammalian history by 40 million years.

Jenkins said the new find is 100 to 105 million years old, based on previously dated dinosaur bones found in the same shale and sandstone formation of the geologic cretaceous age.

Older fossil remains of mammals have been found in North American but they were only scattered fragments of jaws and skulls. The rest was missing and Jenkins said, "we had no idea what these triconodonts looked like in terms of a post-cranial skeleton (the skeleton behind the head)."

"It gives us a kind of keystone in which to interpret a lot of less complete specimens," he said in a telephone interview. He said it may take six months to reassemble the bones.

The oldest complete mammal fossils known prior to the new discovery date back to 65 million years ago. The oldest mammal fossil fragments known on earth — found in England and Africa — are about 180 million years old, but Jenkins said very little was known of the first 120 years of mammalian evolution.

The actual discovery was made by Charles R. Schaff, a vertebrate paleontologist at Harvard. Jenkins said the actual site is being kept a secret to discourage amateur fossil hunters. The find was so rare no one believed Schaff when he first reported it.

"I had to keep repeating that I'd found a triconodont skeleton," he said. "They thought I was just kidding."

2 Petalumans Hurt In Crashes

Two Petaluma residents were hospitalized yesterday with injuries received in separate accidents.

Charles Bernard, 22, of 637 Baker Street, was reported in satisfactory condition with skull abrasions and a hand injury at Hillcrest Hospital.

Teresa Stustman, 17, of 200 Seavey Road, was reported in satisfactory condition with facial cuts at the same hospital.

Details of the two accidents were not available at press time.

'Playboy' Rapped By Russ Press

MOSCOW (UPI) — Literaturnaya Gazeta says Playboy magazine is an "especially poisonous branch of bourgeois mass culture."

The newspaper of the Writers Union devoted a half page to the magazine, explaining its origins, philosophy and reasons for its success.

"What we have before us is an especially poisonous branch of bourgeois mass culture which carries out an absolutely naked preaching of militant individualism and amoralism," Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

Playboy is not sold in the Soviet Union.

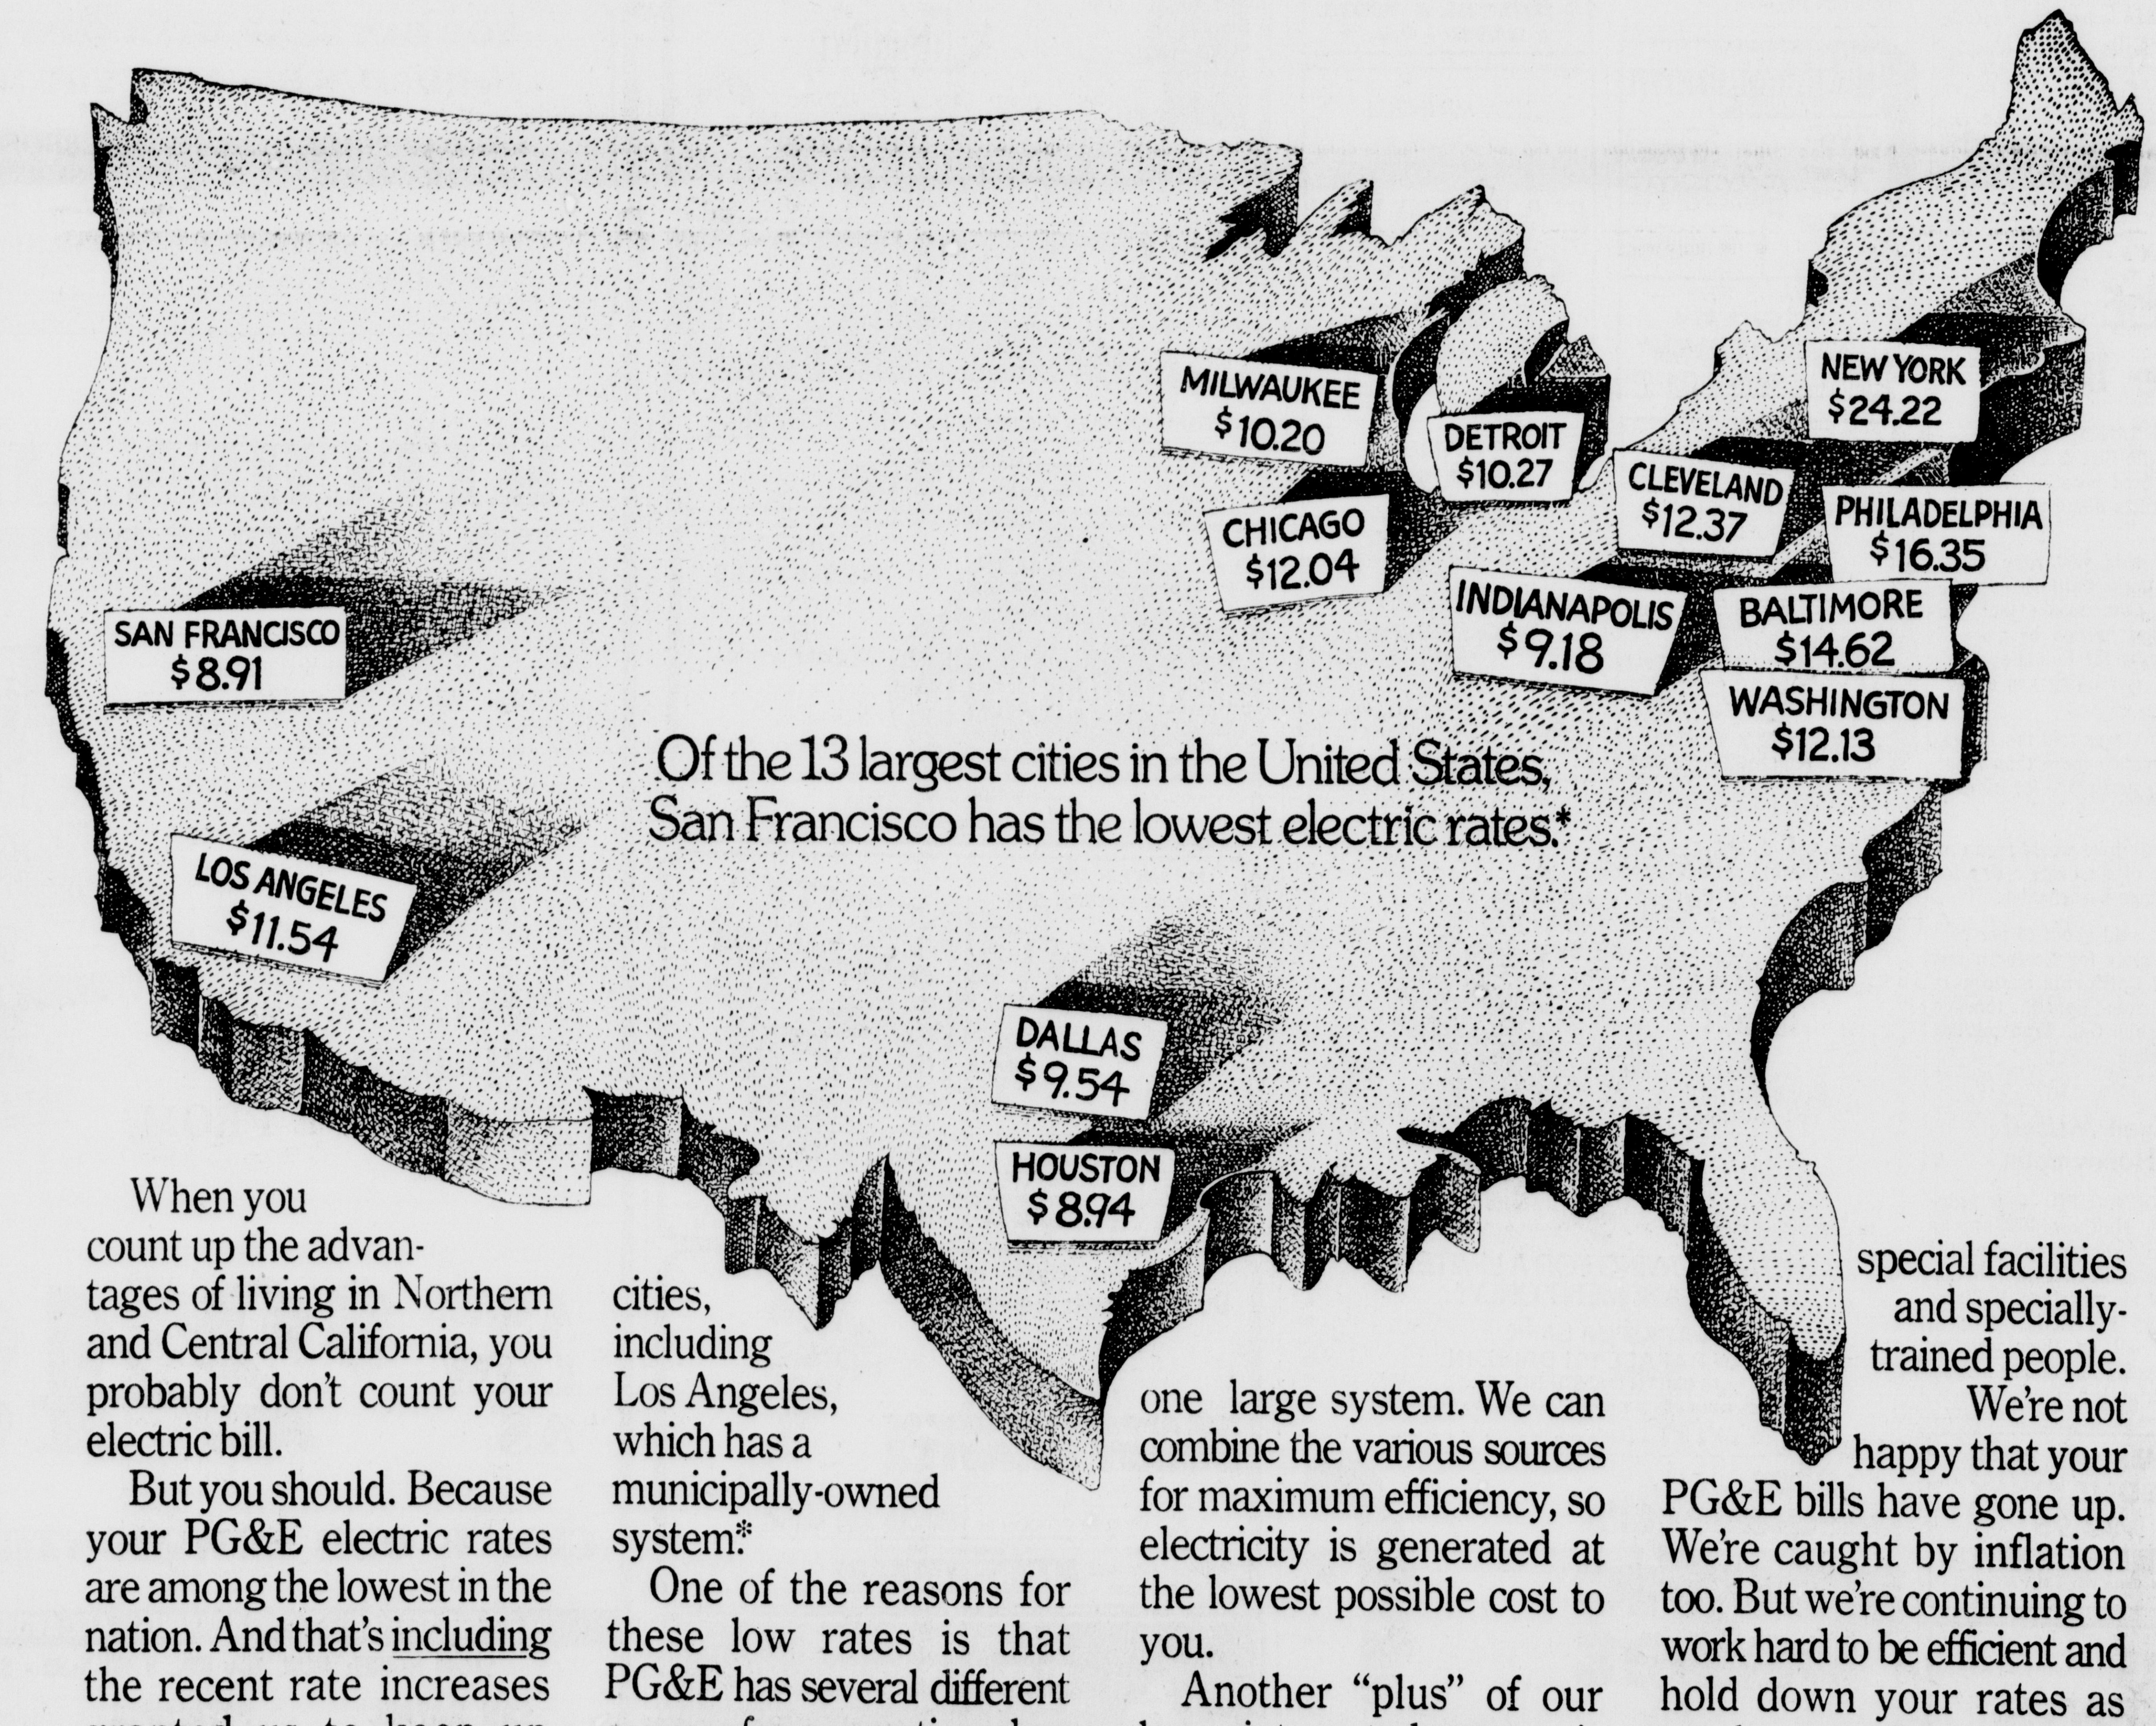
WHAT ARE FAMILIES IN OTHER CITIES PAYING FOR ELECTRICITY?



Of the 13 largest cities in the United States, San Francisco has the lowest electric rates.*

When you count up the advantages of living in Northern and Central California, you probably don't count your electric bill.

But you should. Because your PG&E electric rates are among the lowest in the nation. And that's including the recent rate increases granted us to keep up with rising costs. San Francisco rates, for example, are lowest among the 13 largest cities, including Los Angeles, which has a municipally-owned system.*

One of the reasons for these low rates is that PG&E has several different sources for generating electricity—fossil fuel, hydro, geothermal and nuclear. These are integrated into one large system. We can combine the various sources for maximum efficiency, so electricity is generated at the lowest possible cost to you.

Another "plus" of our large integrated system is reliable service. We are able to make more efficient use of special equipment, special facilities and specially-trained people.

We're not happy that your PG&E bills have gone up. We're caught by inflation too. But we're continuing to work hard to be efficient and hold down your rates as much as possible.

You can help lower your bill, too, by using energy wisely.

*Based on a May 1, 1974 survey of monthly residential electric bills for 300 kilowatt hours, which is typical for San Francisco. Of course, many people use more than 300 kilowatt hours per month, so their bills are higher. But PG&E rates per kilowatt hour used are among the lowest in the nation.

In later years he displayed another side — a preoccupation with nature in all its forms, from the microscopic to the cosmic, with an interest in botany, zoology and physics.

Johnson, who has written 44 books, had had three translated into English. Like Martinson, critics describe him as an outstanding novelist by European standards, robbed of world fame by the not widely read language that is his mother tongue.

"To those who can understand him, he presents what he considers to be essentials: Man's greatness and the fear of his being degraded. Children's games and seriousness. Unhappiness and joy. Despair and consolation. The course of time: to view it with as undistracted a gaze as possible."

The quote is from Johnson's own book, "The Course of Time."

One of his major works was the autobiographical "Novel About Olof," published as a trilogy between 1934-37. Translated into English are "Return to Ithaca," the Odyssey retold as a modern novel, "The Days of his Grace," and "1914" another autobiographical novel published in 1934.

Ancient Skeleton Discovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oldest mammal skeleton found in North America has been discovered in Montana, and scientists say it opens the way to a better understanding of mammals during the age of dinosaurs 100 million years ago.

The bones belonged to a surprisingly large raccoon-sized creature with a long snout and well developed teeth. It preyed on insects and lizards.

"The teeth show that it is an entirely new form of triconodont, of a type unknown anywhere else in the world," said Dr. Farish A. Jenkins Jr., who led the Harvard University expedition this summer into badlands about 40 miles from Billings, Mont. "The skeleton is surprisingly large and robust."

The discovery was announced yesterday by the National Geographic Society, which sponsored the project. Jenkins said the fossil will push back man's knowledge of the "dark ages" of mammalian history by 40 million years.

Jenkins said the new find is 100 to 105 million years old, based on previously dated dinosaur bones found in the same shale and sandstone formation of the geologic cretaceous age.

Older fossil remains of mammals have been found in North American but they were only scattered fragments of jaws and skulls. The rest was missing and Jenkins said, "we had no idea what these triconodonts looked like in terms of a post-cranial skeleton (the skeleton behind the head)."

"It gives us a kind of keystone in which to interpret a lot of less complete specimens," he said in a telephone interview. He said it may take six months to reassemble the bones.

The oldest complete mammal fossils known prior to the new discovery date back to 65 million years ago. The oldest mammal fossil fragments known on earth — found in England and Africa — are about 180 million years old, but Jenkins said very little was known of the first 120 years of mammalian evolution.

The actual discovery was made by Charles R. Schaff, a vertebrate paleontologist at Harvard. Jenkins said the actual site is being kept a secret to discourage amateur fossil hunters. The find was so rare no one believed Schaff when he first reported it.

"I had to keep repeating that I'd found a triconodont skeleton," he said. "They thought I was just kidding."

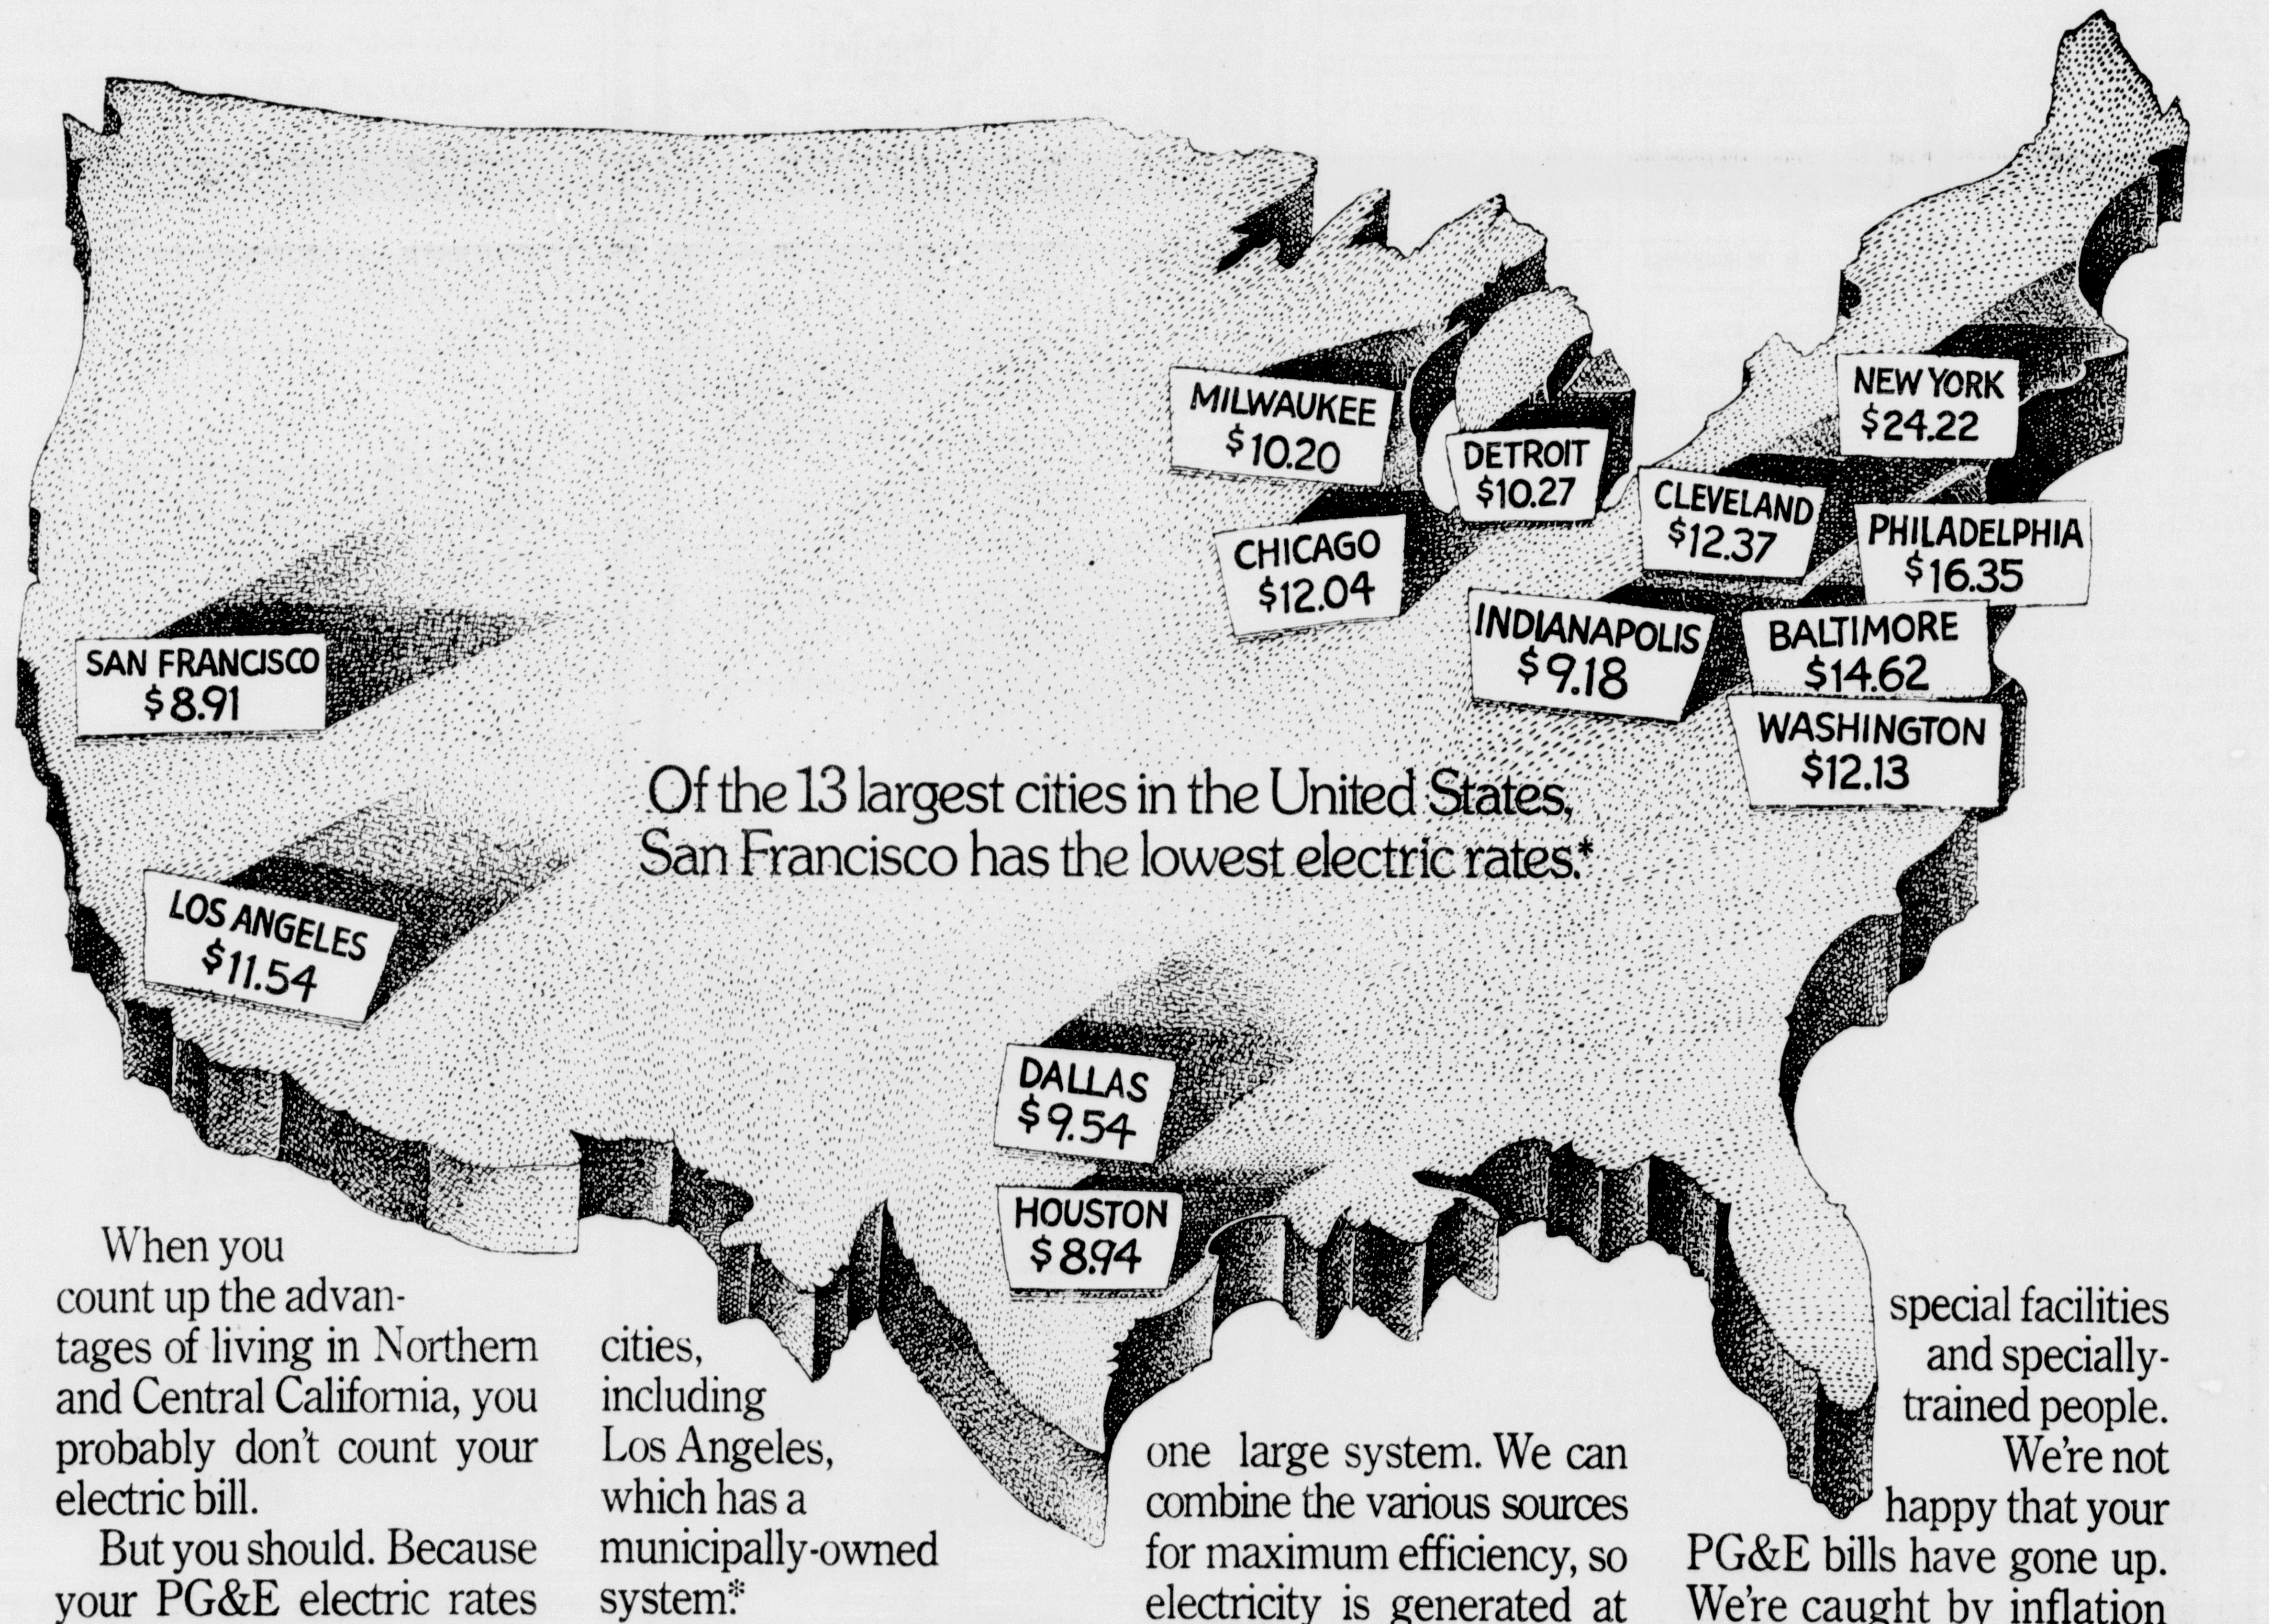
WHAT ARE FAMILIES IN OTHER CITIES PAYING FOR ELECTRICITY?



Of the 13 largest cities in the United States, San Francisco has the lowest electric rates.*

When you count up the advantages of living in Northern and Central California, you probably don't count your electric bill.

But you should. Because your PG&E electric rates are among the lowest in the nation. And that's including the recent rate increases granted us to keep up with rising costs. San Francisco rates, for example, are lowest among the 13 largest cities, including Los Angeles, which has a municipally-owned system.*

One of the reasons for these low rates is that PG&E has several different sources for generating electricity—fossil fuel, hydro, geothermal and nuclear. These are integrated into one large system. We can combine the various sources for maximum efficiency, so electricity is generated at the lowest possible cost to you.

Another "plus" of our large integrated system is reliable service. We are able to make more efficient use of special equipment, special facilities and specially-trained people.

We're not happy that your PG&E bills have gone up. We're caught by inflation too. But we're continuing to work hard to be efficient and hold down your rates as much as possible.

You can help lower your bill, too, by using energy wisely.

Based on a May 1, 1974 survey of monthly residential electric bills for 300 kilowatt hours, which is typical for San Francisco. Of course, many people use more than 300 kilowatt hours per month, so their bills are higher. But PG&E rates per kilowatt hour used are among the lowest in the nation.

Two Swedes Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Swedish authors Eyvind Johnson and Harry Martinson, both relatively unknown internationally, won the 1974 Nobel Prize for literature today.

The 18-member academy cited Johnson, 74, for "narrative art, far seeing in lands and ages, in the service of freedom." The 70-year-old Martinson's citation was for "writings that catch the dewdrops and reflect the cosmos."

Karl-Ragnar Gierow, secretary of the Academy, said in announcing the selection: "I can tell you that the Academy now has confirmed its decision to award the 1974 Nobel Prize to Eyvind Johnson and Harry Martinson."

There had been speculation since Monday that the two Swedes would get the $123,000 prize and diploma at the Nobel festival here Dec. 10.

Sources close to the academy said earlier this year's winners would be selected so as not to upstage Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, who is expected to come to Stockholm during the awards ceremony to pick up the prize he won in 1970.

Both Johnson and Martinson are members of the Academy. Johnson's best-known work in English is the novel "Return to Ithaca," and Martinson is best known for the novel, "The Road."

Martinson, a former sailor who went to sea at the age of 14, has had only four books translated into English. He became known to a wider audience in 1956 with "Aniara" which was later made into a Swedish opera. Other books in English include "Cape Farewell," and "Flowering Nettles."

During his earlier years, Martinson sailed the high seas for many years as ship's boy, stoker, coal heaver, and cook, tramping for thousands of miles in India, Europe and South America, using his experiences in his writings.

In later years he displayed another side — a preoccupation with nature in all its forms, from the microscopic to the cosmic, with an interest in botany, zoology and physics.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Marin Rocking To Decibel's Beat

By REBECCA LARSEN

You've just moved to the suburbs to get away from it all — the roar of traffic, the hubbub of night life, the clank and grind of machinery.

Then one weekend night in your new home, you begin to hear a loud thumping bass beat from a rock band playing in a bar a few blocks away.

That goes on from about 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. From then until three, there is shouting, laughing, screaming and revving of motorcycles and cars as bar patrons head home.

That's the experience that residents living near downtown Mill Valley have described at city council and planning commission meetings.

The desire to control such noise in Marin County seems to be growing as more and more of city life intrudes on the suburbs in the form of cars, bars and heavy machinery.

Just a civic decree prohibiting loud noises is obviously not enough. Figuring out a way to control noise seems to be just about as complex as holding freeway drivers to the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

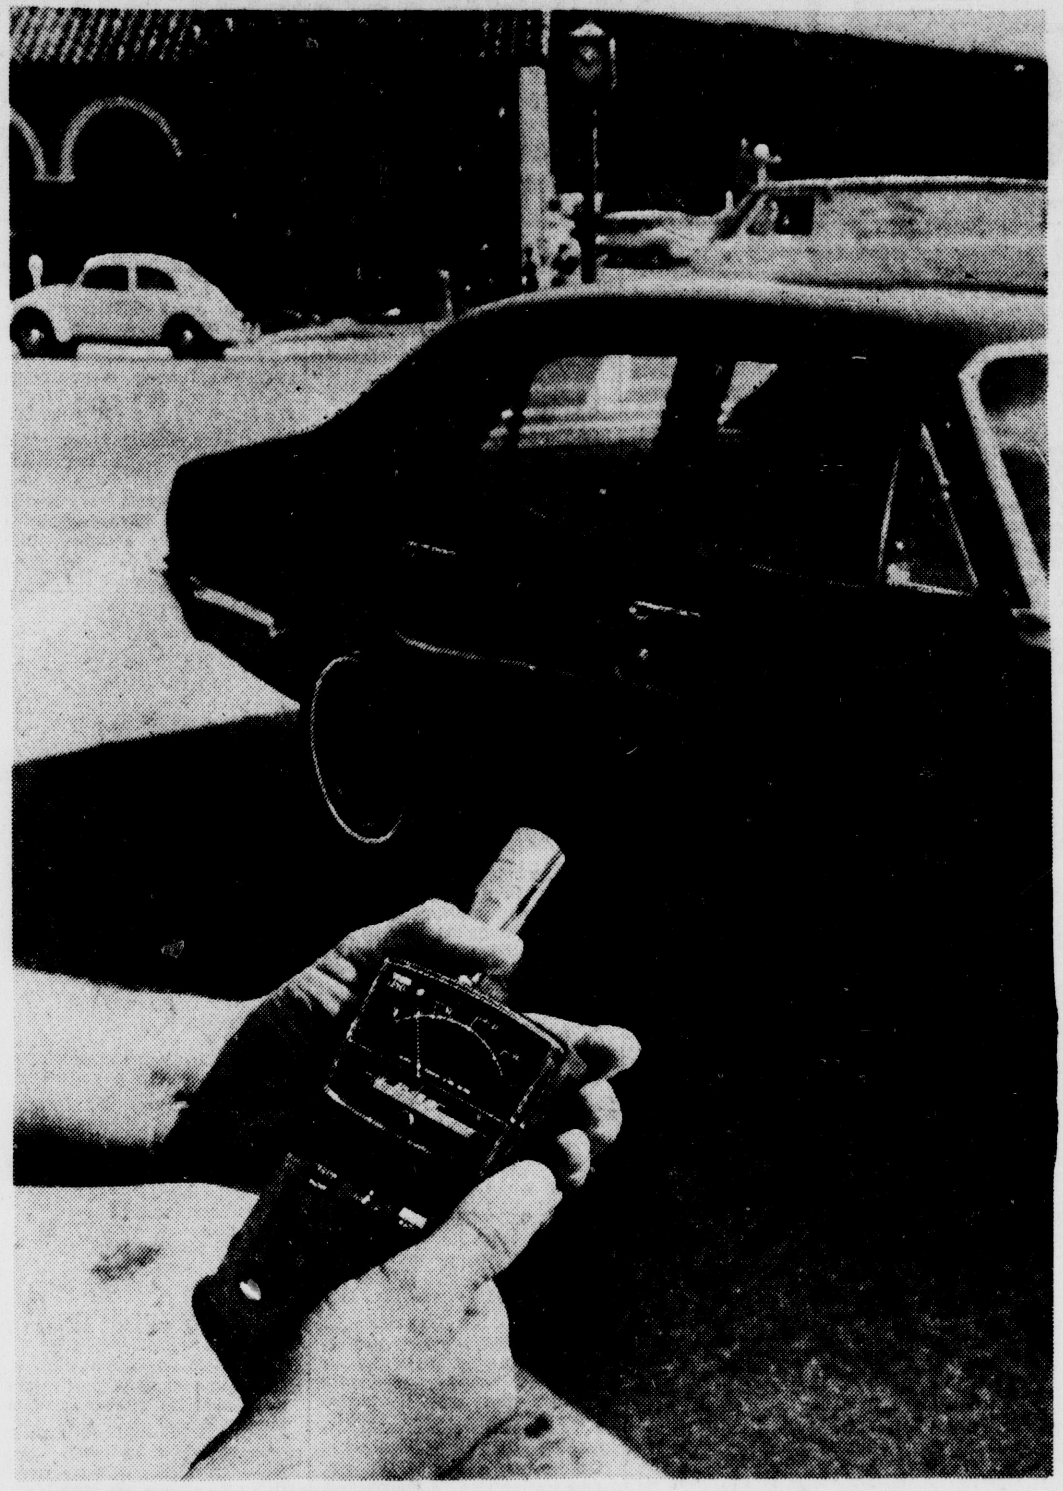
Says one recent noise pollution study, "The Fight For Quiet," by Theodore Berland: "Whether noise annoys or not depends mostly on what it means to us, the milieu in which it is heard, our mood and how used to it we are."

The noise of racing cars may be pleasant to their drivers but maddening to those living near the track.

Fred Martin, owner of Mill Valley's Sweetwater Bar, which has been criticized for its noise, agrees.

"Foreign sounds that set off reactions in some people might be forgotten by others," he says. "The people around here might overlook a loud barking dog or Mozart drifting up the hill. But hearing rock music, the resident thinks about who is producing it. He doesn't like those people, and it bothers him."

Martin claims that the soundproofing in his bar is so good now anyway that it rarely disturbs residents around the Sweetwater, located on Throckmorton Avenue.



CHECKUP — A Mill Valley police officer checks a passing car for noise, using the city's new, $500 decibel meter. This well-behaved car registered very low in decibels, far below the 55 decibels declared the limit of daytime street noise permitted in the Sausalito noise ordinance, an ordinance many communities like Mill Valley are studying.

Recent sound tests at his bar showed that 15 feet away from his building the noise of rock and roll bands from within the bar was about 60 decibels — the level of normal conversation with a person three feet away. (The decibel is the universally adopted unit for measuring sound intensity).

Residents near the Sweetwater, like William S. Rouverol, admit the music itself is no longer an irritant. "Now three-quarters of the objectionable noise is the street noises and vehicle sounds we hear from nidnight until 2 a.m. as the people leave the bars. People who like loud rock music in small quarters apparently also like hopped up cars that make loud sounds."

The situation points up one of the biggest problems with noise control. It's easy enough to soundproof a bar or a factory. But how do you turn down the cars and motorcycles — not only at night but also during the day? And how much of the blame for traffic noise should a successful business have to assume?

Marin's unique waterfront and hillside settings for its communities are another obstacle. Sounds from a building which do not bother residents close by may annoy others several blocks or miles away as the noise travels over water or up canyons.

Recently, in Belvedere, which has almost no major noise producer of its own, a number of residents on the city's west side have begun complaining to the Belvedere and Sausality city councils about rock muskc sounds traveling across the bay from Zack's in Sausalito.

Only a few California cities now have modern noise ordinances, according to the League of California Cities. Sausalito is one of them. But across the state and throughout Marin, more and more cities are becoming interested in the concept. Many plan to pass such laws as soon as they complete the noise elements of their general plans.

Officials from several Marin cities say they would like noise ordinances something like Sausalito's which is modeled after a sample noise control law prepared by the league of cities.

This law zets the common noise levels in particular parts of the city at particular times of the day. If an intruding noise source exceeds those levels by more than five decibels, the noise producer is cited and can be fined up to $500.

For example, in single-family home zones of Sausalito in the daytime, the general noise level has been estimated at 55 decibels. This is about as noisy as normal daytime street traffic.

If some noise source in that area — a radio, television, car or whatever — exceeds that noise level by five decibels, the operator of that noise source can be arrested.

However, such ordinances are difficult to enforce. First, a city has to get a $500 machine for noise level measurement. Then someone has to be trained to use it.

Sausalito's police department, which has to enforce the ordinance passed in 1972, has had its machine only a year. (Mill Valley recently also bought one).

Once a complaint is received, the police have to get to the scene in time to catch the violator. But what are the chances that the loud radio won't have been turned off, or the car with the noisy muffler won't have left the neighborhood?

When the irritant is construction noise or loud music from a bar, of course there's a better chance of measuring it in time.

According to Sausalito City Clerk Janet Tracy, most complaints the city gets are in response to construction noise. But the complainants are not anxious to press their cases. "I tell them that I'll call the police to go out and measure the noise, and they decide then that it's not worth it. They figure they can live with it until it goes away."

Sausalito Police Lt. William Fraass reports that the department has not gone out often yet with its sound meter and that in many cases complaints are unfounded. He also notes, "Few of our public entertainment cases ever provoke complaints except on hot Sundays when the noise seems to carry further."

Right now, he says, police are only taking "courtesy readings" of alleged violating noises.

The problem is, says Fraass, that in some other cities with noise ordinances, sound readings taken by police have not stood up in court cases.

"Until we get this question cleared up with our city attorney, we probably won't give out citations," he says.

It appears that control of noise is barely out of the planning stage, someday it may be possible to take you next door neighbor to court because of his raucous vacuum cleaner or to stop the teen-ager down the street from burning rubber as he passes your house. But not right now.

Kootenai Indians To Negotiate For Old Lands

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — The Kootenai Indian tribe of northern Idaho plans to send a five-member delegation to Washington, D.C., Sunday to begin negotiating for a final settlement of its claim to 1.6 million acres of ancestral land.

Tribal spokesman Doug Wheaton said if the negotiations prove successful, "it will mean an end to the Kootenais' 'war' against the United States."

The tiny 67 member tribe went to "war" against the U.S. Sept. 20 in an effort to bring attention to its demands for a settlement of ancestral lands it contends the government seized 120 years ago.

The tribe wants $2.8 million and 128,000 acres for a reservation.

Elk Herd, Salmon Streams Planned For Point Reyes

Addition of a small herd of tule elk and restoration of silver salmon spawning streams have been proposed by the National Park Service in the preliminary draft of a wideranging resources management plan for Point Reyes National Seashore to serve as a starting point for public discussion.

The preliminary plan, which would attempt to restore the 64,000-acre area to its natural state and enhance public enjoyment, will be reviewed at 10 a.m. Saturday at West Marin School in Point Reyes Station by the Citizen's Advisory Commission of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The 60-page preliminary draft contains 14 map illustrations and consists of three parts, proposals for use and management of the park area with alternate suggestions; a detailed description of the area's anthorpological, ecological and geologic history; and the environmental impact study of various proposed uses.

The plan suggests the possibility of limited stocking of fish in two lakes, control of nonnative plants and trees, periodic fires in prescribed areas, dog and cat control, and studies on the estuaries and other water areas, native forests and grasslands.

The park service says also possible is reintroduction of the Tule Elk, believed to have inhabited Point Reyes peninsula until the mid-19th Century and now rare everywhere, by placing some 10 to 15 animals on Tomales Point, at the northern end of the seashore. They could be restricted to a 2,600-acre area by fencing, or left to roam. And a holding pen and study enclosure might also be built.

Studies would be made on habits and needs of native Columbian black-tailed deer and mountain beaver now on the land. The plan also proposes population control of the nonnative dear, introduced to the area after the 1939-40 Golden Gate Exposition, so that the native deer and elk would not have excessive competition for food, water and cover.

Bass Lake, which contains sizable trout, would be stocked with fingerling Rainbow Trout, and Turney Lagoon would be stocked with Sacramento perch for sport fishing, under the plan.

Removal of several earthfill dams on freashwater ponds is proposed to open possible salmon-spawning streams into Drake and Limantour Esteros. Negative result would be destruction of freshwater pond life as dams were removed, the planners pointed out. The plan also calls for a long term study of silting and water quality in the two esteros, which are rich in moonsnails, Washington and geoduck clams and other wildlife species.

Limantour Estero is officially protected as a research natural area, but Drake's Bay is still affected by outside influences such as silt from nearby grazing lands, livestock waste and leaking spetic tanks, according to the park service plan. The study of the water areas would relate water quality and silting to plantlife and migratory and resident birdlife, to determine what steps might be necessary to maintain the natural environment.

Exotic plants, such as the Mediterranean brooms, which are taking over native plant areas would be controlled wherever feasible. Italian thistle and other plants that are a nuisance to rachning on the property would be kept down with the aid of ranchers and park managers. Other nonnative plants that are compatible with wildlife and natural vegetation would not be eliminated, but native landscape would have priority.

The native Bishop pine forest would benefit from prescribed burning, the park service said. Dead vegetation and brush would be cleared and spread of western gall rust from the ground would be halted. Bishop pine is fire resistant, and fire would allow more light to reach the forest floor to encourage germination of more pine trees, according to the proposal.

Few animals get trapped in small-area fires, so damage would be mainly to their habitat, and wildlife would benefit from nutritious new sprouting grasses which would cover the area, according to the park service. The blackened area would be gone in from a few weeks to a few months.

Periodic burning of controlled areas would give visitors a better view of the animals by creating open space. No burning of the beach area would be undertaken, and no archeological sites would be disturbed, the park service said.

The proposal also suggested that a study be done of the effect of seashore visitors on the environment, monitoring plants and soil changes from hikers and campers' use, so that an overused area could be rotated with less used areas from time to time.

Marin Rocking To Decibel's Beat

By REBECCA LARSEN

You've just moved to the suburbs to get away from it all — the roar of traffic, the hubbub of night life, the clank and grind of machinery.

Then one weekend night in your new home, you begin to hear a loud thumping bass beat from a rock band playing in a bar a few blocks away.

This law zets the common noise levels in particular parts of the city at particular times of the day. If an intruding noise source exceeds those levels by more than five decibels, the noise producer is cited and can be fined up to $500.

For example, in single-family home zones of Sausalito in the daytime, the general noise level has been estimated at 55 decibels. This is about as noisy as normal daytime street traffic.

If some noise source in that area — a radio, television, car or whatever — exceeds that noise level by five decibels, the operator of that noise source can be arrested.

However, such ordinances are difficult to enforce. First, a city has to get a $500 machine for noise level measurement. Then someone has to be trained to use it.

Sausalito's police department, which has to enforce the ordinance passed in 1972, has had its machine only a year. (Mill Valley recently also bought one).

Once a complaint is received, the police have to get to the scene in time to catch the violator. But what are the chances that the loud radio won't have been turned off, or the car with the noisy muffler won't have left the neighborhood?

When the irritant is construction noise or loud music from a bar, of course there's a better chance of measuring it in time.

According to Sausalito City Clerk Janet Tracy, most complaints the city gets are in response to construction noise. But the complainants are not anxious to press their cases. "I tell them that I'll call the police to go out and measure the noise, and they decide then that it's not worth it. They figure they can live with it until it goes away."

Sausalito Police Lt. William Fraass reports that the department has not gone out often yet with its sound meter and that in many cases complaints are unfounded. He also notes, "Few of our public entertainment cases ever provoke complaints except on hot Sundays when the noise seems to carry further."

Right now, he says, police are only taking "courtesy readings" of alleged violating noises.

The problem is, says Fraass, that in some other cities with noise ordinances, sound readings taken by police have not stood up in court cases.

"Until we get this question cleared up with our city attorney, we probably won't give out citations," he says.

It appears that control of noise is barely out of the planning stage, someday it may be possible to take you next door neighbor to court because of his raucous vacuum cleaner or to stop the teen-ager down the street from burning rubber as he passes your house. But not right now.

Kootenai Indians To Negotiate For Old Lands

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — The Kootenai Indian tribe of northern Idaho plans to send a five-member delegation to Washington, D.C., Sunday to begin negotiating for a final settlement of its claim to 1.6 million acres of ancestral land.

Tribal spokesman Doug Wheaton said if the negotiations prove successful, "it will mean an end to the Kootenais' 'war' against the United States."

The tiny 67 member tribe went to "war" against the U.S. Sept. 20 in an effort to bring attention to its demands for a settlement of ancestral lands it contends the government seized 120 years ago.

The tribe wants $2.8 million and 128,000 acres for a reservation.

Elk Herd, Salmon Streams Planned For Point Reyes

Addition of a small herd of tule elk and restoration of silver salmon spawning streams have been proposed by the National Park Service in the preliminary draft of a wideranging resources management plan for Point Reyes National Seashore to serve as a starting point for public discussion.

The preliminary plan, which would attempt to restore the 64,000-acre area to its natural state and enhance public enjoyment, will be reviewed at 10 a.m. Saturday at West Marin School in Point Reyes Station by the Citizen's Advisory Commission of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The 60-page preliminary draft contains 14 map illustrations and consists of three parts, proposals for use and management of the park area with alternate suggestions; a detailed description of the area's anthorpological, ecological and geologic history; and the environmental impact study of various proposed uses.

The plan suggests the possibility of limited stocking of fish in two lakes, control of nonnative plants and trees, periodic fires in prescribed areas, dog and cat control, and studies on the estuaries and other water areas, native forests and grasslands.

The park service says also possible is reintroduction of the Tule Elk, believed to have inhabited Point Reyes peninsula until the mid-19th Century and now rare everywhere, by placing some 10 to 15 animals on Tomales Point, at the northern end of the seashore. They could be restricted to a 2,600-acre area by fencing, or left to roam. And a holding pen and study enclosure might also be built.

Studies would be made on habits and needs of native Columbian black-tailed deer and mountain beaver now on the land. The plan also proposes population control of the nonnative dear, introduced to the area after the 1939-40 Golden Gate Exposition, so that the native deer and elk would not have excessive competition for food, water and cover.

Bass Lake, which contains sizable trout, would be stocked with fingerling Rainbow Trout, and Turney Lagoon would be stocked with Sacramento perch for sport fishing, under the plan.

Removal of several earthfill dams on freashwater ponds is proposed to open possible salmon-spawning streams into Drake and Limantour Esteros. Negative result would be destruction of freshwater pond life as dams were removed, the planners pointed out. The plan also calls for a long term study of silting and water quality in the two esteros, which are rich in moonsnails, Washington and geoduck clams and other wildlife species.

Limantour Estero is officially protected as a research natural area, but Drake's Bay is still affected by outside influences such as silt from nearby grazing lands, livestock waste and leaking spetic tanks, according to the park service plan. The study of the water areas would relate water quality and silting to plantlife and migratory and resident birdlife, to determine what steps might be necessary to maintain the natural environment.

Exotic plants, such as the Mediterranean brooms, which are taking over native plant areas would be controlled wherever feasible. Italian thistle and other plants that are a nuisance to rachning on the property would be kept down with the aid of ranchers and park managers. Other nonnative plants that are compatible with wildlife and natural vegetation would not be eliminated, but native landscape would have priority.

The native Bishop pine forest would benefit from prescribed burning, the park service said. Dead vegetation and brush would be cleared and spread of western gall rust from the ground would be halted. Bishop pine is fire resistant, and fire would allow more light to reach the forest floor to encourage germination of more pine trees, according to the proposal.

Few animals get trapped in small-area fires, so damage would be mainly to their habitat, and wildlife would benefit from nutritious new sprouting grasses which would cover the area, according to the park service. The blackened area would be gone in from a few weeks to a few months.

Periodic burning of controlled areas would give visitors a better view of the animals by creating open space. No burning of the beach area would be undertaken, and no archeological sites would be disturbed, the park service said.

The proposal also suggested that a study be done of the effect of seashore visitors on the environment, monitoring plants and soil changes from hikers and campers' use, so that an overused area could be rotated with less used areas from time to time.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Marin Rocking To Decibel's Beat

By REBECCA LARSEN

You've just moved to the suburbs to get away from it all — the roar of traffic, the hubbub of night life, the clank and grind of machinery.

Then one weekend night in your new home, you begin to hear a loud thumping bass beat from a rock band playing in a bar a few blocks away.

That goes on from about 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. From then until three, there is shouting, laughing, screaming and revving of motorcycles and cars as bar patrons head home.

That's the experience that residents living near downtown Mill Valley have described at city council and planning commission meetings.

The desire to control such noise in Marin County seems to be growing as more and more of city life intrudes on the suburbs in the form of cars, bars and heavy machinery.

Just a civic decree prohibiting loud noises is obviously not enough. Figuring out a way to control noise seems to be just about as complex as holding freeway drivers to the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

Says one recent noise pollution study, "The Fight For Quiet," by Theodore Berland: "Whether noise annoys or not depends mostly on what it means to us, the milieu in which it is heard, our mood and how used to it we are."

The noise of racing cars may be pleasant to their drivers but maddening to those living near the track.

Fred Martin, owner of Mill Valley's Sweetwater Bar, which has been criticized for its noise, agrees.

"Foreign sounds that set off reactions in some people might be forgotten by others," he says. "The people around here might overlook a loud barking dog or Mozart drifting up the hill. But hearing rock music, the resident thinks about who is producing it. He doesn't like those people, and it bothers him."

Martin claims that the soundproofing in his bar is so good now anyway that it rarely disturbs residents around the Sweetwater, located on Throckmorton Avenue.

Recent sound tests at his bar showed that 15 feet away from his building the noise of rock and roll bands from within the bar was about 60 decibels — the level of normal conversation with a person three feet away. (The decibel is the universally adopted unit for measuring sound intensity).

Residents near the Sweetwater, like William S. Rouverol, admit the music itself is no longer an irritant. "Now three-quarters of the objectionable noise is the street noises and vehicle sounds we hear from nidnight until 2 a.m. as the people leave the bars. People who like loud rock music in small quarters apparently also like hopped up cars that make loud sounds."

The situation points up one of the biggest problems with noise control. It's easy enough to soundproof a bar or a factory. But how do you turn down the cars and motorcycles — not only at night but also during the day? And how much of the blame for traffic noise should a successful business have to assume?

Marin's unique waterfront and hillside settings for its communities are another obstacle. Sounds from a building which do not bother residents close by may annoy others several blocks or miles away as the noise travels over water or up canyons.

Recently, in Belvedere, which has almost no major noise producer of its own, a number of residents on the city's west side have begun complaining to the Belvedere and Sausality city councils about rock muskc sounds traveling across the bay from Zack's in Sausalito.

Only a few California cities now have modern noise ordinances, according to the League of California Cities. Sausalito is one of them. But across the state and throughout Marin, more and more cities are becoming interested in the concept. Many plan to pass such laws as soon as they complete the noise elements of their general plans.

Officials from several Marin cities say they would like noise ordinances something like Sausalito's which is modeled after a sample noise control law prepared by the league of cities.

This law zets the common noise levels in particular parts of the city at particular times of the day. If an intruding noise source exceeds those levels by more than five decibels, the noise producer is cited and can be fined up to $500.

For example, in single-family home zones of Sausalito in the daytime, the general noise level has been estimated at 55 decibels. This is about as noisy as normal daytime street traffic.

If some noise source in that area — a radio, television, car or whatever — exceeds that noise level by five decibels, the operator of that noise source can be arrested.

However, such ordinances are difficult to enforce. First, a city has to get a $500 machine for noise level measurement. Then someone has to be trained to use it.

Sausalito's police department, which has to enforce the ordinance passed in 1972, has had its machine only a year. (Mill Valley recently also bought one).

Once a complaint is received, the police have to get to the scene in time to catch the violator. But what are the chances that the loud radio won't have been turned off, or the car with the noisy muffler won't have left the neighborhood?

When the irritant is construction noise or loud music from a bar, of course there's a better chance of measuring it in time.

According to Sausalito City Clerk Janet Tracy, most complaints the city gets are in response to construction noise. But the complainants are not anxious to press their cases. "I tell them that I'll call the police to go out and measure the noise, and they decide then that it's not worth it. They figure they can live with it until it goes away."

Sausalito Police Lt. William Fraass reports that the department has not gone out often yet with its sound meter and that in many cases complaints are unfounded. He also notes, "Few of our public entertainment cases ever provoke complaints except on hot Sundays when the noise seems to carry further."

Right now, he says, police are only taking "courtesy readings" of alleged violating noises.

The problem is, says Fraass, that in some other cities with noise ordinances, sound readings taken by police have not stood up in court cases.

"Until we get this question cleared up with our city attorney, we probably won't give out citations," he says.

It appears that control of noise is barely out of the planning stage, someday it may be possible to take you next door neighbor to court because of his raucous vacuum cleaner or to stop the teen-ager down the street from burning rubber as he passes your house. But not right now.

CHECKUP — A Mill Valley police officer checks a passing car for noise, using the city's new, $500 decibel meter. This well-behaved car registered very low in decibels, far below the 55 decibels declared the limit of daytime street noise permitted in the Sausalito noise ordinance, an ordinance many communities like Mill Valley are studying.

Kootenai Indians To Negotiate For Old Lands

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — The Kootenai Indian tribe of northern Idaho plans to send a five-member delegation to Washington, D.C., Sunday to begin negotiating for a final settlement of its claim to 1.6 million acres of ancestral land.

Tribal spokesman Doug Wheaton said if the negotiations prove successful, "it will mean an end to the Kootenais' 'war' against the United States."

The tiny 67 member tribe went to "war" against the U.S. Sept. 20 in an effort to bring attention to its demands for a settlement of ancestral lands it contends the government seized 120 years ago.

The tribe wants $2.8 million and 128,000 acres for a reservation.

Elk Herd, Salmon Streams Planned For Point Reyes

Addition of a small herd of tule elk and restoration of silver salmon spawning streams have been proposed by the National Park Service in the preliminary draft of a wideranging resources management plan for Point Reyes National Seashore to serve as a starting point for public discussion.

The preliminary plan, which would attempt to restore the 64,000-acre area to its natural state and enhance public enjoyment, will be reviewed at 10 a.m. Saturday at West Marin School in Point Reyes Station by the Citizen's Advisory Commission of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The 60-page preliminary draft contains 14 map illustrations and consists of three parts, proposals for use and management of the park area with alternate suggestions; a detailed description of the area's anthorpological, ecological and geologic history; and the environmental impact study of various proposed uses.

The plan suggests the possibility of limited stocking of fish in two lakes, control of nonnative plants and trees, periodic fires in prescribed areas, dog and cat control, and studies on the estuaries and other water areas, native forests and grasslands.

The park service says also possible is reintroduction of the Tule Elk, believed to have inhabited Point Reyes peninsula until the mid-19th Century and now rare everywhere, by placing some 10 to 15 animals on Tomales Point, at the northern end of the seashore. They could be restricted to a 2,600-acre area by fencing, or left to roam. And a holding pen and study enclosure might also be built.

Studies would be made on habits and needs of native Columbian black-tailed deer and mountain beaver now on the land. The plan also proposes population control of the nonnative dear, introduced to the area after the 1939-40 Golden Gate Exposition, so that the native deer and elk would not have excessive competition for food, water and cover.

Bass Lake, which contains sizable trout, would be stocked with fingerling Rainbow Trout, and Turney Lagoon would be stocked with Sacramento perch for sport fishing, under the plan.

Removal of several earthfill dams on freashwater ponds is proposed to open possible salmon-spawning streams into Drake and Limantour Esteros. Negative result would be destruction of freshwater pond life as dams were removed, the planners pointed out. The plan also calls for a long term study of silting and water quality in the two esteros, which are rich in moonsnails, Washington and geoduck clams and other wildlife species.

Limantour Estero is officially protected as a research natural area, but Drake's Bay is still affected by outside influences such as silt from nearby grazing lands, livestock waste and leaking spetic tanks, according to the park service plan. The study of the water areas would relate water quality and silting to plantlife and migratory and resident birdlife, to determine what steps might be necessary to maintain the natural environment.

Exotic plants, such as the Mediterranean brooms, which are taking over native plant areas would be controlled wherever feasible. Italian thistle and other plants that are a nuisance to rachning on the property would be kept down with the aid of ranchers and park managers. Other nonnative plants that are compatible with wildlife and natural vegetation would not be eliminated, but native landscape would have priority.

The native Bishop pine forest would benefit from prescribed burning, the park service said. Dead vegetation and brush would be cleared and spread of western gall rust from the ground would be halted. Bishop pine is fire resistant, and fire would allow more light to reach the forest floor to encourage germination of more pine trees, according to the proposal.

Few animals get trapped in small-area fires, so damage would be mainly to their habitat, and wildlife would benefit from nutritious new sprouting grasses which would cover the area, according to the park service. The blackened area would be gone in from a few weeks to a few months.

Periodic burning of controlled areas would give visitors a better view of the animals by creating open space. No burning of the beach area would be undertaken, and no archeological sites would be disturbed, the park service said.

The proposal also suggested that a study be done of the effect of seashore visitors on the environment, monitoring plants and soil changes from hikers and campers' use, so that an overused area could be rotated with less used areas from time to time.

Santa Runs Into Labor Problems

For the past 10 years, whenever children wrote to Santa Claus at the "North Pole," "Joyland," "Toyland," "Reindeer Street," or any of his other numerous addresses, thousands of such letters found their way to Helsinki.

There, Liisa Jantunen and her staff at the main post office answered each letter in the child's own language.

But this year the post office said it had a manpower shortage and could not give Mrs. Jantunen any helpers. She said she could not handle the thousands of letters expected from overseas.

TELEVISION REVIEW

An Unusual Credit On Sports Series

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Way It Was," a 13-week sports nostalgia series, starts tonight on public TV. If you keep track of closing credits on TV, you'll see the new series was "created by Herb Schmertz."

Who he? The credits don't say, but he is the vice president for public affairs at the Mobil Oil Corp., which shelled out $360,000 for the half-hour series, plus the cost of newspaper ads and a press agent.

However, there's no rule against a public TV underwriter creating a show it bankrolls, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., president of the Public Broadcasting Service, which is feeding the series to PBS stations.

Furthermore, Gunn said with a chuckle, "I think he's probably maybe crediting himself with more than he did. Actually, it was an idea I may have cooked up.

"It got suggested to Herb and Herb went out and found a producer in Hollywood . . . and then they came back to us. We said our rule is that it has to be supervised by one of the stations in the PBS system.

"So we got them together with KCET," he said, referring to the Los Angeles public TV station where the show was put together.

"His role was not one of supervision and production, but there's no question he had important suggestions on how the show ought to be done and its shape, because he's a sports buff.

"But there's no prohibition against that. My feeling is that a good idea or concept can come from anywhere. They key to it is who supervises the production, and it was KCET in this case."

He said when Schmertz' name appeared on the closing credits, "we said, 'Oh, that's probably going to raise some eyebrows.' But on the other hand, it's fair.

"We should acknowledge he made a creative contribution to it, as did some of the rest of us. The producer Gerry Gross and KCET incorporated the suggestions and wrapped it all together.

"As long as it's not on the subject of oil — or the economy — I guess we're probably all right," Gunn laughed. "I wouldn't want to get them Mobil anywhere near those things."

Sportscaster Curt Gowdy is host of the series. Tonight, he takes viewers back for a fond look at the famous 1951 pennant playoff between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants.

Next Thursday's show features a look back at the 1958 "Sudden Death" National Footbal League title game between the Baltimore colts and the New York Giants.

Carter Said Ready To Seek The Presidency

ATLANTA (AP) — Sources close to Gov. Jimmy Carter say he is preparing a strong push for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976 and that his formal announcement will come within months.

Two sources said in separate interviews yesterday they believe the 50-year-old outgoing governor has made "an irrevocable decision" to seek the presidency, although Carter, himself, remains publicly silent.

One source said the formal announcement could come just before Carter leaves office next January or shortly thereafter. Both sources have access to the governor's thinking. Each agreed to be interviewed on the condition that their names would not be used.

The only response from Carter came through his press secretary, Jody Powell, who said, "The governor has stated on numerous occasions that he does not feel it proper for him to discuss any plans for 1976 prior to the November elections."

Fasanella Vaults From Obscurity

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of things have happened to Ralph Fasanella in the past two years.

He's gone from pumping gasoline at a Bronx filling station to international recognition as this era's acknowledged master-painter of the New York City scene.

He's gone from the crowded loneliness of the city streets to a sprawling Westchester stone and glass house where crowds of admirers, critics and reporters gather.

Fasanella is through with the struggle for recognition that lasted 58 years. He and his wife, Eve, don't drive around anymore peddling postcard reproductions of his paintings. Instead, buyers come to him and offer thousands of dollars for the paintings he once couldn't give away.

It all started in 1972 when Automation House, a labor union center, staged an exhibition of works by long-time labor organizer Fasanella. New York Magazine did a cover story on him and the boom was on.

His pictures, majestic in scope and tiny in detail, were a sensation.

"New York City," now on loan in City Hall, is over nine feet long and more than four feet high.

"I'm trying to show you the whole city," he said at the Coe Kerr Gallery where his first commercial exhibition opened this week. "What it's really made of, not just the buildings. So there are the factories I worked in. There's the big enormous church. There's kids playing games in front of the church and there's street peddlers and all kinds of cars and trucks.

"There's the barrooms and apartments, guys flying pigeons on the roof. I wasn't trying to put out a piece of propaganda I felt this is the way it was."

If this is the way it was, what is it like now?

"Everybody calls me a city painter," said the newly made commuter in his gruff New Yorkese. "I can paint the country just as good as the goddamned city — but it took me 50 years to do it.

"It's a question of identity. I can't paint the new part, only the old houses."

Everyday he drives his son, Marcantonio — named for the late Manhattan congressman and radical leader Vito Marcantonio — to school and his daughter, Gina, 16, to the railway station at nearby Dobb's Ferry on the Hudson River.

"It's like an Italian town," he said. "Got five paintings of the town. I'm drawing Dobb's Ferry left and right."

Fasanella calls it "my new style. That's the way I'm painting now," but it doesn't look much different from the old.

'Alphabet Killer' To Face A Psychiatric Examination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge yesterday appointed two psychiatrists to examine Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "alphabet bomber," to determine if he is competent to stand trial on charges of killing three persons in an airport bomb blast.

Judge Raymond Choate put over the arriagnment of Kurbegovic, 31, and his plea, until Oct. 23 pending completion of the psychiatrists' reports.

During court proceedings yesterday, Kurbegovic, a Yugoslavian immigrant, remained mute, but wrote furiously on a white note pad, handing his jottings to his attorney.

Kurbegovic is charged with leaving a bomb in a locker at Los Angeles International Airport Aug. 6 that killed three persons, injured 35 and did extensive damage to the international departues terminal.

"I'm going to advise him not to communicate with the doctors," said deputy public defender Gerald Chaleff, who vigorously opposed the appointment of the psychiatrists.

Kurbegovic's original attorney was Dave Shinn, who currently awaits prosecution himself for perjury in connection with the alleged leak of information to newsman William Farr stemming from the Charles Manson murder trial.

Shinn pulled out of the case yesterday when Kurbegovic informed him that he had no money.

Kurbegovic has been held without bail since he was indicted by the county grand jury on Sept. 25. At that time, the district attorney's office announced that it would seek the death penalty for the airport blast.

In an interview with a Los Angeles Times reporter Tuesday, Kurbegovic, responding to questions in writing, maintained from inside jail that he is innocent.

He wrote a letter to the Times, asking to see a reporter.

Santa Runs Into Labor Problems

For the past 10 years, whenever children wrote to Santa Claus at the "North Pole," "Joyland," "Toyland," "Reindeer Street," or any of his other numerous addresses, thousands of such letters found their way to Helsinki.

There, Liisa Jantunen and her staff at the main post office answered each letter in the child's own language.

But this year the post office said it had a manpower shortage and could not give Mrs. Jantunen any helpers. She said she could not handle the thousands of letters expected from overseas.

TELEVISION REVIEW

An Unusual Credit On Sports Series

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Way It Was," a 13-week sports nostalgia series, starts tonight on public TV. If you keep track of closing credits on TV, you'll see the new series was "created by Herb Schmertz."

Who he? The credits don't say, but he is the vice president for public affairs at the Mobil Oil Corp., which shelled out $360,000 for the half-hour series, plus the cost of newspaper ads and a press agent.

However, there's no rule against a public TV underwriter creating a show it bankrolls, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., president of the Public Broadcasting Service, which is feeding the series to PBS stations.

Furthermore, Gunn said with a chuckle, "I think he's probably maybe crediting himself with more than he did. Actually, it was an idea I may have cooked up.

"It got suggested to Herb and Herb went out and found a producer in Hollywood . . . and then they came back to us. We said our rule is that it has to be supervised by one of the stations in the PBS system.

"So we got them together with KCET," he said, referring to the Los Angeles public TV station where the show was put together.

"His role was not one of supervision and production, but there's no question he had important suggestions on how the show ought to be done and its shape, because he's a sports buff.

"But there's no prohibition against that. My feeling is that a good idea or concept can come from anywhere. They key to it is who supervises the production, and it was KCET in this case."

He said when Schmertz' name appeared on the closing credits, "we said, 'Oh, that's probably going to raise some eyebrows.' But on the other hand, it's fair.

"We should acknowledge he made a creative contribution to it, as did some of the rest of us. The producer Gerry Gross and KCET incorporated the suggestions and wrapped it all together.

"As long as it's not on the subject of oil — or the economy — I guess we're probably all right," Gunn laughed. "I wouldn't want to get them Mobil anywhere near those things."

Sportscaster Curt Gowdy is host of the series. Tonight, he takes viewers back for a fond look at the famous 1951 pennant playoff between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants.

Next Thursday's show features a look back at the 1958 "Sudden Death" National Footbal League title game between the Baltimore colts and the New York Giants.

Carter Said Ready To Seek The Presidency

ATLANTA (AP) — Sources close to Gov. Jimmy Carter say he is preparing a strong push for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976 and that his formal announcement will come within months.

Two sources said in separate interviews yesterday they believe the 50-year-old outgoing governor has made "an irrevocable decision" to seek the presidency, although Carter, himself, remains publicly silent.

One source said the formal announcement could come just before Carter leaves office next January or shortly thereafter. Both sources have access to the governor's thinking. Each agreed to be interviewed on the condition that their names would not be used.

The only response from Carter came through his press secretary, Jody Powell, who said, "The governor has stated on numerous occasions that he does not feel it proper for him to discuss any plans for 1976 prior to the November elections."

Fasanella Vaults From Obscurity

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of things have happened to Ralph Fasanella in the past two years.

He's gone from pumping gasoline at a Bronx filling station to international recognition as this era's acknowledged master-painter of the New York City scene.

He's gone from the crowded loneliness of the city streets to a sprawling Westchester stone and glass house where crowds of admirers, critics and reporters gather.

Fasanella is through with the struggle for recognition that lasted 58 years. He and his wife, Eve, don't drive around anymore peddling postcard reproductions of his paintings. Instead, buyers come to him and offer thousands of dollars for the paintings he once couldn't give away.

It all started in 1972 when Automation House, a labor union center, staged an exhibition of works by long-time labor organizer Fasanella. New York Magazine did a cover story on him and the boom was on.

His pictures, majestic in scope and tiny in detail, were a sensation.

"New York City," now on loan in City Hall, is over nine feet long and more than four feet high.

"I'm trying to show you the whole city," he said at the Coe Kerr Gallery where his first commercial exhibition opened this week. "What it's really made of, not just the buildings. So there are the factories I worked in. There's the big enormous church. There's kids playing games in front of the church and there's street peddlers and all kinds of cars and trucks.

"There's the barrooms and apartments, guys flying pigeons on the roof. I wasn't trying to put out a piece of propaganda I felt this is the way it was."

If this is the way it was, what is it like now?

"Everybody calls me a city painter," said the newly made commuter in his gruff New Yorkese. "I can paint the country just as good as the goddamned city — but it took me 50 years to do it.

"It's a question of identity. I can't paint the new part, only the old houses."

Everyday he drives his son, Marcantonio — named for the late Manhattan congressman and radical leader Vito Marcantonio — to school and his daughter, Gina, 16, to the railway station at nearby Dobb's Ferry on the Hudson River.

"It's like an Italian town," he said. "Got five paintings of the town. I'm drawing Dobb's Ferry left and right."

Fasanella calls it "my new style. That's the way I'm painting now," but it doesn't look much different from the old.

'Alphabet Killer' To Face A Psychiatric Examination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge yesterday appointed two psychiatrists to examine Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "alphabet bomber," to determine if he is competent to stand trial on charges of killing three persons in an airport bomb blast.

Judge Raymond Choate put over the arriagnment of Kurbegovic, 31, and his plea, until Oct. 23 pending completion of the psychiatrists' reports.

During court proceedings yesterday, Kurbegovic, a Yugoslavian immigrant, remained mute, but wrote furiously on a white note pad, handing his jottings to his attorney.

Kurbegovic is charged with leaving a bomb in a locker at Los Angeles International Airport Aug. 6 that killed three persons, injured 35 and did extensive damage to the international departues terminal.

"I'm going to advise him not to communicate with the doctors," said deputy public defender Gerald Chaleff, who vigorously opposed the appointment of the psychiatrists.

Kurbegovic's original attorney was Dave Shinn, who currently awaits prosecution himself for perjury in connection with the alleged leak of information to newsman William Farr stemming from the Charles Manson murder trial.

Shinn pulled out of the case yesterday when Kurbegovic informed him that he had no money.

Kurbegovic has been held without bail since he was indicted by the county grand jury on Sept. 25. At that time, the district attorney's office announced that it would seek the death penalty for the airport blast.

In an interview with a Los Angeles Times reporter Tuesday, Kurbegovic, responding to questions in writing, maintained from inside jail that he is innocent.

He wrote a letter to the Times, asking to see a reporter.

Santa Runs Into Labor Problems

For the past 10 years, whenever children wrote to Santa Claus at the "North Pole," "Joyland," "Toyland," "Reindeer Street," or any of his other numerous addresses, thousands of such letters found their way to Helsinki.

There, Liisa Jantunen and her staff at the main post office answered each letter in the child's own language.

But this year the post office said it had a manpower shortage and could not give Mrs. Jantunen any helpers. She said she could not handle the thousands of letters expected from overseas.

TELEVISION REVIEW

An Unusual Credit On Sports Series

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Way It Was," a 13-week sports nostalgia series, starts tonight on public TV. If you keep track of closing credits on TV, you'll see the new series was "created by Herb Schmertz."

Who he? The credits don't say, but he is the vice president for public affairs at the Mobil Oil Corp., which shelled out $360,000 for the half-hour series, plus the cost of newspaper ads and a press agent.

However, there's no rule against a public TV underwriter creating a show it bankrolls, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., president of the Public Broadcasting Service, which is feeding the series to PBS stations.

Furthermore, Gunn said with a chuckle, "I think he's probably maybe crediting himself with more than he did. Actually, it was an idea I may have cooked up.

"It got suggested to Herb and Herb went out and found a producer in Hollywood . . . and then they came back to us. We said our rule is that it has to be supervised by one of the stations in the PBS system.

"So we got them together with KCET," he said, referring to the Los Angeles public TV station where the show was put together.

"His role was not one of supervision and production, but there's no question he had important suggestions on how the show ought to be done and its shape, because he's a sports buff.

"But there's no prohibition against that. My feeling is that a good idea or concept can come from anywhere. They key to it is who supervises the production, and it was KCET in this case."

He said when Schmertz' name appeared on the closing credits, "we said, 'Oh, that's probably going to raise some eyebrows.' But on the other hand, it's fair.

"We should acknowledge he made a creative contribution to it, as did some of the rest of us. The producer Gerry Gross and KCET incorporated the suggestions and wrapped it all together.

"As long as it's not on the subject of oil — or the economy — I guess we're probably all right," Gunn laughed. "I wouldn't want to get them Mobil anywhere near those things."

Sportscaster Curt Gowdy is host of the series. Tonight, he takes viewers back for a fond look at the famous 1951 pennant playoff between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants.

Next Thursday's show features a look back at the 1958 "Sudden Death" National Footbal League title game between the Baltimore colts and the New York Giants.

Carter Said Ready To Seek The Presidency

ATLANTA (AP) — Sources close to Gov. Jimmy Carter say he is preparing a strong push for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976 and that his formal announcement will come within months.

Two sources said in separate interviews yesterday they believe the 50-year-old outgoing governor has made "an irrevocable decision" to seek the presidency, although Carter, himself, remains publicly silent.

One source said the formal announcement could come just before Carter leaves office next January or shortly thereafter. Both sources have access to the governor's thinking. Each agreed to be interviewed on the condition that their names would not be used.

The only response from Carter came through his press secretary, Jody Powell, who said, "The governor has stated on numerous occasions that he does not feel it proper for him to discuss any plans for 1976 prior to the November elections."

Fasanella Vaults From Obscurity

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of things have happened to Ralph Fasanella in the past two years.

He's gone from pumping gasoline at a Bronx filling station to international recognition as this era's acknowledged master-painter of the New York City scene.

He's gone from the crowded loneliness of the city streets to a sprawling Westchester stone and glass house where crowds of admirers, critics and reporters gather.

Fasanella is through with the struggle for recognition that lasted 58 years. He and his wife, Eve, don't drive around anymore peddling postcard reproductions of his paintings. Instead, buyers come to him and offer thousands of dollars for the paintings he once couldn't give away.

It all started in 1972 when Automation House, a labor union center, staged an exhibition of works by long-time labor organizer Fasanella. New York Magazine did a cover story on him and the boom was on.

His pictures, majestic in scope and tiny in detail, were a sensation.

"New York City," now on loan in City Hall, is over nine feet long and more than four feet high.

"I'm trying to show you the whole city," he said at the Coe Kerr Gallery where his first commercial exhibition opened this week. "What it's really made of, not just the buildings. So there are the factories I worked in. There's the big enormous church. There's kids playing games in front of the church and there's street peddlers and all kinds of cars and trucks.

"There's the barrooms and apartments, guys flying pigeons on the roof. I wasn't trying to put out a piece of propaganda I felt this is the way it was."

If this is the way it was, what is it like now?

"Everybody calls me a city painter," said the newly made commuter in his gruff New Yorkese. "I can paint the country just as good as the goddamned city — but it took me 50 years to do it.

"It's a question of identity. I can't paint the new part, only the old houses."

Everyday he drives his son, Marcantonio — named for the late Manhattan congressman and radical leader Vito Marcantonio — to school and his daughter, Gina, 16, to the railway station at nearby Dobb's Ferry on the Hudson River.

"It's like an Italian town," he said. "Got five paintings of the town. I'm drawing Dobb's Ferry left and right."

Fasanella calls it "my new style. That's the way I'm painting now," but it doesn't look much different from the old.

'Alphabet Killer' To Face A Psychiatric Examination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge yesterday appointed two psychiatrists to examine Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "alphabet bomber," to determine if he is competent to stand trial on charges of killing three persons in an airport bomb blast.

Judge Raymond Choate put over the arriagnment of Kurbegovic, 31, and his plea, until Oct. 23 pending completion of the psychiatrists' reports.

During court proceedings yesterday, Kurbegovic, a Yugoslavian immigrant, remained mute, but wrote furiously on a white note pad, handing his jottings to his attorney.

Kurbegovic is charged with leaving a bomb in a locker at Los Angeles International Airport Aug. 6 that killed three persons, injured 35 and did extensive damage to the international departues terminal.

"I'm going to advise him not to communicate with the doctors," said deputy public defender Gerald Chaleff, who vigorously opposed the appointment of the psychiatrists.

Kurbegovic's original attorney was Dave Shinn, who currently awaits prosecution himself for perjury in connection with the alleged leak of information to newsman William Farr stemming from the Charles Manson murder trial.

Shinn pulled out of the case yesterday when Kurbegovic informed him that he had no money.

Kurbegovic has been held without bail since he was indicted by the county grand jury on Sept. 25. At that time, the district attorney's office announced that it would seek the death penalty for the airport blast.

In an interview with a Los Angeles Times reporter Tuesday, Kurbegovic, responding to questions in writing, maintained from inside jail that he is innocent.

He wrote a letter to the Times, asking to see a reporter.

Robinson Wants 'To Be Judged By Our Play'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson, the only person to ever win the Most Valuable Player award in both the National League and the American League, today was named player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first black manager in major league history.

"The only reason I am the first black manager of a major league team," Robinson said at a news conference here, "is that I was born black. I want to be judged by our play on the field not on my inexperience or any other factor."

Today's announcement was made by Indians General Manager Phil Seghi who had obtained Robinson from the California Angels to replace Ken Aspromonte, who was fired last week effective at the close of the season last night.

Also attending the news conference were baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee McPhail.

President Ford, in a telegram to Robinson, said the appointment was "a tribute to you personally, to your athletic skills and to your unsurpassed leadership in the sport."

Robinson received the following telegram from the White House:

"Dear Frank:

"Heartiest congratulations on being named the new manager of the Cleveland Indians. Your selection as player-manager is welcome news not only for the Indians, the American League and all of baseball, but also for baseball fans across the nation. More than this, it is a tribute to you personally, to your athletic skills and to your unsurpassed leadership in the sport.

"I know millions of Americans join me in sending you warmest good wishes for every success in future seasons. Again, congratulations and warm personal regards.

"Sincerely,

"Gerald R. Ford."

Other reaction was offered by Mrs. Jackie Robinson in Chicago. Mrs. Robinson, whose late husband predicted the hiring of a black baseball manager, today called Frank's selection "significant and highly commendable."

Mrs. Racheal Robinson, now president of the New York-based Jackie Robinson Construction Corp. and Alfred Duckett, of Chicago, who coauthored two autobiographies with Robinson, said:

"The decision of the Cleveland Indians to pioneer in the long-delayed promotion of a qualified black player to the rank of manager is significant and highly commendable. It is particularly noteworthy because it elevates to policy and decision-making a talented star who earns a salary commensurate with his ability.

"This development fulfills a long-held and often expressed dream of Jackie Robinson. It helps make more worthwhile all the sacrifices and dedication which Jackie Robinson gave to a sport he loved.

"It is certainly more true today that baseball is an All-American game. We congratulate the management of the club and we are proud that a man of Frank Robinson's caliber has become the symbol of a dream deferred but now come true."

In Robinson's last autobiography, published the day after his death two years ago, he wrote: "The day of the black manager is inevitable. It will get here when an owner finally realizes that the argument that white players will not accept advice from a black is phony."

Frank Robinson, who said he was not a "miracle worker", said the Indian organization would "get a lot of questions and a lot of flack" for hiring a man who had never managed in the major leagues.

The Indians finished fourth in the American League East, won six games more than last season with the best winning percentage in six years with a 77-85 record.

"If we win it will be because the players do their best," said Robinson. "When a club does fail the manager should take the heat — and I will."

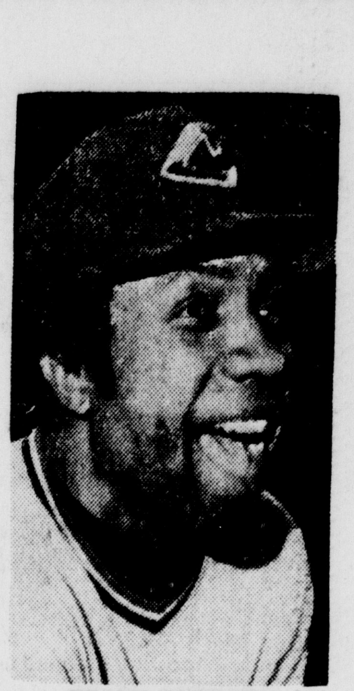
Seghi said "we chose Frank on his merits and his talents. He is a true leader."

Aspromonte said last night in Boston following the tribe's victory in the season finale, that the club "did a helluva job. But who cares any more? I'm on the outside."

One problem Robinson apparently won't have is with star pitcher Gaylord Perry, who had said earlier the Indians couldn't afford both him and the new manager.

The terms of Robinson's contract were not revealed and Seghi was to meet with Perry today to iron out terms with the former Cy Young winner who was 21-13 this season after winning last night's game.

Robinson, in his new position, can achieve a number of distinctions in the next season, including:



FRANK ROBINSON
Veteran slugger

As designated hitter, he can reach his stated goals of 3,000 career hits and 600 home runs, a twin plateau equaled only by Henry Aaron and Willie Mays.

He could become the first manager to lead the Indians to a world series since 1954.

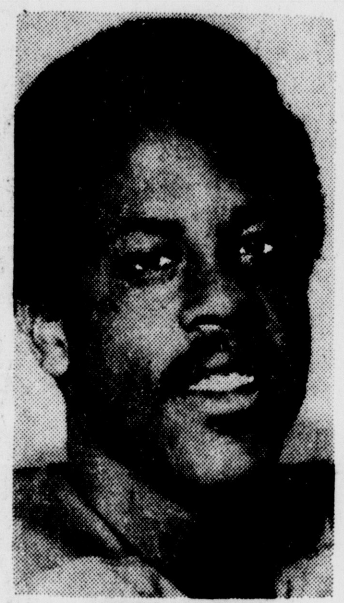
49ers Weren't Ready To Play

"We just weren't ready to play that day. They were just more prepared."

The speaker was Windlan Hall, safety for the 49ers and he was trying to explain last Sunday's 21-3 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals at Candlestick Park.



WINDLAN HALL

Hall, a 174-pound, three-year player, was the season's first guest speaker for the Marin County Goal Rushers. Fifty persons, about 15 of them kids, attended last night's question and answer session at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda.

When pressed later about where the blame lies because the 49ers were not mentally prepared, Hall did some gingerly sidestepping. He said, "Maybe it's the coaches fault, maybe the players. I don't want to put the blame on anybody; it's everybody's fault. It's every man's responsibility to get himself mentally prepared."

Hall said there was a positive attitude among the 49ers this season. "I'm confident we'll win most of our games."

A lot of questions, understandably, were about the 49ers' offense, or rightly, the lack of it. Being a member of the defensive team, Hall was the wrong person to ask. A pro football team is really like two teams, the offensive and defensive players. Their paths seldom cross and their team meetings are usually divided between offense and defense.

HALL SAID the players are not overly concerned with the team's anemic passing attack. Hall cited the inexperience of quarterback Joe Reed and said the players felt once he gained some game experience the passing would come around.

Quizzed by emcee Dave Scofield about the defensive collapse of the team in the second half last Sunday, Hall said the reason wasn't because of the failures of the offense. "We went through that whole problem last year. We're used to that."

WHEN ASKED who he thought was the best running back on the team there was no hesitation. Wilbur Jackson, the team's number one draft choice out of Alabama. The fastest defensive back? "Mike Holmes (No. 1 draft pick in 1973) is probably the fastest cat on the team."

Hall is normally the team's starting free safety, with Mel Phillips the strong safety. When Phillips suffered a broken wrist Hall took over the strong side safety position for last week's game and Holmes played free safety. It's expected that Phillips will be back in the lineup, with a cast, so Hall will probably be back at his free safety spot.

He was asked if the switch to strong safety was difficult for him and he said, "No, it's not that tough a switch because I've played strong safety before."

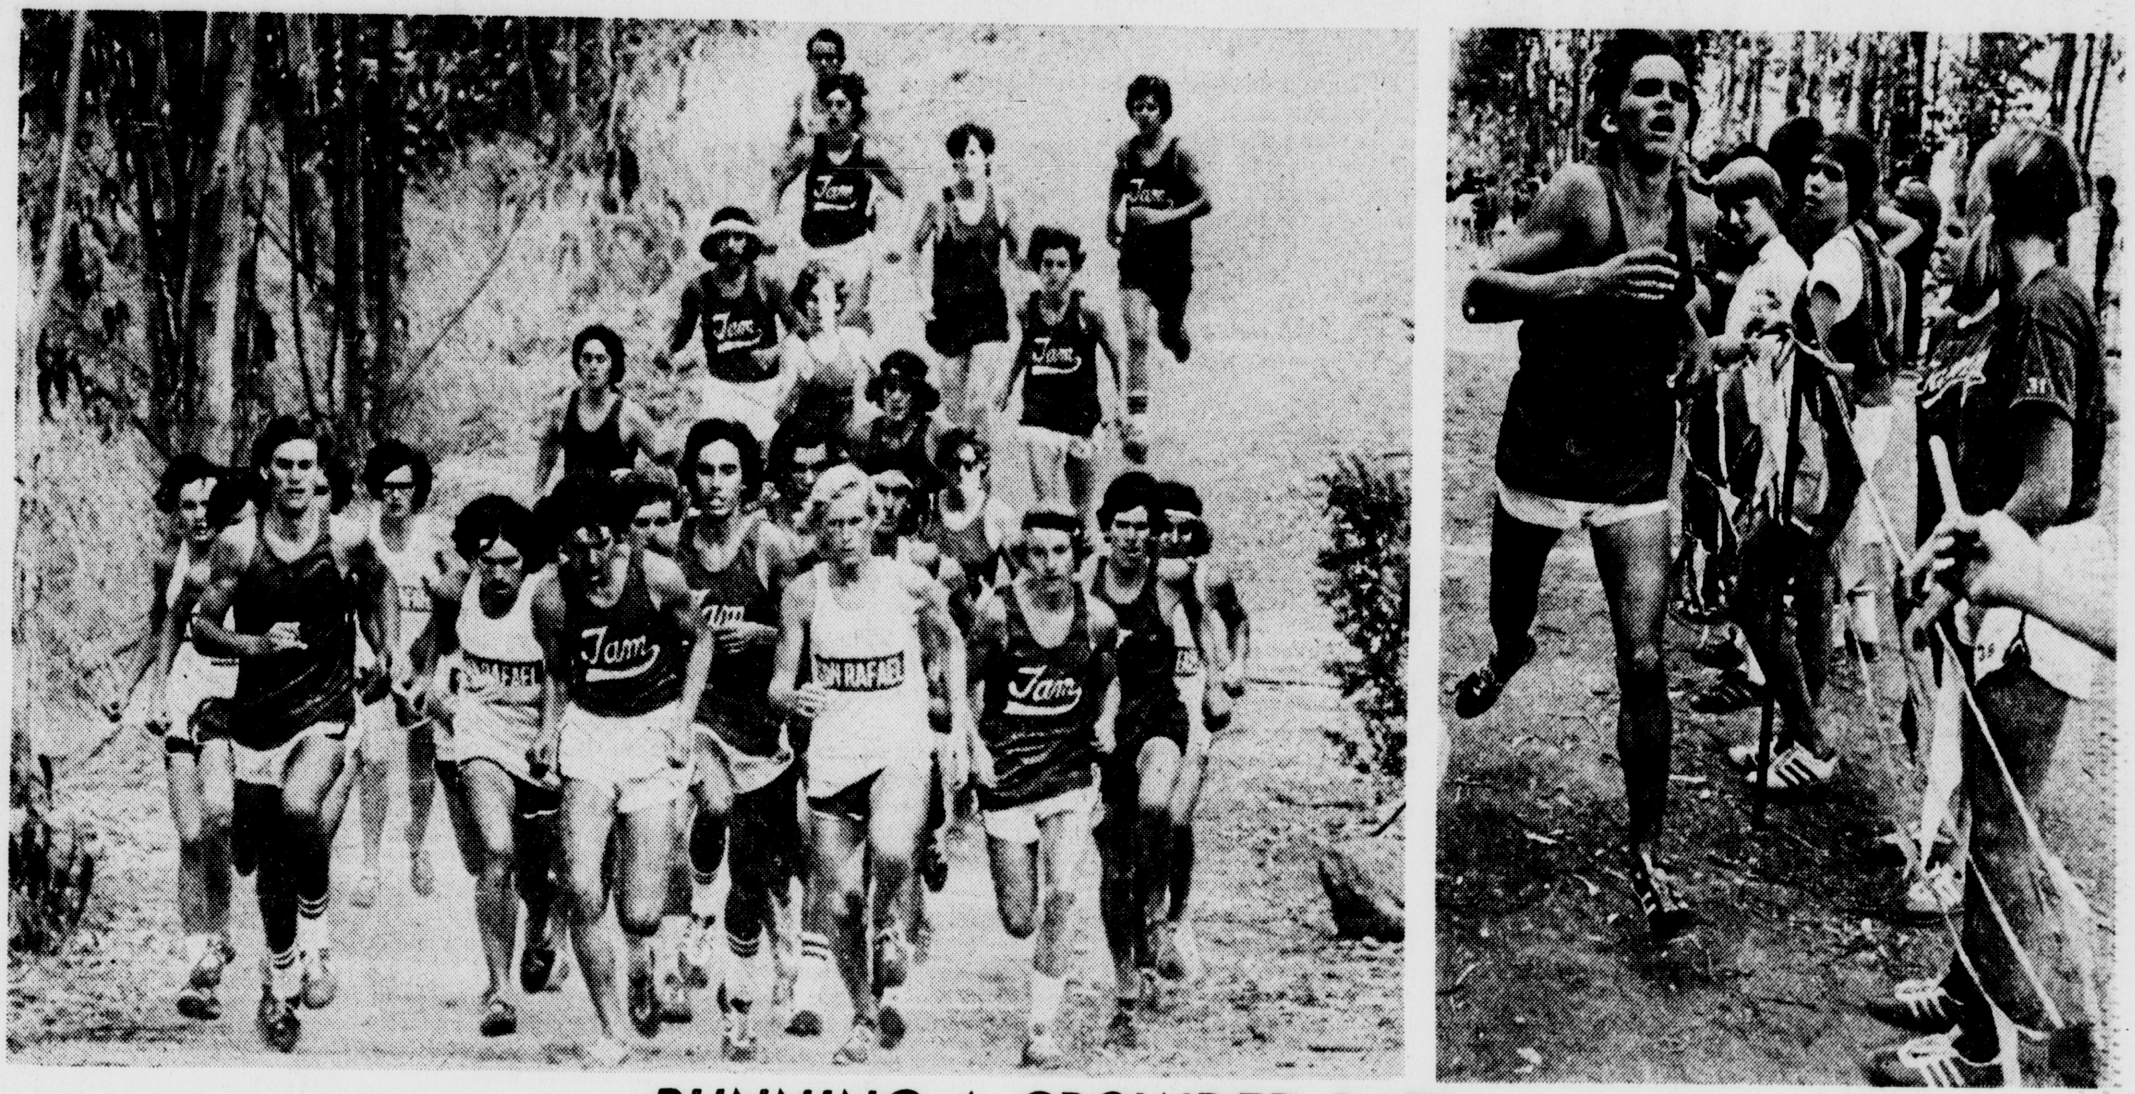
(INCIDENTALLY, strong safety doesn't mean the other safety is a weak person. The strong safety lines up on the side opposite the tight end, thus the strong side of the offensive line. The other safety has more freedom to roam.)

Hall underwent knee surgery in January and said he is fully recovered. He suffered a slight leg injury last Sunday and has been kept out of practice this week but said he expects to be all right by Sunday when the 49ers host the St. Louis Cardinals.

When asked if the 49ers were a "close team," Hall said, "We could be closer. It's not like college. Some of the players are pretty close, but we're not that close as a team."

AMONG THOSE in the audience was Bruce Kilby, a former football star at Terra Linda High who was Hall's roommate in 1970 and '71 when both of them played at Arizona State.

Kilby, now an insurance salesman with New York Life in San Francisco and a Novato resident, is still good friends with Hall.



RUNNING A CROWDED PATH

Cross country runners from Redwood, Tamalpais and San Rafael high schools bunch up shortly after beginning a three-mile race on San Rafael's Ridgewood course, one of two Marin County Athletic League meets yesterday. Redwood won the meet and that school's Hal Schulz (right photo) was first across the finish line, setting a course record of 15:43. Story on page 35. (Photos by Alfred Arn)

Pirates Win Flag—With Help From God?

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I really think the Lord had something to do with this ballgame," said Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. "I just thank God we were able to do it."

The Lord mayhave helped but Chicago catcher Steve Swisher didn't hurt either as the Pirates clinched the National League East Division championship last night with a wild 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Cubs.

Chicago had the game won with two out and a man on third in the bottom of the ninth. Cubs' right-hander Rick Reuschel struck out pinch hitter Bob Robertson for what would have been the final out but Swisher let the pitch get away from him for a passed ball and Sanguillen raced home from third to send the game into overtime.

One inning later Sanguillen drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded infield single and the Bucs were on their way to the National League playoffs. They wind up 1½ games ahead of the runnerup St. Louis Cardinals who were rained out at Montreal.

The Pirates start the best-of-five NL playoffs Saturday afternoon against Los Angeles in Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles edged Houston 5-4 in 10 innings; Atlanta bombed Cincinnati 13-0; Philadelphia shaded New York 3-2 in 10 innings and San Diego dumped San Francisco 9-5.

Chicago unloaded on Pirate starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first and the Bucs spent the rest of the night playing catch-up.

Robertson, who celebrated his 28th birthday yesterday by turning in the game's big play — the clutch ninth-inning strikeout — drenched Manager Danny Murtaugh, a non-drinker, with a gallon of milk.

Braves 13, Reds 0

Hank Aaron closed out his eventful season with his 20th homer, No. 733 lifetime, but refused to say it was his last game. He said earlier in the season this would be his last campaign, but has been having second thoughts lately.

Dodgers 5, Astros 4

John Hale singled and Lee Lacy doubled him home in the 10th to give reliever Charlie Hough, 9-4, the win.

Phillies 3, Mets 2

Giants End Poor 1974 Season On A Symbolic Note

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Perhaps it was symbolic that the San Francisco Giants concluded a dismal 1974 season with the type of play which resulted in a 72-90 record, the worst in their West Coast history.

The San Diego Padres didn't get a hit off Ed Halicki for five innings yesterday, but they rallied for a 9-5 victory with the aid of two errors and seven walks — a pair of Giants' thorns all season.

A crowd of 1,349 witnessed the typical performance for a final attendence of 519,991, the Giants' lowest in San Francisco and considerably below the previous mark of 647,744 in 1972. San Diego showed an increase of 463,593 to 1,073,399 this year.

The Padres, who showed an 11-7 season series edge over the Giants, won it for reliever Edgar Hardy, 9-4 with four runs in the ninth inning off three relievers, including loser Elias Sosa 9-7.

Still, pitching surprisingly was the Giants' strong point in a season which found lefthander Ron Bryant slipping from a 24-12 record in 1973 to a 3-15 mark with a 5.60 earned run average.

Manager Wes Westrum indicated he will go with a five-man rotation in 1975, and that Jim Barr, 13-9 and 2.74, Mike Caldwell, 14-5 and 2.95, John D'Acquisto, 12-14 and 3.77, John John Montefusco, 3-2 and 4.84, probably will be four of the starters.

"That's our nucleus," declared Westrum. "All four showed they can win in the major leagues. Barr and Caldwell were just great for us, and all D'Acquisto needs is to sharpen his control before becoming a super pitcher."

Of the non-pitchers, however, only Gary Mathews had a solid season. Following a sluggish start, the 1973 rookie of the year finished a team-leading .287 average and also was tops in games played, 153, hits, 161, and runs batted in, 82.

Garry Maddox, Bobby Bonds, Ed Goodson, and Tito Fuentes all batted approximately 30 points lower than in 1973, though Bonds managed to lead the club with 82 runs, eight triples, 22 homers, 94 walks and 41 stolen bases.

Many of the Giants could be part of winter swaps, with Goodson, Maddox, Fuentes, Bonds, Bryant, Tom Bradley and Dave Kingman among the players prominently mentioned in trade rumors.

"Our primary need is a power-hitting third baseman," siad Westrum, "and we could use another starting pitcher. Not too many guys are untouchable when you have a bad year. We'll make any trade that will help us."

Lakers' West To Retire?

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers' star guard Jerry West is considering retiring and met with Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke yesterday to discuss his future, it was announced today.

An official announcement, expected to signal the end of West's fabled career with the Lakers, was expected later in the day.

West, 36, missed most of last season with a nagging abdominal muscle injury. Last April, however, he announced his intentions to play one more year and signed an open-ended contract to return for his 15th season with the team.

West was reportedly disappointed by his performance in the Lakers' exhibition game against Portland here Friday night. West scored 19 points and had three assists in the game.

Robinson Wants 'To Be Judged By Our Play'

FRANK ROBINSON
Veteran slugger

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson, the only person to ever win the Most Valuable Player award in both the National League and the American League, today was named player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first black manager in major league history.

"The only reason I am the first black manager of a major league team," Robinson said at a news conference here, "is that I was born black. I want to be judged by our play on the field not on my inexperience or any other factor."

Today's announcement was made by Indians General Manager Phil Seghi who had obtained Robinson from the California Angels to replace Ken Aspromonte, who was fired last week effective at the close of the season last night.

Also attending the news conference were baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee McPhail.

President Ford, in a telegram to Robinson, said the appointment was "a tribute to you personally, to your athletic skills and to your unsurpassed leadership in the sport."

Robinson received the following telegram from the White House:

"Dear Frank:

"Heartiest congratulations on being named the new manager of the Cleveland Indians. Your selection as player-manager is welcome news not only for the Indians, the American League and all of baseball, but also for baseball fans across the nation. More than this, it is a tribute to you personally, to your athletic skills and to your unsurpassed leadership in the sport.

"I know millions of Americans join me in sending you warmest good wishes for every success in future seasons. Again, congratulations and warm personal regards.

"Sincerely,

"Gerald R. Ford."

Other reaction was offered by Mrs. Jackie Robinson in Chicago. Mrs. Robinson, whose late husband predicted the hiring of a black baseball manager, today called Frank's selection "significant and highly commendable."

Mrs. Racheal Robinson, now president of the New York-based Jackie Robinson Construction Corp. and Alfred Duckett, of Chicago, who coauthored two autobiographies with Robinson, said:

"The decision of the Cleveland Indians to pioneer in the long-delayed promotion of a qualified black player to the rank of manager is significant and highly commendable. It is particularly noteworthy because it elevates to policy and decision-making a talented star who earns a salary commensurate with his ability.

"This development fulfills a long-held and often expressed dream of Jackie Robinson. It helps make more worthwhile all the sacrifices and dedication which Jackie Robinson gave to a sport he loved.

"It is certainly more true today that baseball is an All-American game. We congratulate the management of the club and we are proud that a man of Frank Robinson's caliber has become the symbol of a dream deferred but now come true."

In Robinson's last autobiography, published the day after his death two years ago, he wrote: "The day of the black manager is inevitable. It will get here when an owner finally realizes that the argument that white players will not accept advice from a black is phony."

Frank Robinson, who said he was not a "miracle worker", said the Indian organization would "get a lot of questions and a lot of flack" for hiring a man who had never managed in the major leagues.

The Indians finished fourth in the American League East, won six games more than last season with the best winning percentage in six years with a 77-85 record.

"If we win it will be because the players do their best," said Robinson. "When a club does fail the manager should take the heat — and I will."

Seghi said "we chose Frank on his merits and his talents. He is a true leader."

Aspromonte said last night in Boston following the tribe's victory in the season finale, that the club "did a helluva job. But who cares any more? I'm on the outside."

One problem Robinson apparently won't have is with star pitcher Gaylord Perry, who had said earlier the Indians couldn't afford both him and the new manager.

The terms of Robinson's contract were not revealed and Seghi was to meet with Perry today to iron out terms with the former Cy Young winner who was 21-13 this season after winning last night's game.

Robinson, in his new position, can achieve a number of distinctions in the next season, including:

As designated hitter, he can reach his stated goals of 3,000 career hits and 600 home runs, a twin plateau equaled only by Henry Aaron and Willie Mays.

He could become the first manager to lead the Indians to a world series since 1954.

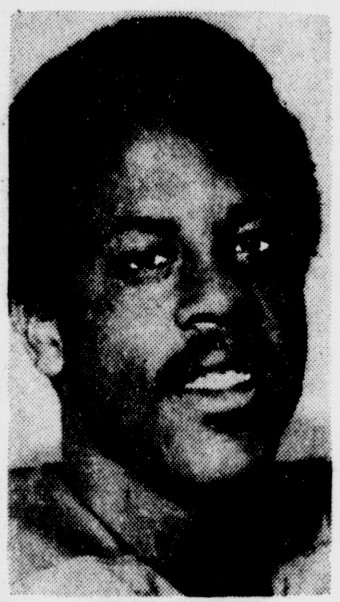
49ers Weren't Ready To Play

"We just weren't ready to play that day. They were just more prepared."

The speaker was Windlan Hall, safety for the 49ers and he was trying to explain last Sunday's 21-3 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals at Candlestick Park.



WINDLAN HALL

Hall, a 174-pound, three-year player, was the season's first guest speaker for the Marin County Goal Rushers. Fifty persons, about 15 of them kids, attended last night's question and answer session at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda.

When pressed later about where the blame lies because the 49ers were not mentally prepared, Hall did some gingerly sidestepping. He said, "Maybe it's the coaches fault, maybe the players. I don't want to put the blame on anybody; it's everybody's fault. It's every man's responsibility to get himself mentally prepared."

Hall said there was a positive attitude among the 49ers this season. "I'm confident we'll win most of our games."

A lot of questions, understandably, were about the 49ers' offense, or rightly, the lack of it. Being a member of the defensive team, Hall was the wrong person to ask. A pro football team is really like two teams, the offensive and defensive players. Their paths seldom cross and their team meetings are usually divided between offense and defense.

HALL SAID the players are not overly concerned with the team's anemic passing attack. Hall cited the inexperience of quarterback Joe Reed and said the players felt once he gained some game experience the passing would come around.

Quizzed by emcee Dave Scofield about the defensive collapse of the team in the second half last Sunday, Hall said the reason wasn't because of the failures of the offense. "We went through that whole problem last year. We're used to that."

WHEN ASKED who he thought was the best running back on the team there was no hesitation. Wilbur Jackson, the team's number one draft choice out of Alabama. The fastest defensive back? "Mike Holmes (No. 1 draft pick in 1973) is probably the fastest cat on the team."

Hall is normally the team's starting free safety, with Mel Phillips the strong safety. When Phillips suffered a broken wrist Hall took over the strong side safety position for last week's game and Holmes played free safety. It's expected that Phillips will be back in the lineup, with a cast, so Hall will probably be back at his free safety spot.

He was asked if the switch to strong safety was difficult for him and he said, "No, it's not that tough a switch because I've played strong safety before."

(INCIDENTALLY, strong safety doesn't mean the other safety is a weak person. The strong safety lines up on the side opposite the tight end, thus the strong side of the offensive line. The other safety has more freedom to roam.)

Hall underwent knee surgery in January and said he is fully recovered. He suffered a slight leg injury last Sunday and has been kept out of practice this week but said he expects to be all right by Sunday when the 49ers host the St. Louis Cardinals.

When asked if the 49ers were a "close team," Hall said, "We could be closer. It's not like college. Some of the players are pretty close, but we're not that close as a team."

AMONG THOSE in the audience was Bruce Kilby, a former football star at Terra Linda High who was Hall's roommate in 1970 and '71 when both of them played at Arizona State.

Kilby, now an insurance salesman with New York Life in San Francisco and a Novato resident, is still good friends with Hall.

Pirates Win Flag—With Help From God?

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I really think the Lord had something to do with this ballgame," said Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. "I just thank God we were able to do it."

The Lord mayhave helped but Chicago catcher Steve Swisher didn't hurt either as the Pirates clinched the National League East Division championship last night with a wild 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Cubs.

Cubs' right-hander Rick Reuschel struck out pinch hitter Bob Robertson for what would have been the final out but Swisher let the pitch get away from him for a passed ball and Sanguillen raced home from third to send the game into overtime.

Pirates Win Flag—With Help From God?

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I really think the Lord had something to do with this ballgame," said Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. "I just thank God we were able to do it."

The Lord mayhave helped but Chicago catcher Steve Swisher didn't hurt either as the Pirates clinched the National League East Division championship last night with a wild 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Cubs.

Chicago had the game won with two out and a man on third in the bottom of the ninth. Cubs' right-hander Rick Reuschel struck out pinch hitter Bob Robertson for what would have been the final out but Swisher let the pitch get away from him for a passed ball and Sanguillen raced home from third to send the game into overtime.

One inning later Sanguillen drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded infield single and the Bucs were on their way to the National League playoffs. They wind up 1½ games ahead of the runnerup St. Louis Cardinals who were rained out at Montreal.

The Pirates start the best-of-five NL playoffs Saturday afternoon against Los Angeles in Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles edged Houston 5-4 in 10 innings; Atlanta bombed Cincinnati 13-0; Philadelphia shaded New York 3-2 in 10 innings and San Diego dumped San Francisco 9-5.

Chicago unloaded on Pirate starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first and the Bucs spent the rest of the night playing catch-up.

Robertson, who celebrated his 28th birthday yesterday by turning in the game's big play — the clutch ninth-inning strikeout — drenched Manager Danny Murtaugh, a non-drinker, with a gallon of milk.

Braves 13, Reds 0

Hank Aaron closed out his eventful season with his 20th homer, No. 733 lifetime, but refused to say it was his last game. He said earlier in the season this would be his last campaign, but has been having second thoughts lately.

Dodgers 5, Astros 4

John Hale singled and Lee Lacy doubled him home in the 10th to give reliever Charlie Hough, 9-4, the win.

Phillies 3, Mets 2

Giants End Poor 1974 Season On A Symbolic Note

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Perhaps it was symbolic that the San Francisco Giants concluded a dismal 1974 season with the type of play which resulted in a 72-90 record, the worst in their West Coast history.

The San Diego Padres didn't get a hit off Ed Halicki for five innings yesterday, but they rallied for a 9-5 victory with the aid of two errors and seven walks — a pair of Giants' thorns all season.

A crowd of 1,349 witnessed the typical performance for a final attendence of 519,991, the Giants' lowest in San Francisco and considerably below the previous mark of 647,744 in 1972. San Diego showed an increase of 463.593 to 1,073,399 this year.

The Padres, who showed an 11-7 season series edge over the Giants, won it for reliever Edgar Hardy, 9-4 with four runs in the ninth inning off three relievers, including loser Elias Sosa 9-7.

Still, pitching surprisingly was the Giants' strong point in a season which found lefthander Ron Bryant slipping from a 24-12 record in 1973 to a 3-15 mark with a 5.60 earned run average.

Manager Wes Westrum indicated he will go with a five-man rotation in 1975, and that Jim Barr, 13-9 and 2.74, Mike Caldwell, 14-5 and 2.95, John D'Acquisto, 12-14 and 3.77, John John Montefusco, 3-2 and 4.84, probably will be four of the starters.

"That's our nucleus," declared Westrum. "All four showed they can win in the major leagues. Barr and Caldwell were just great for us, and all D'Acquisto needs is to sharpen his control before becoming a super pitcher."

Of the non-pitchers, however, only Gary Mathews had a solid season. Following a sluggish start, the 1973 rookie of the year finished a team-leading .287 average and also was tops in games played, 153, hits, 161, and runs batted in, 82.

Garry Maddox, Bobby Bonds, Ed Goodson, and Tito Fuentes all batted approximately 30 points lower than in 1973, though Bonds managed to lead the club with 82 runs, eight triples, 22 homers, 94 walks and 41 stolen bases.

Many of the Giants could be part of winter swaps, with Goodson, Maddox, Fuentes, Bonds, Bryant, Tom Bradley and Dave Kingman among the players prominently mentioned in trade rumors.

"Our primary need is a power-hitting third baseman," siad Westrum, "and we could use another starting pitcher. Not too many guys are untouchable when you have a bad year. We'll make any trade that will help us."

Lakers' West To Retire?

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers' star guard Jerry West is considering retiring and met with Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke yesterday to discuss his future, it was announced today.

An official announcement, expected to signal the end of West's fabled career with the Lakers, was expected later in the day.

West, 36, missed most of last season with a nagging abdominal muscle injury. Last April, however, he announced his intentions to play one more year and signed an open-ended contract to return for his 15th season with the team.

West was reportedly disappointed by his performance in the Lakers' exhibition game against Portland here Friday night. West scored 19 points and had three assists in the game.

Last-Place Angels Finish Season On Positive Note

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels finished the season in the American League West cellar, 22 games behind the division champion Oakland A's.

For Manager Dick Williams, it was quite a drop.

Williams managed Oakland to a World Championship in 1973 and then took over the Angels this year at mid-season. It was, obviously, going from a winner to a loser.

But Williams, who also turned Boston into a winner during his tenure there, is optimistic about 1975 — even if the Angels finished at 68-94.

"It was good to end the season on a positive note," he said after the Angels pulled out a 3-2 victory over Oakland last night in the regular season finale.

"Our overall record may not show it but we've done really well the last weeks of the season. I've only been manager half the season so I'm ready to go again. We can't wait for spring."

During the Angels' final five-game homestand, they got three consecutive complete-game shutouts from Nolan Ryan, Andy Hassler and Frank Tanana — Ryan's a no-hitter against Minnesota.

Chuck Dobson made it four complete games in a row by stopping Oakland on five hits and running California's win streak to five. The skein enabled the club to avoid tying its team record of 95 losses, although the Angels finished in the cellar for the first time in their history.

Williams is high on the Angels' pitching staff.

"We may have the best pitching staff in the majors next year," he said. "We need some balance in the bullpen, especially a good short man, but we'll be ready for spring training."

Denny Doyle highlighted a two-run ninth inning rally with a bases-loaded single. Pinch-hitter Ellie Rodriguez doubled in the tying run. Lee Stanton hit his 11th homer in the seventh inning.

Joe Rudi hit his 22nd homer in the fourth inning with Reggie Jackson on for Oakland. Paul Lindblad lost for the A's.

Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton said there should be no need for a major revamping of the team for next year.

"Next season, we'll have a good young experienced staring rotation," Dalton said. "There is no need for a major deal if the talent we have here comes through the way we expect them to.

"Even our weakest spot in the bullpen showed a 40 per cent improvement from the middle of the season on."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

It's Over For All But A's, Orioles

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Over.

For the New York Yankees it was. For Al Kaline it was. For Ken Aspromonte it was. For everyone in the American League it was — everyone that is except the Baltimore Orioles and the world champion Oakland Athletics.

For all intents and purposes, the 1974 American League baseball season ended Tuesday night when the New York Yankees dropped a 3-2, 10th inning decision to the Brewers in Milwaukee, but on the final day there were still a few items left on the agenda.

For one thing, the Orioles needed to prove that they didn't back into the Eastern Division championship after the Yankees' loss the night before. They proved it — beating Detroit 5-4 for their ninth straight victory down the torrid stretch run.

Thus the Yankees' 2-1 season finale win over the Brewers was academic. No matter what had happened the night before — even if Bobby Murcer had played right field instead of Lou Piniella, who had misplayed an eighth inning flyball into a triple that eventually led to the tying run — the Yankees would still be No. 2 today instead of No. 1 because the Orioles simply didn't know how to lose when it all counted.

As for Kaline, his brilliant 22-year career, which featured a batting title at 24 in 1955 and 3,007 hits all told, also was over. Sad, well yes. But even sadder was that it ended with boos instead of cheers.

The 39-year old future Hall of Famer removed himself from the game in the fifth inning of the Tigers' loss to the Orioles despite having perhaps two more shots at his 400th career homer. The 4,671 fans on hand greeted that decision with boos as Kaline, on his final day in the major leagues, went 0-for-2 — finishing with a .297 lifetime average.

Elsewhere in AL action, Chicago edged Kansas City 5-4, Texas nipped Minnesota 2-1, Cleveland outslugged Boston 8-6 and California edged Oakland 3-2.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Enos Cabell's two-run double in the seventh inning gave the Orioles their ninth straight season-end victory. Doyle Alexander (6-9) got the win.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

Ferguson Jenkins, not yet conceding the Cy Young Award to Catfish Hunter, matched the A's' ace for the major league lead in victories (25). Eric Soderholm homered for the Twins.

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Yankees 2, Brewers 1

Ron Blomberg belted a two-run homer and Pat Dobson won his 19th game — all in vain for the Yanks, who wound up two games back of the Orioles.

Indians 8, Red Sox 6

Gaylord Perry notched his 21st victory in Aspromonte's final game as Indians' manager.

Csonka, Kiick May Have Competition

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick may have a little competition in Memphis next year.

Csonka and Kiick, both stars with the National Football League Champion Miami Dolphins, have signed million dollar contracts with the World Football League Southmen and will join the club next season.

But rookies Willie Spencer and J. J. Jennings have things well in hand already for the Southmen.

Spencer, who never went to college and spent the last two years playing semi-pro football, rushed for 141 yards and five touchdowns and Jennings went over the 1,000-yard mark with an 80-yard effort last night as the Southmen crushed the Jacksonville Sharks 47-19. Spencer's five TDs tied a league record set earlier this year by Chicago's Mark Kellar.

The victory, combined with The Hawaiians' stunning 14-8 upset of the Birmingham Americans in Honolulu, left Memphis with a one-game lead in the Central Divsion.

Spencer opened the scoring with two one-yard runs in the first period and a three-yard burst in the second that gave Memphis a 21-11 lead halftime. He opened the second half with a six-yard TD and added a 19-yard run in the final period.

In other games last night, the Southern California Sun overcame the Storm before 20,469 in Portland, the Florida Blazers blasted the Bell 30-7 before 7,150 in Philadelphia and the Steamer edged the Detroit Wheels 14-11 before 22,012 in Shreveport. Charlotte, transplanted from New York last week, is at Chicago tonight in the national television game.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Former New York Giant quarterback Randy Johnson, in his first starting assignment for the Hawaiians, led them on drives of 95 and 90 yards in an upset of heavily-favored Birmingham.

Sun 26, Storm 22

Blazers 30, Bell 7

Tommy Reamon rushed for 130 yards and scored twice as the Blazers held their lead in the East by crushing Philadelphia.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

Rookie David Mays' eight-yard TD pass to Willie Frazier with 5:46 to play lifted Shreveport over Detroit.

PREP NOTES

Novato, San Marin Are Seen As Teams To Beat

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Until now I've refrained from making any predictions on the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season. Now that the practice season is over, however, the time has come to give Jeanne Dixon a run for her money.

The league's northernmost teams, San Marin and Novato, will battle for the championship. Drake and San Rafael will fight for third place, and Redwood, Terra Linda and Tamalpais will follow.

Novato tied Redwood for the MCAL title last year. But San Marin finished last, and a championship for the Mustangs under first year coach John Treu would be a real Cinderella story.

One needn't be a psychic to see why San Marin and Novato should be favored. They have the only winning records among MCAL teams in the pre-season, and they have been impressive both on offense and defense.

Additionally, each team has a bona fide superstar, the kind of player who can completely dominate a game, set its tone and determine its outcome.

San Marin has senior halfack Wayne Roche, last year's league-leading rusher and one of the finest backs to ever grace a prep uniform in Marin. He has rushed for over 500 yards and eight touchdowns in leading the Mustangs to three pre-season wins without a loss.

Novato's leader is quarterback Mike Moroski. As a junior, he came on midway through the 1973 season and guided the Hornets to five straight shutout victories. This year, he is bigger (6-feet, 190-pounds). And in the 1974 pre-season, Moroski improved, throwing for five touchdowns while engineering a pair of wins and a tie.

Defensively San Marin and Novato are tackles and linebackers above the rest of the league; they have surrendered only seven and 13 points respectively in the pre-season. As strong as they are, however, neither San Marin nor Novato will go undefeated. one will of course lose to the other when they meet Nov. 2, and the rest of the league is strong enough to produce at least one upset of the eventual champion.

The biggest threat to the frontrunners will come from Drake and San Rafael. These are well balanced teams which are led by fine passers, Terry Fahey for Drake and Dave Steele for S.R. And if pre-season scores are an indication, they are about equal. Drake had a loss, a tie and a 12-7 victory over the Vallejo Apaches. San Rafael lost to Napa and beat Vallejo, 13-0.

Terra Linda and Redwood were 1-2 and 0-3 respectively in the pre-season, but they played tougher schedules than other MCAL teams and should give a better accounting in the league. Both have strong defenses and weak offenses — inability to move the ball consistently will hurt them.

Tamalpais may be the surprise of the league. In recent years, the Indians have suffered from a poor turnout and lack of support; they finished just ahead of San Marin in '73, last in '72. But in junior Dan Lucia they have a fine quarterback, and second year coach Jess Racines seems to have brought a new spirit to the team.

Last-Place Angels Finish Season On Positive Note

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels finished the season in the American League West cellar, 22 games behind the division champion Oakland A's.

For Manager Dick Williams, it was quite a drop.

Williams managed Oakland to a World Championship in 1973 and then took over the Angels this year at mid-season. It was, obviously, going from a winner to a loser.

But Williams, who also turned Boston into a winner during his tenure there, is optimistic about 1975 — even if the Angels finished at 68-94.

"It was good to end the season on a positive note," he said after the Angels pulled out a 3-2 victory over Oakland last night in the regular season finale.

"Our overall record may not show it but we've done really well the last weeks of the season. I've only been manager half the season so I'm ready to go again. We can't wait for spring."

During the Angels' final five-game homestand, they got three consecutive complete-game shutouts from Nolan Ryan, Andy Hassler and Frank Tanana — Ryan's a no-hitter against Minnesota.

Chuck Dobson made it four complete games in a row by stopping Oakland on five hits and running California's win streak to five. The skein enabled the club to avoid tying its team record of 95 losses, although the Angels finished in the cellar for the first time in their history.

Williams is high on the Angels' pitching staff.

"We may have the best pitching staff in the majors next year," he said. "We need some balance in the bullpen, especially a good short man, but we'll be ready for spring training."

Denny Doyle highlighted a two-run ninth inning rally with a bases-loaded single. Pinch-hitter Ellie Rodriguez doubled in the tying run. Lee Stanton hit his 11th homer in the seventh inning.

Joe Rudi hit his 22nd homer in the fourth inning with Reggie Jackson on for Oakland. Paul Lindblad lost for the A's.

Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton said there should be no need for a major revamping of the team for next year.

"Next season, we'll have a good young experienced staring rotation," Dalton said. "There is no need for a major deal if the talent we have here comes through the way we expect them to.

"Even our weakest spot in the bullpen showed a 40 per cent improvement from the middle of the season on."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

It's Over For All But A's, Orioles

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Over.

For the New York Yankees it was. For Al Kaline it was. For Ken Aspromonte it was. For everyone in the American League it was — everyone that is except the Baltimore Orioles and the world champion Oakland Athletics.

For all intents and purposes, the 1974 American League baseball season ended Tuesday night when the New York Yankees dropped a 3-2, 10th inning decision to the Brewers in Milwaukee, but on the final day there were still a few items left on the agenda.

For one thing, the Orioles needed to prove that they didn't back into the Eastern Division championship after the Yankees' loss the night before. They proved it — beating Detroit 5-4 for their ninth straight victory down the torrid stretch run.

Thus the Yankees' 2-1 season finale win over the Brewers was academic. No matter what had happened the night before — even if Bobby Murcer had played right field instead of Lou Piniella, who had misplayed an eighth inning flyball into a triple that eventually led to the tying run — the Yankees would still be No. 2 today instead of No. 1 because the Orioles simply didn't know how to lose when it all counted.

As for Kaline, his brilliant 22-year career, which featured a batting title at 24 in 1955 and 3,007 hits all told, also was over. Sad, well yes. But even sadder was that it ended with boos instead of cheers.

The 39-year old future Hall of Famer removed himself from the game in the fifth inning of the Tigers' loss to the Orioles despite having perhaps two more shots at his 400th career homer. The 4,671 fans on hand greeted that decision with boos as Kaline, on his final day in the major leagues, went 0-for-2- — finishing with a .297 lifetime average.

Elsewhere in AL action, Chicago edged Kansas City 5-4, Texas nipped Minnesota 2-1, Cleveland outslugged Boston 8-6 and California edged Oakland 3-2.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Enos Cabell's two-run double in the seventh inning gave the Orioles their ninth straight season-end victory. Doyle Alexander (6-9) got the win.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

Ferguson Jenkins, not yet conceding the Cy Young Award to Catfish Hunter, matched the A's' ace for the major league lead in victories (25). Eric Soderholm homered for the Twins.

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Yankees 2, Brewers 1

Ron Blomberg belted a two-run homer and Pat Dobson won his 19th game — all in vain for the Yanks, who wound up two games back of the Orioles.

Indians 8, Red Sox 6

Gaylord Perry notched his 21st victory in Aspromonte's final game as Indians' manager.

Csonka, Kiick May Have Competition

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick may have a little competition in Memphis next year.

Csonka and Kiick, both stars with the National Football League Champion Miami Dolphins, have signed million dollar contracts with the World Football League Southmen and will join the club next season.

But rookies Willie Spencer and J. J. Jennings have things well in hand already for the Southmen.

Spencer, who never went to college and spent the last two years playing semi-pro football, rushed for 141 yards and five touchdowns and Jennings went over the 1,000-yard mark with an 80-yard effort last night as the Southmen crushed the Jacksonville Sharks 47-19. Spencer's five TDs tied a league record set earlier this year by Chicago's Mark Kellar.

The victory, combined with The Hawaiians' stunning 14-8 upset of the Birmingham Americans in Honolulu, left Memphis with a one-game lead in the Central Divsion.

Spencer opened the scoring with two one-yard runs in the first period and a three-yard burst in the second that gave Memphis a 21-11 lead halftime. He opened the second half with a six-yard TD and added a 19-yard run in the final period.

In other games last night, the Southern California Sun overcame the Storm before 20,469 in Portland, the Florida Blazers blasted the Bell 30-7 before 7,150 in Philadelphia and the Steamer edged the Detroit Wheels 14-11 before 22,012 in Shreveport. Charlotte, transplanted from New York last week, is at Chicago tonight in the national television game.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Former New York Giant quarterback Randy Johnson, in his first starting assignment for the Hawaiians, led them on drives of 95 and 90 yards in an upset of heavily-favored Birmingham.

Sun 26, Storm 22

Blazers 30, Bell 7

Tommy Reamon rushed for 130 yards and scored twice as the Blazers held their lead in the East by crushing Philadelphia.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

Rookie David Mays' eight-yard TD pass to Willie Frazier with 5:46 to play lifted Shreveport over Detroit.

PREP NOTES

Novato, San Marin Are Seen As Teams To Beat

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Until now I've refrained from making any predictions on the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season. Now that the practice season is over, however, the time has come to give Jeanne Dixon a run for her money.

The league's northernmost teams, San Marin and Novato, will battle for the championship. Drake and San Rafael will fight for third place, and Redwood, Terra Linda and Tamalpais will follow.

Novato tied Redwood for the MCAL title last year. But San Marin finished last, and a championship for the Mustangs under first year coach John Treu would be a real Cinderella story.

One needn't be a psychic to see why San Marin and Novato should be favored. They have the only winning records among MCAL teams in the pre-season, and they have been impressive both on offense and defense.

Additionally, each team has a bona fide superstar, the kind of player who can completely dominate a game, set its tone and determine its outcome.

San Marin has senior halfack Wayne Roche, last year's league-leading rusher and one of the finest backs to ever grace a prep uniform in Marin. He has rushed for over 500 yards and eight touchdowns in leading the Mustangs to three pre-season wins without a loss.

Novato's leader is quarterback Mike Moroski. As a junior, he came on midway through the 1973 season and guided the Hornets to five straight shutout victories. This year, he is bigger (6-feet, 190-pounds). And in the 1974 pre-season, Moroski improved, throwing for five touchdowns while engineering a pair of wins and a tie.

Defensively San Marin and Novato are tackles and linebackers above the rest of the league; they have surrendered only seven and 13 points respectively in the pre-season. As strong as they are, however, neither San Marin nor Novato will go undefeated. one will of course lose to the other when they meet Nov. 2, and the rest of the league is strong enough to produce at least one upset of the eventual champion.

The biggest threat to the frontrunners will come from Drake and San Rafael. These are well balanced teams which are led by fine passers, Terry Fahey for Drake and Dave Steele for S.R. And if pre-season scores are an indication, they are about equal. Drake had a loss, a tie and a 12-7 victory over the Vallejo Apaches. San Rafael lost to Napa and beat Vallejo, 13-0.

Terra Linda and Redwood were 1-2 and 0-3 respectively in the pre-season, but they played tougher schedules than other MCAL teams and should give a better accounting in the league. Both have strong defenses and weak offenses — inability to move the ball consistently will hurt them.

Tamalpais may be the surprise of the league. In recent years, the Indians have suffered from a poor turnout and lack of support; they finished just ahead of San Marin in '73, last in '72. But in junior Dan Lucia they have a fine quarterback, and second year coach Jess Racines seems to have brought a new spirit to the team.

As for Kaline, his brilliant 22-year career, which featured a batting title at 24 in 1955 and 3,007 hits all told, also was over. Sad, well yes. But even sadder was that it ended with boos instead of cheers.

The 39-year old future Hall of Famer removed himself from the game in the fifth inning of the Tigers' loss to the Orioles despite having perhaps two more shots at his 400th career homer. The 4,671 fans on hand greeted that decision with boos as Kaline, on his final day in the major leagues, went 0-for-2- — finishing with a .297 lifetime average.

Elsewhere in AL action, Chicago edged Kansas City 5-4, Texas nipped Minnesota 2-1, Cleveland outslugged Boston 8-6 and California edged Oakland 3-2.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Enos Cabell's two-run double in the seventh inning gave the Orioles their ninth straight season-end victory. Doyle Alexander (6-9) got the win.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

Ferguson Jenkins, not yet conceding the Cy Young Award to Catfish Hunter, matched the A's' ace for the major league lead in victories (25). Eric Soderholm homered for the Twins.

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Yankees 2, Brewers 1

Ron Blomberg belted a two-run homer and Pat Dobson won his 19th game — all in vain for the Yanks, who wound up two games back of the Orioles.

Indians 8, Red Sox 6

Gaylord Perry notched his 21st victory in Aspromonte's final game as Indians' manager.

Csonka, Kiick May Have Competition

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick may have a little competition in Memphis next year.

Csonka and Kiick, both stars with the National Football League Champion Miami Dolphins, have signed million dollar contracts with the World Football League Southmen and will join the club next season.

But rookies Willie Spencer and J. J. Jennings have things well in hand already for the Southmen.

Spencer, who never went to college and spent the last two years playing semi-pro football, rushed for 141 yards and five touchdowns and Jennings went over the 1,000-yard mark with an 80-yard effort last night as the Southmen crushed the Jacksonville Sharks 47-19. Spencer's five TDs tied a league record set earlier this year by Chicago's Mark Kellar.

The victory, combined with The Hawaiians' stunning 14-8 upset of the Birmingham Americans in Honolulu, left Memphis with a one-game lead in the Central Divsion.

Spencer opened the scoring with two one-yard runs in the first period and a three-yard burst in the second that gave Memphis a 21-11 lead halftime. He opened the second half with a six-yard TD and added a 19-yard run in the final period.

In other games last night, the Southern California Sun overcame the Storm before 20,469 in Portland, the Florida Blazers blasted the Bell 30-7 before 7,150 in Philadelphia and the Steamer edged the Detroit Wheels 14-11 before 22,012 in Shreveport. Charlotte, transplanted from New York last week, is at Chicago tonight in the national television game.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Former New York Giant quarterback Randy Johnson, in his first starting assignment for the Hawaiians, led them on drives of 95 and 90 yards in an upset of heavily-favored Birmingham.

Sun 26, Storm 22

Blazers 30, Bell 7

Tommy Reamon rushed for 130 yards and scored twice as the Blazers held their lead in the East by crushing Philadelphia.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

Rookie David Mays' eight-yard TD pass to Willie Frazier with 5:46 to play lifted Shreveport over Detroit.

PREP NOTES

Novato, San Marin Are Seen As Teams To Beat

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Until now I've refrained from making any predictions on the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season. Now that the practice season is over, however, the time has come to give Jeanne Dixon a run for her money.

The league's northernmost teams, San Marin and Novato, will battle for the championship. Drake and San Rafael will fight for third place, and Redwood, Terra Linda and Tamalpais will follow.

Novato tied Redwood for the MCAL title last year. But San Marin finished last, and a championship for the Mustangs under first year coach John Treu would be a real Cinderella story.

One needn't be a psychic to see why San Marin and Novato should be favored. They have the only winning records among MCAL teams in the pre-season, and they have been impressive both on offense and defense.

Additionally, each team has a bona fide superstar, the kind of player who can completely dominate a game, set its tone and determine its outcome.

San Marin has senior halfack Wayne Roche, last year's league-leading rusher and one of the finest backs to ever grace a prep uniform in Marin. He has rushed for over 500 yards and eight touchdowns in leading the Mustangs to three pre-season wins without a loss.

Novato's leader is quarterback Mike Moroski. As a junior, he came on midway through the 1973 season and guided the Hornets to five straight shutout victories. This year, he is bigger (6-feet, 190-pounds). And in the 1974 pre-season, Moroski improved, throwing for five touchdowns while engineering a pair of wins and a tie.

Defensively San Marin and Novato are tackles and linebackers above the rest of the league; they have surrendered only seven and 13 points respectively in the pre-season. As strong as they are, however, neither San Marin nor Novato will go undefeated. one will of course lose to the other when they meet Nov. 2, and the rest of the league is strong enough to produce at least one upset of the eventual champion.

The biggest threat to the frontrunners will come from Drake and San Rafael. These are well balanced teams which are led by fine passers, Terry Fahey for Drake and Dave Steele for S.R. And if pre-season scores are an indication, they are about equal. Drake had a loss, a tie and a 12-7 victory over the Vallejo Apaches. San Rafael lost to Napa and beat Vallejo, 13-0.

Terra Linda and Redwood were 1-2 and 0-3 respectively in the pre-season, but they played tougher schedules than other MCAL teams and should give a better accounting in the league. Both have strong defenses and weak offenses — inability to move the ball consistently will hurt them.

Tamalpais may be the surprise of the league. In recent years, the Indians have suffered from a poor turnout and lack of support; they finished just ahead of San Marin in '73, last in '72. But in junior Dan Lucia they have a fine quarterback, and second year coach Jess Racines seems to have brought a new spirit to the team.

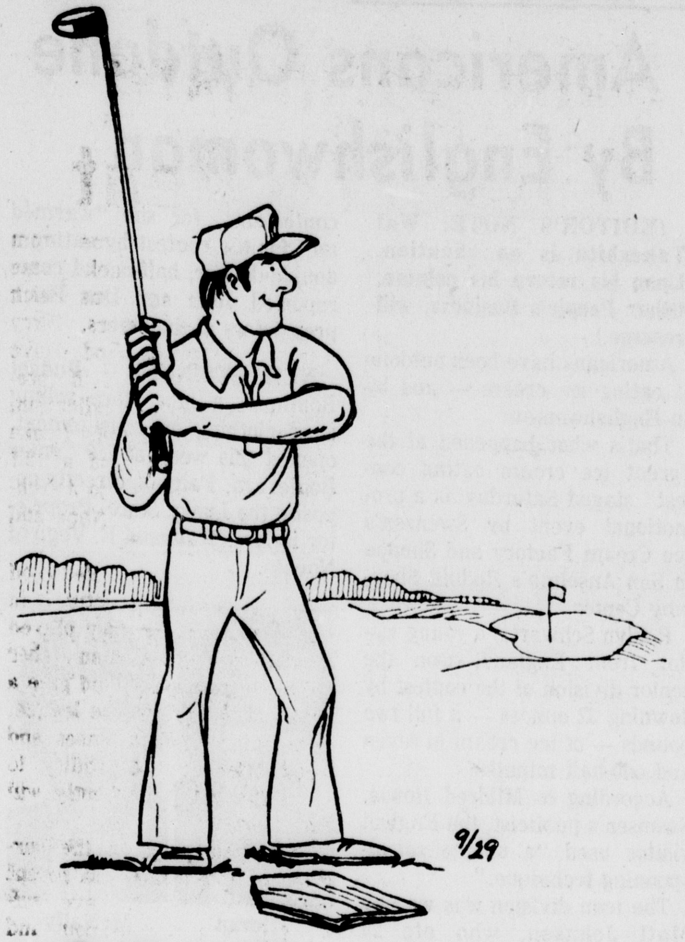
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Call It Togetherness

By LEE TREVINO

Kooky as it sounds, golf could be played from a batter's stance — legs apart and club (bat) cocked behind the head. Then we wouldn't have to worry about the backswing, right?

Nope. In golf, the downswing is a reaction to an action. When the club is placed behind the ball, you're feeling it out for distance, comfort and direction.

For 90 per cent of the golfers, the backswing begins with a small move of the hands toward the target (forward press). Then the arms start back together. You could strap them together loosely at the elbow and still hit a good shot.

The downswing begins with the left hip. Stand in a doorway with your left foot against the side of the door. Without a club, take a normal backswing.

Coming down, slide your hip until it almost touches the left side of the door. Then start uncoiling the shoulders. As for the hands, when the arms come down as a unit, the hands will come into the hitting area by themselves.

Novato-Drake Tomorrow

Novato and Drake high schools meet tomorrow in the opening game of the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season, and they can hardly wait to get at it.

The game, at College of Marin starting at 4 p.m., will feature two of the MCAL's best quarterbacks in Novato's Mike Moroski and Drake's Terry Fahey. But the key to the outcome may hinge on Novato's defense.

Moroski has been sensational in the pre-season, throwing five touchdowns as Novato won two games and tied another. Drake has a win, a loss and a tie behind Fahey, last year's leading passer in the MCAL.

"Moroski can do a job if you give him the time, but we'll give them a good ball game," says Drake coach Dean Lazzarini. "It's a big game right away, and I like that."

Novato coach Al Scott concurs. "It's an advantage to start off with a food football team, and I feel that Drake has one of the best teams in the league."

Scott is pinning his hopes for a second straight MCAL title on a defense almost entirely rebuilt from last year. So far it has proven exceptionally strong, allowing only two touchdowns in three games.

In an MCAL opener tomorrow night, San Rafael hosts San Marin at Miller Field. Tamalpais, having drawn the first league bye, travels to Sacramento for a non-league game against North Highland. Both games begin at 8 o'clock.

Redwood and Terra Linda clash in an MCAL opener at Miller Field Saturday night at 8. Independent Marin Catholic hosts Lincoln of San Francisco that afternoon at 1.

Redwood Harriers Win Pair

Redwood High School's varsity cross country team took two victories against its stiffest foes yesterday to take a long step toward the Marin County Athletic League title.

Redwood defeated San Rafael and Tamalpais to run its league record to 4-0. Yesterday's wins were on the San Rafael Ridgewood Course.

There were more than 80 runners competing in varsity, frosh-soph and girls divisions. Hal Schulz of Redwood won the varsity competition in course record time of 15:43.

In another MCAL meet yesterday, Drake was a double winner over San Marin and Terra Linda in a three-way meet at San Marin High School.

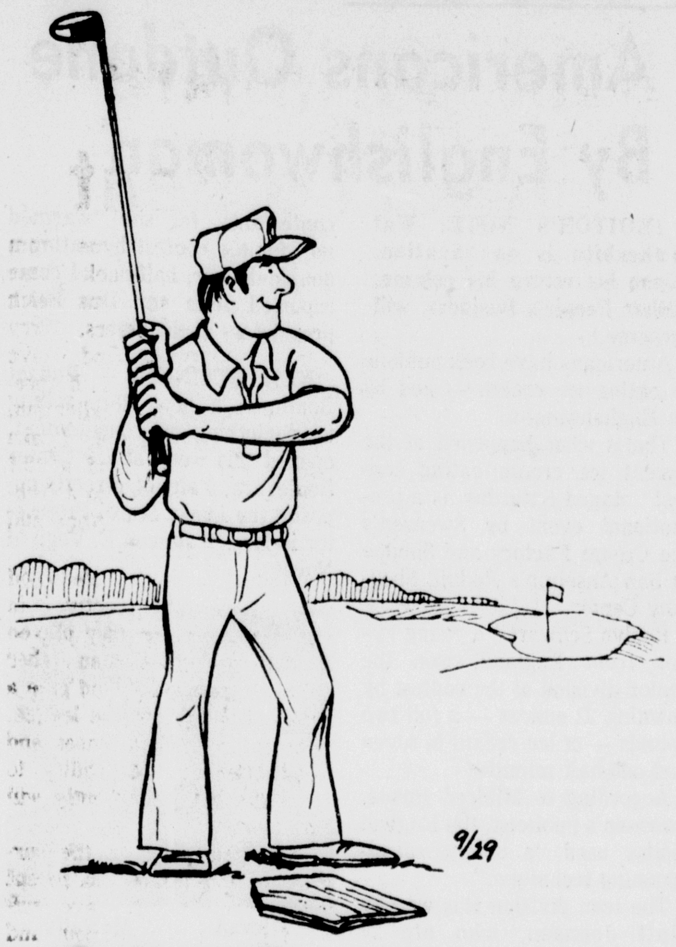
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Call It Togetherness

By LEE TREVINO

Kooky as it sounds, golf could be played from a batter's stance — legs apart and club (bat) cocked behind the head. Then we wouldn't have to worry about the backswing, right?

Nope. In golf, the downswing is a reaction to an action. When the club is placed behind the ball, you're feeling it out for distance, comfort and direction.

For 90 per cent of the golfers, the backswing begins with a small move of the hands toward the target (forward press). Then the arms start back together. You could strap them together loosely at the elbow and still hit a good shot.

The downswing begins with the left hip. Stand in a doorway with your left foot against the side of the door. Without a club, take a normal backswing.

Coming down, slide your hip until it almost touches the left side of the door. Then start uncoiling the shoulders. As for the hands, when the arms come down as a unit, the hands will come into the hitting area by themselves.

Novato-Drake Tomorrow

Novato and Drake high schools meet tomorrow in the opening game of the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season, and they can hardly wait to get at it.

The game, at College of Marin starting at 4 p.m., will feature two of the MCAL's best quarterbacks in Novato's Mike Moroski and Drake's Terry Fahey. But the key to the outcome may hinge on Novato's defense.

Moroski has been sensational in the pre-season, throwing five touchdowns as Novato won two games and tied another. Drake has a win, a loss and a tie behind Fahey, last year's leading passer in the MCAL.

"Moroski can do a job if you give him the time, but we'll give them a good ball game," says Drake coach Dean Lazzarini. "It's a big game right away, and I like that."

Novato coach Al Scott concurs. "It's an advantage to start off with a food football team, and I feel that Drake has one of the best teams in the league."

Scott is pinning his hopes for a second straight MCAL title on a defense almost entirely rebuilt from last year. So far it has proven exceptionally strong, allowing only two touchdowns in three games.

In an MCAL opener tomorrow night, San Rafael hosts San Marin at Miller Field. Tamalpais, having drawn the first league bye, travels to Sacramento for a non-league game against North Highland. Both games begin at 8 o'clock.

Redwood and Terra Linda clash in an MCAL opener at Miller Field Saturday night at 8. Independent Marin Catholic hosts Lincoln of San Francisco that afternoon at 1.

Redwood Harriers Win Pair

Redwood High School's varsity cross country team took two victories against its stiffest foes yesterday to take a long step toward the Marin County Athletic League title.

Redwood defeated San Rafael and Tamalpais to run its league record to 4-0. Yesterday's wins were on the San Rafael Ridgewood Course.

There were more than 80 runners competing in varsity, frosh-soph and girls divisions. Hal Schulz of Redwood won the varsity competition in course record time of 15:43.

In another MCAL meet yesterday, Drake was a double winner over San Marin and Terra Linda in a three-way meet at San Marin High School.

Novato-Drake Tomorrow

Novato and Drake high schools meet tomorrow in the opening game of the 1974 Marin County Athletic League football season, and they can hardly wait to get at it.

The game, at College of Marin starting at 4 p.m., will feature two of the MCAL's best quarterbacks in Novato's Mike Moroski and Drake's Terry Fahey. But the key to the outcome may hinge on Novato's defense.

Moroski has been sensational in the pre-season, throwing five touchdowns as Novato won two games and tied another. Drake has a win, a loss and a tie behind Fahey, last year's leading passer in the MCAL.

"Moroski can do a job if you give him the time, but we'll give them a good ball game," says Drake coach Dean Lazzarini. "It's a big game right away, and I like that."

Novato coach Al Scott concurs. "It's an advantage to start off with a food football team, and I feel that Drake has one of the best teams in the league."

Scott is pinning his hopes for a second straight MCAL title on a defense almost entirely rebuilt from last year. So far it has proven exceptionally strong, allowing only two touchdowns in three games.

In an MCAL opener tomorrow night, San Rafael hosts San Marin at Miller Field. Tamalpais, having drawn the first league bye, travels to Sacramento for a non-league game against North Highland. Both games begin at 8 o'clock.

Redwood and Terra Linda clash in an MCAL opener at Miller Field Saturday night at 8. Independent Marin Catholic hosts Lincoln of San Francisco that afternoon at 1.

Redwood Harriers Win Pair

Redwood High School's varsity cross country team took two victories against its stiffest foes yesterday to take a long step toward the Marin County Athletic League title.

Redwood defeated San Rafael and Tamalpais to run its league record to 4-0. Yesterday's wins were on the San Rafael Ridgewood Course.

There were more than 80 runners competing in varsity, frosh-soph and girls divisions. Hal Schulz of Redwood won the varsity competition in course record time of 15:43.

In another MCAL meet yesterday, Drake was a double winner over San Marin and Terra Linda in a three-way meet at San Marin High School.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Don't Sell Now; Wait For A Rally

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. We are worried about the decrease in value of our mutual fund holdings. Should we sit tight or sell for whatever we can salvage? Our funds are Dividend Shares and Investors Mutual. — T.W.

A. Although I would not recommend liquidating either fund at this time, you might, on a rally, exchange part or all of Investors Mutual for Investor Selective. The latter, under the same management aegis, has a more impressive long-term performance record. In the last decade, Mutual has provided a total return of 39 per cent versus 60 per cent for Selective. The respective sizes of the two funds (total assets of $2 billion for Mutual compared with $93 million for Selective), as well as their different objectives, no doubt have been a factor in their diverse results. Nonetheless, Mutual's common stock portfolio is comprised of well-known blue chips and growth issues, sectors which would be the first to recover in a market turn. Currently, Mutual, a balanced fund, yields 6.3 per cent from income dividends, while Selective, a bond fund, yields 9.3 per cent.

Despite considerable lightening of its utility holdings, this group represents about 8 per cent of Dividend Shares' portfolio. IBM alone accounts for 13 per cent and oils a similar amount. Chemicals and finance issues are also held in significant amounts. Cash and equivalents were equal to 7 per cent of total assets as of June 30, 1974. The fund yields 4.3 per cent. A 76 per cent increase in value in the 1964-73 period justifies retention of this fund.

Q. Would you recommend some bond funds? I prefer open ends with possible capital appreciation. — W.G.

Q. Should I hold or sell American General Bond Fund? — A.W.

A. American General, a closed-end fund yielding about 10 per cent, is well worth holding. Two open-end bond funds for high yield and modest appreciation are Investors Selective (see above) and Northeast Investors, a no-load. All three funds hold good-quality bond portfolios. For a somewhat more "swinging" bond fund (lower quality discount bonds), Keystone B-4 couples an 11 per cent yield with good potential for capital gains.

Stock Prices Down Again In Slow-Trading Market

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which has lost 72 points in the previous nine sessions, was off nine and a half points shortly before noon EDT. Closing of 601.53 yesterday was the lowest since it closed at 597.13 on Nov. 1, 1962.

Observers have noted there are many good buys around the market, but investors are showing a lack of confidence in the nation's economic leadership. There is deep concern about inflation on Wall Street and it has grown with monetary gyrations caused by huge price increases imposed on the industrialized world by oil-producing nations.

Oil Official Sees No Major Hike In Fuel Prices

NEW ORLEANS (BW) — H.J. Haynes, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of California, has told a news conference here he doesn't look for any significant price increases this winter for gasoline or other petroleum products.

Supplies of petroleum should be adequate, he said, "Barring any unforeseen political upheavals in the world, or any unusual weather situation."

He pointed out that petroleum prices are still subject to federal price controls and that this, along with individual conservation efforts by motorists, has tended to standardize prices and balance supply.

Oil consumption in the U.S. was off an average of 5 per cent in the first six months, Haynes reported.

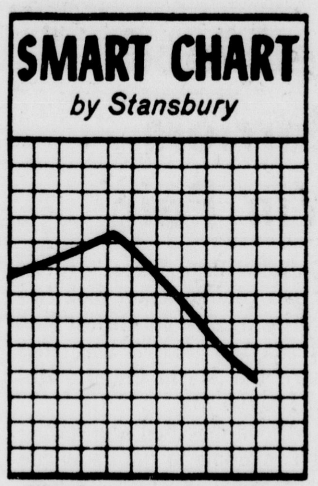
Executive Says Oil Will Be Available

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Geoge M. Keller, vice chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of California, said his company is confident it will continue to have access to Arabian oil "in volumes comparable to those of the recent past."

Standard also foresees "the prospect of slow, but steady growth" in the volume of Arab production in the future, Keller said.

1975 FLEETWOOD ELDORADO

The new Cadillac Fleetwood Eldorado series again features both coupe and convertible models, and rectangular headlights. A newly styled grille is highlighted by larger rectangular openings and bold vertical fins, and front fender has been redsigned. The park and signal lamps are relocated and recessed in the lower bumper area below the headlamps. The rear wheel openings are new, and no longer feature a cover. Marin dealer is Bianco Cadillac in Corte Madera.



"Let's run an ad to explain how our losing money this year will make us money next year."

New Building Off In Marin

Total value of building permits in Marin for August dropped 54.8 per cent below last August's construction total, the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau has reported.

Permits last month totalled $5,648,801, while for August, 1973, total construction was valued at $12,502,855.

Construction lagged 33 per cent below last year's total for the first eight months of the year. Commerical construction dropped 58 per cent for that period, residential building was down 24.2 per cent, and public and other consturction dropped 29.3 per cent, the bureau reported.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.78 cents per fine ounce up 26 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.78 up 26 cents and fabricated silver at $4.90 up 30.3 cents.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Americans Outdone By Englishwoman

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Wat Takeshita is on vacation. Upon his return his column, Other People's Business, will resume.)

Americans have been outdone at eating ice cream — and by an Englishwoman!

That's what happened at the "great ice cream eating contest" staged Saturday as a promotional event by Swensen's Ice Cream Factory and Shoppe in San Anselmo's Redhill Shopping Center.

Roslyn Schwartz, a young visitor from England, won the senior division of the contest by downing 32 ounces — a full two pounds — of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes.

The teen division was won by Matt Johnsen, who ate 24 ounces of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes. His record was tied in the junior division by 10-year-old Linda Turnbull of San Anselmo. Actually, though, Linda out-ate the older contestants, for she "warmed up" for the contest by eating a double-decker, half-pound cone, reported Joan and Don Ham, proprietors of the store.

NEW BUSINESS — Budget Boutique, a new store selling used clothing on consignment, opened this week at 769 Center Boulevard, Fairfax, directly opposite the Lucky Store. Proprietor is Mrs. Waltraud E. Vega of Novato.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Don't Sell Now; Wait For A Rally

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. We are worried about the decrease in value of our mutual fund holdings. Should we sit tight or sell for whatever we can salvage? Our funds are Dividend Shares and Investors Mutual. — T.W.

A. Although I would not recommend liquidating either fund at this time, you might, on a rally, exchange part or all of Investors Mutual for Investor Selective. The latter, under the same management aegis, has a more impressive long-term performance record. In the last decade, Mutual has provided a total return of 39 per cent versus 60 per cent for Selective. The respective sizes of the two funds (total assets of $2 billion for Mutual compared with $93 million for Selective), as well as their different objectives, no doubt have been a factor in their diverse results. Nonetheless, Mutual's common stock portfolio is comprised of well-known blue chips and growth issues, sectors which would be the first to recover in a market turn. Currently, Mutual, a balanced fund, yields 6.3 per cent from income dividends, while Selective, a bond fund, yields 9.3 per cent.

Despite considerable lightening of its utility holdings, this group represents about 8 per cent of Dividend Shares' portfolio. IBM alone accounts for 13 per cent and oils a similar amount. Chemicals and finance issues are also held in significant amounts. Cash and equivalents were equal to 7 per cent of total assets as of June 30, 1974. The fund yields 4.3 per cent. A 76 per cent increase in value in the 1964-73 period justifies retention of this fund.

Q. Would you recommend some bond funds? I prefer open ends with possible capital appreciation. — W.G.

Q. Should I hold or sell American General Bond Fund? — A.W.

A. American General, a closed-end fund yielding about 10 per cent, is well worth holding. Two open-end bond funds for high yield and modest appreciation are Investors Selective (see above) and Northeast Investors, a no-load. All three funds hold good-quality bond portfolios. For a somewhat more "swinging" bond fund (lower quality discount bonds), Keystone B-4 couples an 11 per cent yield with good potential for capital gains.

Stock Prices Down Again In Slow-Trading Market

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which has lost 72 points in the previous nine sessions, was off nine and a half points shortly before noon EDT. Closing of 601.53 yesterday was the lowest since it closed at 597.13 on Nov. 1, 1962.

Observers have noted there are many good buys around the market, but investors are showing a lack of confidence in the nation's economic leadership. There is deep concern about inflation on Wall Street and it has grown with monetary gyrations caused by huge price increases imposed on the industrialized world by oil-producing nations.

Oil Official Sees No Major Hike In Fuel Prices

NEW ORLEANS (BW) — H.J. Haynes, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of California, has told a news conference here he doesn't look for any significant price increases this winter for gasoline or other petroleum products.

Supplies of petroleum should be adequate, he said, "Barring any unforeseen political upheavals in the world, or any unusual weather situation."

He pointed out that petroleum prices are still subject to federal price controls and that this, along with individual conservation efforts by motorists, has tended to standardize prices and balance supply.

Oil consumption in the U.S. was off an average of 5 per cent in the first six months, Haynes reported.

Executive Says Oil Will Be Available

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Geoge M. Keller, vice chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of California, said his company is confident it will continue to have access to Arabian oil "in volumes comparable to those of the recent past."

Standard also foresees "the prospect of slow, but steady growth" in the volume of Arab production in the future, Keller said.

1975 FLEETWOOD ELDORADO

The new Cadillac Fleetwood Eldorado series again features both coupe and convertible models, and rectangular headlights. A newly styled grille is highlighted by larger rectangular openings and bold vertical fins, and front fender has been redsigned. The park and signal lamps are relocated and recessed in the lower bumper area below the headlamps. The rear wheel openings are new, and no longer feature a cover. Marin dealer is Bianco Cadillac in Corte Madera.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Americans Outdone By Englishwoman

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Wat Takeshita is on vacation. Upon his return his column, Other People's Business, will resume.)

Americans have been outdone at eating ice cream — and by an Englishwoman!

That's what happened at the "great ice cream eating contest" staged Saturday as a promotional event by Swensen's Ice Cream Factory and Shoppe in San Anselmo's Redhill Shopping Center.

Roslyn Schwartz, a young visitor from England, won the senior division of the contest by downing 32 ounces — a full two pounds — of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes.

The teen division was won by Matt Johnsen, who ate 24 ounces of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes. His record was tied in the junior division by 10-year-old Linda Turnbull of San Anselmo. Actually, though, Linda out-ate the older contestants, for she "warmed up" for the contest by eating a double-decker, half-pound cone reported Joan and Don Ham proprietors of the store.

NEW BUSINESS — Budge Boutique, a new store selling used clothing on consignment opened this week at 769 Center Boulevard, Fairfax, directly opposite the Lucky Store. Proprietor is Mrs. Waltraud E. Vega of Novato.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Don't Sell Now; Wait For A Rally

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. We are worried about the decrease in value of our mutual fund holdings. Should we sit tight or sell for whatever we can salvage? Our funds are Dividend Shares and Investors Mutual. — T.W.

A. Although I would not recommend liquidating either fund at this time, you might, on a rally, exchange part or all of Investors Mutual for Investor Selective. The latter, under the same management aegis, has a more impressive long-term performance record. In the last decade, Mutual has provided a total return of 39 per cent versus 60 per cent for Selective. The respective sizes of the two funds (total assets of $2 billion for Mutual compared with $93 million for Selective), as well as their different objectives, no doubt have been a factor in their diverse results. Nonetheless, Mutual's common stock portfolio is comprised of well-known blue chips and growth issues, sectors which would be the first to recover in a market turn. Currently, Mutual, a balanced fund, yields 6.3 per cent from income dividends, while Selective, a bond fund, yields 9.3 per cent.

Despite considerable lightening of its utility holdings, this group represents about 8 per cent of Dividend Shares' portfolio. IBM alone accounts for 13 per cent and oils a similar amount. Chemicals and finance issues are also held in significant amounts. Cash and equivalents were equal to 7 per cent of total assets as of June 30, 1974. The fund yields 4.3 per cent. A 76 per cent increase in value in the 1964-73 period justifies retention of this fund.

Q. Would you recommend some bond funds? I prefer open ends with possible capital appreciation. — W.G.

Q. Should I hold or sell American General Bond Fund? — A.W.

A. American General, a closed-end fund yielding about 10 per cent, is well worth holding. Two open-end bond funds for high yield and modest appreciation are Investors Selective (see above) and Northeast Investors, a no-load. All three funds hold good-quality bond portfolios. For a somewhat more "swinging" bond fund (lower quality discount bonds), Keystone B-4 couples an 11 per cent yield with good potential for capital gains.

Stock Prices Down Again In Slow-Trading Market

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which has lost 72 points in the previous nine sessions, was off nine and a half points shortly before noon EDT. Closing of 601.53 yesterday was the lowest since it closed at 597.13 on Nov. 1, 1962.

Observers have noted there are many good buys around the market, but investors are showing a lack of confidence in the nation's economic leadership. There is deep concern about inflation on Wall Street and it has grown with monetary gyrations caused by huge price increases imposed on the industrialized world by oil-producing nations.

Oil Official Sees No Major Hike In Fuel Prices

NEW ORLEANS (BW) — H.J. Haynes, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of California, has told a news conference here he doesn't look for any significant price increases this winter for gasoline or other petroleum products.

Supplies of petroleum should be adequate, he said, "Barring any unforeseen political upheavals in the world, or any unusual weather situation."

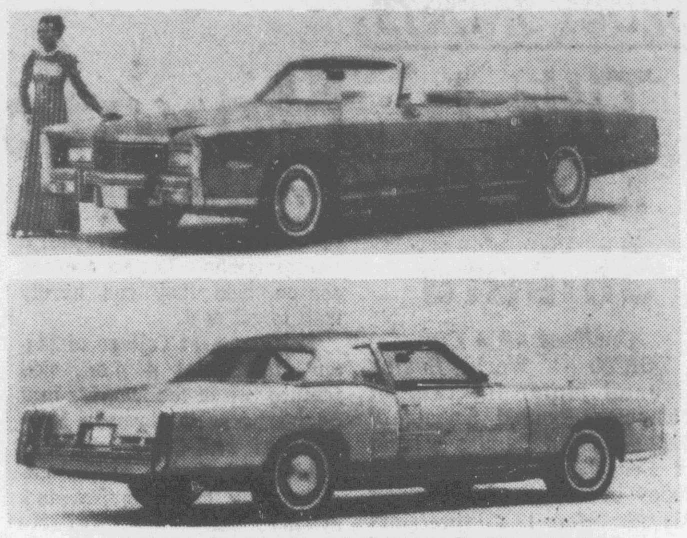
He pointed out that petroleum prices are still subject to federal price controls and that this, along with individual conservation efforts by motorists, has tended to standardize prices and balance supply.

Oil consumption in the U.S. was off an average of 5 per cent in the first six months, Haynes reported.

Executive Says Oil Will Be Available

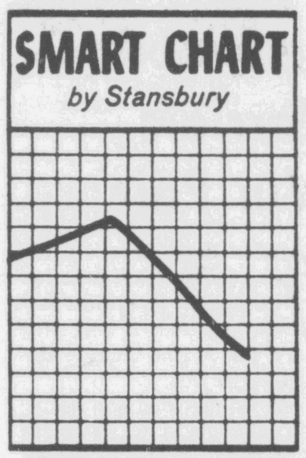
LOS ANGELES (BW) — Geoge M. Keller, vice chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of California, said his company is confident it will continue to have access to Arabian oil "in volumes comparable to those of the recent past."

Standard also foresees "the prospect of slow, but steady growth" in the volume of Arab production in the future, Keller said.



1975 FLEETWOOD ELDORADO

The new Cadillac Fleetwood Eldorado series again features both coupe and convertible models, and rectangular headlights. A newly styled grille is highlighted by larger rectangular openings and bold vertical fins, and front fender has been redsigned. The park and signal lamps are relocated and recessed in the lower bumper area below the headlamps. The rear wheel openings are new, and no longer feature a cover. Marin dealer is Bianco Cadillac in Corte Madera.



"Let's run an ad to explain how our losing money this year will make us money next year."

New Building Off In Marin

Total value of building permits in Marin for August dropped 54.8 per cent below last August's construction total, the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau has reported.

Permits last month totalled $5,648,801, while for August, 1973, total construction was valued at $12,502,855.

Construction lagged 33 per cent below last year's total for the first eight months of the year. Commerical construction dropped 58 per cent for that period, residential building was down 24.2 per cent, and public and other consturction dropped 29.3 per cent, the bureau reported.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.78 cents per fine ounce up 26 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.78 up 26 cents and fabricated silver at $4.90 up 30.3 cents.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Americans Outdone By Englishwoman

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Wat Takeshita is on vacation. Upon his return his column, Other People's Business, will resume.)

Americans have been outdone at eating ice cream — and by an Englishwoman!

That's what happened at the "great ice cream eating contest" staged Saturday as a promotional event by Swensen's Ice Cream Factory and Shoppe in San Anselmo's Redhill Shopping Center.

Roslyn Schwartz, a young visitor from England, won the senior division of the contest by downing 32 ounces — a full two pounds — of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes.

The teen division was won by Matt Johnsen, who ate 24 ounces of ice cream in seven and one-half minutes. His record was tied in the junior division by 10-year-old Linda Turnbull of San Anselmo. Actually, though, Linda out-ate the older contestants, for she "warmed up" for the contest by eating a double-decker, half-pound cone, reported Joan and Don Ham, proprietors of the store.

NEW BUSINESS — Budget Boutique, a new store selling used clothing on consignment, opened this week at 769 Center Boulevard, Fairfax, directly opposite the Lucky Store. Proprietor is Mrs. Waltraud E. Vega of Novato.

Landmark For PSA

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA) has boarded its 50 millionth revenue passenger. Vice President of Sales Dwane Wittmayer said, "I think it is very significant that we reached the 50,000,000 mark during our 25th year of operations."

Tunney To Be Brunch Guest

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., will appear at a fund-raising brunch for Michael Wornum of Mill Valley, Democratic nominee in the Ninth Assembly District, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. aboard abroad the Yellow Ferry, Gate 6 Road, Sausalito.

Reservations are being handled by Wornum's campaign headquarters in Greenbrae. Admission is $15 a couple.

A shuttle will operate between the ferry and the parking lot at 3030 Bridgeway.

A coffee for Wornum will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the San Anselmo home of Thomas E. Rickert, 79 Bolinas Avenue.

CAYLOR — Thomas O. Caylor of San Francisco, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has criticized his Democratic opponent, Rep. John L. Burton, for having voted as a state assemblyman for the legislative pensions just repealed in a special session in Sacramento. The pension system for which Burton voted "is the old politics at its worst," Caylor said. Noting that it permitted Burton to start collecting his state legislative pension when elected to Congress in June, Caylor said Burton "has feathered his own nest at taxpayer's expense." Such pensions normally are paid when retired legislators reach the age of 60, but the special bonus started the payments immediately for legislators leaving office in a reapportionment year. Burton is 41.

BEHR — A fund-raising wine-tasting party for Sen. Peter H. Behr, of San Rafael, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Petaluma home of Brad Nail, 48 Maria Drive. Admission is $5.

FORRY — A coffee for Betty Forry of Marinwood, candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's Division 1 seat, will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday at the San Rafael home of Betty Bright, 65 Maple Hill Drive.

BOYLAN — Richard J. Boylan of Woodacre, candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's Division 1 seat, will hold a second creek clean-up Saturday. Volunteers to work on Miller Creek will meet at noon at the Exxon Station on Lucas Valley Road, and are asked to bring garbage bags. Trucks will be provided to dispose of the trash.

Gatherings for Boylan will be held in San Rafael at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Gary L. Gassaway, 23 Cabrillo Court, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Edward M. Powell, 223 Roundtree Way.

BARLAS — Carole Barlas, candidate for the board of directors of Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma, has opened campaign headquarters in her home at 40 Sunnyhill Drive. A coffee for Mrs. Barlas will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the Petaluma home of Robert D. McFarland, 909 Crinella Drive.

Death Blamed On A Streaker

MERCED (UPI) — Merced County coroner Kenneth Riggs believes a heart attack that killed a 71-year-old man was brought on by seeing a naked man run through his house.

J. P. Mello collapsed and died at his home Tuesday after a man described as husky and around 50 years of age burst through the rear door without any clothes on, ran through the living room and out the front door.

Riggs said yesterday that he felt the shock of the incident probably induced the fatal heart attack.

Mello's wife, Mary, 64, who has a heart condition, was treated at the hospital after the incident but was reported in satisfactory condition.

The intruder was not apprehended.

A MATTER OF PSYCHOLOGY

One of the world's great child photographers, Josef Schneider, started out in life after college not as a photographer but as a child psychologist, and then a teacher of youngsters.

Does that sound like a long way from a career as a top professional photographer of children? Well, it really isn't . . . because taking pictures of children often becomes more a matter of psychology then of technique or equipment.

This is especially true for the professional who is always shooting "strangers" . . . children he hasn't met before. These pros have learned they must use "tricks" if necessary to make the child relax and be himself. They'll try toys, games, getting down on the floor, anything.

The average parent can take a tip from the pros here. It should be easier for you to get down on the floor if you have to, think up tricks, things to awaken your child's curiosity and win his or her attention. And be ready to shoot your picture at the right moment!

Taking indoor family shots because of bad weather? See us for your flashbulb or photo flood needs . . . and everything photographic, including expert developing and printing.

But Did Henry Get Dime Back?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says he had a hard time placing a collect call from New York to the White House.

Kissinger apparently placed the call to President Ford from the Plaza Hotel during a late night meeting with Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros.

Kissinger said yesterday he turned to his diplomatic colleague and said jokingly, "If they ask me to spell my name, I'm going to fire them."

He said to get through, "was a struggle . . . but they did it."

Heavy Pipe Crushes Three Coal Miners

FAIRDALE, W. Va. (UPI) — A heavy pipe broke from a crane yesterday and plunged 2,800 feet down a slope at a coal mine crushing to death three miners.

The victims were identified by Raleigh General Hospital at nearby Beckley as Thomas Stewart, 25, Glen Daniel, Jimmy Mullens, 30, Matheny, and James Spence, 25, Mount Hope.

Gala Ball, Pancakes Top Fire Week

Movies, demonstrations, inspections, a mammoth pancake breakfast and a gala firemen's ball are on tap for fire prevention week, Sunday through Oct. 13.

Most fire departments throughout the area have planned educational programs to help residents reduce fire danger around their homes.

In addition, social events are planned by the Kentfield and Rohnert Park Fire Departments.

The sixth annual Fire Prevention Week Pancake Breakfast is scheduled for Oct. 13 by the Kentfield Fire Department. More than 1,000 persons are expected to gather from 6 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. for pancakes, ham, eggs orange juice and coffee at the station. After breakfast, fire prevention movies and fire safety demonstrations will be presented. Cost is $2 for adults, $1 for children.

The annual Rohnert Park Firemen's Ball and picnic is slated for Oct. 12 at 9 a.m. at the Rohnert Park Community Center. Music will be provided by the Chuck Raye band. Admission is $2.50.

In addition to visiting schools to give fire safety lectures, the San Rafael Fire Department will offer free rides on fire trucks at the Northgate Mall Oct. 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Other plans for Fire Prevention Week observances are:

ALTO — A elementary school fire prevention poster contest is planned, with winners to receive awards at 2 p.m. Oct. 12 at Alto Fire Station No. 2, during a demonstration of resuscitation and fire fighting techniques. That week will also begin a program of fire inspections of each home in the district.

BOLINAS — Open house at the fire station is scheduled for Oct. 12 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

LARKSPUR — A week-long program of debris disposal has been organized, in which residents are asked to cart debris to disposal boxes at the city corporation yard and at the South Eliseo Drive fire station, for removal by the sanitary district. Also scheduled are fire house tours, school safety lectures and distribution of fire prevention pamphlets.

MARIN COUNTY — Open houses at all county fire are planned for the week.

MILL VALLEY — Distribution of fire prevention pamphlets to schools in the area is planned.

NOVATO — Fire prevention poster contest in 13 elementary schools, winners to be displayed through the week at Northern California Savings and Loan Co. office, Seventh and Grand avenues. The Fire Prevention Bureau will hand out information at all fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes and the junior fire marshal program will be given in grades one to three. Posters will be placed around the city and information will be available each fire station.

SAN SANSELMO — Lectures at schools about fire safety, and helping schoolchildren practice home fire drills are the safety events planned. CAYLOR — Thomas O. Caylor of San Francisco, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has criticized his Democratic opponent, Rep. John L. Burton, for having voted as a state assemblyman for the legislative pensions just repealed in a special session in Sacramento. The pension system for which Burton voted "is the old politics at its worst," Caylor said. Noting that it permitted Burton to start collecting his state legislative pension when elected to Congress in June, Caylor said Burton "has feathered his own nest at taxpayer's expense." Such pensions normally are paid when retired legislators reach the age of 60, but the special bonus started the payments immediately for legislators leaving office in a reapportionment year. Burton is 41.

BEHR — A fund-raising wine-tasting party for Sen. Peter H. Behr, of San Rafael, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Petaluma home of Brad Nail, 48 Maria Drive. Admission is $5.

Volunteers to work on Miller Creek will meet at noon at the Exxon Station on Lucas Valley Road, and are asked to bring garbage bags. Trucks will be provided to dispose of the trash.

Gatherings for Boylan will be held in San Rafael at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Gary L. Gassaway, 23 Cabrillo Court, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Edward M. Powell, 223 Roundtree Way.

BARLAS — Carole Barlas, candidate for the board of directors of Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma, has opened campaign headquarters in her home at 40 Sunnyhill Drive. A coffee for Mrs. Barlas will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the Petaluma home of Robert D. McFarland, 909 Crinella Drive.

Death Blamed On A Streaker

MERCED (UPI) — Merced County coroner Kenneth Riggs believes a heart attack that killed a 71-year-old man was brought on by seeing a naked man run through his house.

J. P. Mello collapsed and died at his home Tuesday after a man described as husky and around 50 years of age burst through the rear door without any clothes on, ran through the living room and out the front door.

Riggs said yesterday that he felt the shock of the incident probably induced the fatal heart attack.

Mello's wife, Mary, 64, who has a heart condition, was treated at the hospital after the incident but was reported in satisfactory condition.

The intruder was not apprehended.

A MATTER OF PSYCHOLOGY

One of the world's great child photographers, Josef Schneider, started out in life after college not as a photographer but as a child psychologist, and then a teacher of youngsters.

Does that sound like a long way from a career as a top professional photographer of children? Well, it really isn't . . . because taking pictures of children often becomes more a matter of psychology then of technique or equipment.

This is especially true for the professional who is always shooting "strangers" . . . children he hasn't met before. These pros have learned they must use "tricks" if necessary to make the child relax and be himself. They'll try toys, games, getting down on the floor, anything.

The average parent can take a tip from the pros here. It should be easier for you to get down on the floor if you have to, think up tricks, things to awaken your child's curiosity and win his or her attention. And be ready to shoot your picture at the right moment!

Was 25th Amendment Such A Good Idea?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
38 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

After Richard M. Nixon resigned and Gerald R. Ford was sworn in to succeed him as president, there was much self-congratulation in this country on the smoothness of the transition.

Large credit was given to the 25th Amendment, which provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Were it not for the 25th Amendment, it was pointed out, there would have been no vice president, because of the previous resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Thanks to the 25th Amendment, the transition was orderly; a new president took office without delay despite the resignation of both the president and the elected vice president.

PERHAPS WE congratulated ourselves too soon.

We now have confirmation hearings under way on another vice president selected by the president — but this time, by a president who was not himself elected. And Congress seems in no hurry to confirm Nelson Rockefeller in the nation's second highest office.

If the 25th Amendment had not been adopted, succession to the presidency would have come under Article II, Section 5 of the Constitution, which said: "... the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

CONGRESS HAD so provided. The speaker of the House had been designated as next in line for the presidency if there were no vice president. This would have put Carl Albert of Oklahoma in the office.

However, this would not have meant that Albert would remain president until the end of 1976; for the Constitution — before the 25th Amendment — plainly said such succession should be only until "a president shall be elected."

A special election for president would not require the long nominating process and long campaign which accompany the quadrennial presidential elections. A brief campaign, nationwide primaries, and an electoral college decision could be concluded within a few months.

IN FACT, such a special election might take less time than it appears the Congress is going to take in confirming Nelson Rickefeller as vice president.

And we would have a president who had been elected by the people.

Maybe the 25th Amendment was not such a good idea. Maybe the Founding Fathers thought things through better than we of the 20th Century.

Way Now Clear In Both Parties For New Presidential Aspirants

Suddenly, it's an all-new political scene for Americans.

No one has a stranglehold on the future of either of the two big American political parties. Edward Kennedy has taken himself out of the 1976 Democratic Party picture and Gerald Ford has done several things which have reduced him from a Republican probability to only a possibility.

Other Republicans see an open road ahead even though Mr. Ford has the advantage of being the sitting President.

THE ELIMINATION of the Kennedy factor in the Democratic Party is the more spectacular and visible of the two changes of recent days. The senator and his family were so intimately involved in their political feud with Richard Nixon that another campaign including a Kennedy would have been like fighting old battles on old battlefields. Passions and prejudices from the past would have continued to inflame the events of today and tomorrow.

The resignation of the last Kennedy from the presidential scene was the logical sequel to the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency. They were natural antagonists. They were the respective champions of rival tribes. So long as one was in the field the other was found to be there also. But when one left, the other was free to step aside as well. With both gone there is an end to a political era in which the great issues were civil rights, welfare, and imperialism (the Vietnam war).

THOSE THREE ISSUES are no longer divisive. Republicans and Democrats are indistinguishable on civil rights. President Ford has repaired his party's relations with the black community. Democrats have come to accept the need for containing the cost and spread of welfare. The Republican White House is practicing amnesty toward Vietnam war veterans and giving serious though cautious consideration to a reconciliation with Fidel Castro of Cuba.

A national consensus has been reached on these three issues which divided Democrats from Republicans ever since John F. Kennedy ran against Richard Nixon in 1960. Fair treatment for blacks, reform of welfare, and contraction of empire are standard now in both parties. The election this November is not going to be fought over any of these old issues With the issues gone, it is fitting that the symbols and the champions of the old battles over these issues should also recede.

THE NEW SITUATION inside the Republican Party has been obscured by a general lack of perception of the real political effect of the pardoning of Richard Nixon. It was done by the new Republican president for the immediate and visible benefit of the former Republican president. But in real political terms it benefited the Democrats, and injured the prospects of every Republican running for office this November.

It benefited Democrats because an unpardoned Richard Nixon would have been a burden on Democrats. They would be accused of responsibility for his human sufferings. Now that he is pardoned, the question is not whether he should be, but whether the new Republican president was wise or mistaken in granting the pardon. The Democrats can sit peacefully on the sidelines of this issue, uninvolved and untouched. It is divisive only inside the Republican Party.

The effect there (among Republicans) is to raise a big doubt as to whether Mr. Ford is the best leader they could have. They all like him personally, but among party leaders both on Capitol Hill in Washington and throughout the country, there are grave doubts that his political antennae are good enough for the welfare of the party.

The net of it is that no one can be sure right now who will be the 1976 leaders of the two parties. No figure dominates the politics of either party. The old figures recede with the old issues. The slate is clean. It's pleasant, and healthy, to be able to leave the past behind and — look ahead.

STROUT IN WASHINGTON

The Strange Succession To The Vice Presidency

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller, one of the most powerful men in America, is about to take one of the country's most frustrating jobs.

Mr. Rockefeller's confirmation is taken for granted, and the Senate Rules Committee has ended the first phase of its hearings with near-unanimity expected.

As in the earlier confirmation of Gerald Ford, the committee heard a series of militant critics of the appointment, mostly directed against Mr. Rockefeller's actions as governor.

THERE ARE LOTS of "firsts" in the present situation, but the biggest question is in human terms: Will Mr. Rockefeller, four-times elected governor of New York and member of one of the richest families in America, sink out of sight as the spare wheel of the Ford administration, in vice-presidential impotency?

Gerald Ford is the ninth vice-president to succeed a president in mid-term. He is the first to succeed a living president.

Mr. Rockefeller is the second man to become vice-president (if confirmed) without a national election. And he will be the first selected by a president who wasn't himself elected.

AS MR. ROCKEFELLER answered questions on every aspect of his fortune, fame, and family in the Senate Caucus Room, many wondered about the strange office he faced. Others compared the mood today with that when Mr. Ford underwent the same ordeal.

Representative Ford was universally liked and known. His eager, helpful, modest desire to aid the committee was a kind of family affair. With Mr. Rockefeller, the mood is different. Few denied the comment of the Democratic Senate whip, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, on Mr. Rockefeller's wealth: "Can't we agree on the tremendous, colossal influence that is there — the greatest of anyone ever to be vice-president?"

Mr. Rockefeller's fortune is $62.5 million, with income from two trusts of $116 million. His brother, David, heads the Chase Manhattan Bank, one of the world's largest.

Mr. Rockefeller spoke mildly, save in describing the tragic Attica prison uprising where 43 lives were lost and where he declined as governor to negotiate in person. His jaw set with a hint of the religious firmness of his family ethic as he said:

"I do not believe in negotiating with people who are holding hostages under threat of death."

PROPOSALS ARE HEARD in Congress to re-consider the vice-presidency, and the 25th Amendment.

"It is time to amend the amendment before this nation reverts to the selection of its sovereign by his predecessor," said former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, in reference to the Nixon-Ford-Rockefeller succession.

"I think it is a mistake, and a bad one, to separate the president from the people," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a presidential contender himself.

Others urge a special national election a few months after any president is named under the 25th Amendment.

Few Latin American countries which adopted a U.S. style constitution included the institution of the vice-president. The choice of vice-presidential candidates is often an afterthought at party conventions.

THE CHIEF REASON why the office is esteemed, though generally unstated, is that it carries a fair statistical chance of its holder becoming president.

There have been attempts on the lives of Presidents Jackson, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, Truman, and Kennedy. This averages one out of six. One out of nine has been killed.

Vice-presidents who have succeeded to the higher office at presidential deaths were Tyler, Fillmore, Andrew Johnson, Arthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge, Truman, and Lyndon Johnson. And now Mr. Ford has succeeded a presidential resignation.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

No Need To Tilt The Golden Rule

The recent reappearance of Angela Davis on the public scene causes a shudder. It revives horrors best forgotten. No one could more quickly make a cause over being momentarily delayed and cuffed than Miss Davis.

No one knows better than Miss Davis that the void left by Watergate leaves fallow ground where she might conceivably seed new racism. Her passion for the National Alliance for the Racially and Politically Repressed echoes hollowly. After 30 years of force-feeding ourselves with all-around equality for the black man Americans no longer have guilt feelings for their colored brothers. By now we have enough firsthand knowledge. Just because we have a black minority does not mean that we must tilt the golden rule.

Marin Voters Should Return State's Favor

The Independent-Journal, in a Sept. 30 editorial, incorrectly implied that only poorly managed school districts are in need of Proposition 1 funds. The I-J overlooks inflation, property tax limitations, and other factors in all growing school districts, even the well-managed ones, as the major reasons why there is still a vital need in California for state school building aid loans.

Although California's school age population is stabilizing, there remain some school districts in the state that have rapidly increasing student populations and not enough local funds to finance the building of new schools. Sonoma County, for example, has five such districts.

Since 1952, during a period of rapid growth in Marin County, 12 Marin school districts (Dixie, Fairfax, Kentfield, Lagunitas, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Reed, San Anselmo, San Rafael, Sausalito, and Shoreline) borrowed over $27 million in state funds to build schools that now house the county's student population. Of this amount, Marin still owes over $25 million to the state — much of it to be "forgiven" and thus, paid back out of general state revenues. That means that residents of all California counties, not just Marin, are paying for a portion of the costs of building Marin's schools.

We feel that the I-J should recommend more forcefully to its readers that they return the favor and vote "Yes" on Proposition 1 this November...

Councilmen Must Choose Which Master

Your account, in Tuesday's paper, of the machinations of Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon is a revolting revelation of a disgusting situation in the administration of our City of San Rafael.

These two men are peddling insurance to customers that are doing business with the City of San Rafael. These customers most often need a favorable action by the city council. These customers have good reason to believe that their "interests" will be favorably handled by those representatives that are gaining a monetary income from that business.

It is naive to think that the city representatives can divorce their minds from leaning toward the interests that are paying them. These men use a subterfuge of abstaining from voting on the issues that favor their clients. Of course, they can make their deals with each other prior to the public meetings, and then go through the act of not participating in the public voting. This is specious nonsense and should not fool any citizen.

"No man can serve two masters, for he will grow to love the one and hate the other". Certainly, the love for money is a very strong urge, and these two men are not immune from this influence. They cannot serve the public with impartiality and with all their minds. They cannot judge their own actions with fairness, any more than Spiro Agenw or Richard Nixon could.

Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon should eliminate all clients that do business repeatedly with the city. They should publicize any other client, who may appear casually, and refrain from any contact with his case before the city. If they cannot do this they should resign from office. If they do not resign, they should be voted out of office.

Your recent editorial on "integrity in public office" aptly pointed up the need for a renewed dedication to good government. We have grown lazy and too careless in our tolerance of sleezy practices and graft in public office. We must search out men of high moral principles and proven good character to run our affairs, or our system of government will be destroyed.

FDA Commissioner Off Base In Attempting To Play God

(Reprinted from San Jose News)

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt wants Congress to keep its nose out of what he considers strictly FDA business: regulation of the vitamin industry. The commissioner is off base. Congressional concern, already expressed at separate House and Senate hearings, is with another federal regulatory agency's efforts to play God, dictating what it determines is best for the American people despite the absence of scientific agreement or compelling need.

The FDA-vitamin battle is similar to the Department of Transportation-seat belt ignition interlock system fight. In the latter case, an administrative agency required that all new cars beginning with the 1974 model year be equipped with such devices. Sequential warning devices and air bags were on the Department of Transportation's list of future requirements.

Without doubt, the safety of the motorist and his passengers was the primary concern of the Department of Transportation. But American motorists rebelled at this big government-knows-best paternalism. Both houses of Congress, in tune with public distaste for such mandatory safety devices in automobiles, have passed resolutions or bills to rescind the requirements.

The vitamin furor is much the same. The FDA was prepared to enforce a new set of regulations that would classify high concentrations of vitamins as durgs. As such they would be available only by prescription. One target of the regulation was the health food and supplement fad.

Undoubtedly many health food and vitamin supplement practices are foolish or of dubious value. But if all such practices were proscribed by legislation or administrative edict, our lives would be regulatory nightmares. On the basis of present scientific knowledge, one must concur with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that as long as a vitamin or mineral is not toxic, mislabeled or misrepresented, "the FDA should no more prevent the public from buying them than they should prevent them from drinking beer or eating hot dogs."

Arab Oil Billions Could Dislocate World Economy

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The hundreds of billions of dollars the oil-producing countries will take in but cannot spend inside their own economies are the other side of the oil story.

Just as consumer nations face bankruptcy because of rising oil prices, how those moneys finally are to be spent can face the world with the vast economic dislocations of which President Ford spoke so bluntly before the United Nations and the energy conference in Detroit.

THE UNITED STATES approach to the problem has been two-sided.

Democratic Senators Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii have introduced legislation which would require a public record of the identity and amounts invested by foreigners in American stocks.

On the other side of the coin is the U.S. government attitude as represented by Treasury Secy. William E. Simon, who seeks to encourage foreign investment and not to scare it away.

The head of the New York Stock exchange, James Needham, has estimated that over the next 12 years the United States will need $650 billion of investment capital and that to meet it large foreign investments will be necessary.

AFTER A SWING through Mideast oilproducing nations, Secretary Simon said he was impressed by the "responsibility" demonstrated by them.

Of the three largest Mideast oil producers, Saudi Arabia is expected to take in this year about $26 billion, and Kuwait and Iran about $10 billion each.

Just where is their money going?

Saudi Arabia, for example, is spending about $4 billion for U.S. arms. Presumably that comes out of a national budget of about $13 billion earmarked for government expenditures and development investment this year. That accounts for about half of Saudi Arabia's income.

Another $3 billion or $4 billion has been allocated for various aid projects to Moslem and Arab nations and to some of the African nations. This represents a comparatively new attitude.

But it still leaves billions unaccounted for.

U.S. treasury officials have said the Saudis have promised to buy "several" billion dollars worth of a special bond issue. The Saudis also are to buy a $140 million world bank bond issue and to loan the International monetary fund $1.2 billion at 7 per cent interest. Another $200 million reportedly is to be invested in U.S. industry.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that Arab investors have invested some $1 billion this year in the U.S. economy in stocks and real estate.

The most flamboyant international spender of all has been the Shah of Iran, who bought a 25 per cent interest in the West German Krupp steel company, obligated himself for billions to France for nuclear electric plants and other items and offered to become involved with at least two U.S. aircraft companies.

Becoming heavily invested in U.S. real estate is Kuwait.

Senators Metzenbaum and Inouye don't really believe the Arabs are trying to buy up the United States, but they think somebody should be keeping track.

Was 25th Amendment Such A Good Idea?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

After Richard M. Nixon resigned and Gerald R. Ford was sworn in to succeed him as president, there was much self-congratulation in this country on the smoothness of the transition.

Large credit was given to the 25th Amendment, which provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Were it not for the 25th Amendment, it was pointed out, there would have been no vice president, because of the previous resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Thanks to the 25th Amendment, the transition was orderly; a new president took office without delay despite the resignation of both the president and the elected vice president.

PERHAPS WE congratulated ourselves too soon.

We now have confirmation hearings under way on another vice president selected by the president — but this time, by a president who was not himself elected. And Congress seems in no hurry to confirm Nelson Rockefeller in the nation's second highest office.

If the 25th Amendment had not been adopted, succession to the presidency would have come under Article II, Section 5 of the Constitution, which said: " . . . the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

CONGRESS HAD so provided. The speaker of the House had been designated as next in line for the presidency if there were no vice president. This would have put Carl Albert of Oklahoma in the office.

However, this would not have meant that Albert would remain president until the end of 1976; for the Constitution — before the 25th Amendment — plainly said such succession should be only until "a president shall be elected."

A special election for president would not require the long nominating process and long campaign which accompany the quadrennial presidential elections. A brief campaign, nationwide primaries, and an electoral college decision could be concluded within a few months.

IN FACT, such a special election might take less time than it appears the Congress is going to take in confirming Nelson Rickefeller as vice president.

And we would have a president who had been elected by the people.

Maybe the 25th Amendment was not such a good idea. Maybe the Founding Fathers thought things through better than we of the 20th Century.

Way Now Clear In Both Parties For New Presidential Aspirants

Suddenly, it's an all-new political scene for Americans.

No one has a stranglehold on the future of either of the two big American political parties. Edward Kennedy has taken himself out of the 1976 Democratic Party picture and Gerald Ford has done several things which have reduced him from a Republican probability to only a possibility.

Other Republicans see an open road ahead even though Mr. Ford has the advantage of being the sitting President.

THE ELIMINATION of the Kennedy factor in the Democratic Party is the more spectacular and visible of the two changes of recent days. The senator and his family were so intimately involved in their political feud with Richard Nixon that another campaign including a Kennedy would have been like fighting old battles on old battlefields. Passions and prejudices from the past would have continued to inflame the events of today and tomorrow.

The resignation of the last Kennedy from the presidential scene was the logical sequel to the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency. They were natural antagonists. They were the respective champions of rival tribes. So long as one was in the field the other was found to be there also. But when one left, the other was free to step aside as well. With both gone there is an end to a political era in which the great issues were civil rights, welfare, and imperialism (the Vietnam war).

THOSE THREE ISSUES are no longer divisive. Republicans and Democrats are indistinguishable on civil rights. President Ford has repaired his party's relations with the black community. Democrats have come to accept the need for containing the cost and spread of welfare. The Republican White House is practicing amnesty toward Vietnam war veterans and giving serious though cautious consideration to a reconciliation with Fidel Castro of Cuba.

A national consensus has been reached on these three issues which divided Democrats from Republicans ever since John F. Kennedy ran against Richard Nixon in 1960. Fair treatment for blacks, reform of welfare, and contraction of empire are standard now in both parties. The election this November is not going to be fought over any of these old issues With the issues gone, it is fitting that the symbols and the champions of the old battles over these issues should also recede.

THE NEW SITUATION inside the Republican Party has been obscured by a general lack of perception of the real political effect of the pardoning of Richard Nixon. It was done by the new Republican president for the immediate and visible benefit of the former Republican president. But in real political terms it benefited the Democrats, and injured the prospects of every Republican running for office this November.

It benefited Democrats because an unpardoned Richard Nixon would have been a burden on Democrats. They would be accused of responsibility for his human sufferings. Now that he is pardoned, the question is not whether he should be, but whether the new Republican president was wise or mistaken in granting the pardon. The Democrats can sit peacefully on the sidelines of this issue, uninvolved and untouched. It is divisive only inside the Republican Party.

The effect there (among Republicans) is to raise a big doubt as to whether Mr. Ford is the best leader they could have. They all like him personally, but among party leaders both on Capitol Hill in Washington and throughout the country, there are grave doubts that his political antennae are good enough for the welfare of the party.

The net of it is that no one can be sure right now who will be the 1976 leaders of the two parties. No figure dominates the politics of either party. The old figures recede with the old issues. The slate is clean. It's pleasant, and healthy, to be able to leave the past behind and — look ahead.

The Strange Succession To The Vice Presidency

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller, one of the most powerful men in America, is about to take one of the country's most frustrating jobs.

Mr. Rockefeller's confirmation is taken for granted, and the Senate Rules Committee has ended the first phase of its hearings with near-unanimity expected.

As in the earlier confirmation of Gerald Ford, the committee heard a series of militant critics of the appointment, mostly directed against Mr. Rockefeller's actions as governor.

THERE ARE LOTS of "firsts" in the present situation, but the biggest question is in human terms: Will Mr. Rockefeller, four-times elected governor of New York and member of one of the richest families in America, sink out of sight as the spare wheel of the Ford administration, in vice-presidential impotency?

Was 25th Amendment Such A Good Idea?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
38 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

After Richard M. Nixon resigned and Gerald R. Ford was sworn in to succeed him as president, there was much self-congratulation in this country on the smoothness of the transition.

Large credit was given to the 25th Amendment, which provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Were it not for the 25th Amendment, it was pointed out, there would have been no vice president, because of the previous resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Thanks to the 25th Amendment, the transition was orderly; a new president took office without delay despite the resignation of both the president and the elected vice president.

PERHAPS WE congratulated ourselves too soon.

We now have confirmation hearings under way on another vice president selected by the president — but this time, by a president who was not himself elected. And Congress seems in no hurry to confirm Nelson Rockefeller in the nation's second highest office.

If the 25th Amendment had not been adopted, succession to the presidency would have come under Article II, Section 5 of the Constitution, which said: ". . . the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

CONGRESS HAD so provided. The speaker of the House had been designated as next in line for the presidency if there were no vice president. This would have put Carl Albert of Oklahoma in the office.

However, this would not have meant that Albert would remain president until the end of 1976; for the Constitution — before the 25th Amendment — plainly said such succession should be only until "a president shall be elected."

A special election for president would not require the long nominating process and long campaign which accompany the quadrennial presidential elections. A brief campaign, nationwide primaries, and an electoral college decision could be concluded within a few months.

IN FACT, such a special election might take less time than it appears the Congress is going to take in confirming Nelson Rickefeller as vice president.

And we would have a president who had been elected by the people.

Maybe the 25th Amendment was not such a good idea. Maybe the Founding Fathers thought things through better than we of the 20th Century.

Way Now Clear In Both Parties For New Presidential Aspirants

Suddenly, it's an all-new political scene for Americans.

No one has a stranglehold on the future of either of the two big American political parties. Edward Kennedy has taken himself out of the 1976 Democratic Party picture and Gerald Ford has done several things which have reduced him from a Republican probability to only a possibility.

Other Republicans see an open road ahead even though Mr. Ford has the advantage of being the sitting President.

THE ELIMINATION of the Kennedy factor in the Democratic Party is the more spectacular and visible of the two changes of recent days. The senator and his family were so intimately involved in their political feud with Richard Nixon that another campaign including a Kennedy would have been like fighting old battles on old battlefields. Passions and prejudices from the past would have continued to inflame the events of today and tomorrow.

The resignation of the last Kennedy from the presidential scene was the logical sequel to the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency. They were natural antagonists. They were the respective champions of rival tribes. So long as one was in the field the other was found to be there also. But when one left, the other was free to step aside as well. With both gone there is an end to a political era in which the great issues were civil rights, welfare, and imperialism (the Vietnam war).

THOSE THREE ISSUES are no longer divisive. Republicans and Democrats are indistinguishable on civil rights. President Ford has repaired his party's relations with the black community. Democrats have come to accept the need for containing the cost and spread of welfare. The Republican White House is practicing amnesty toward Vietnam war veterans and giving serious though cautious consideration to a reconciliation with Fidel Castro of Cuba.

A national consensus has been reached on these three issues which divided Democrats from Republicans ever since John F. Kennedy ran against Richard Nixon in 1960. Fair treatment for blacks, reform of welfare, and contraction of empire are standard now in both parties. The election this November is not going to be fought over any of these old issues With the issues gone, it is fitting that the symbols and the champions of the old battles over these issues should also recede.

THE NEW SITUATION inside the Republican Party has been obscured by a general lack of perception of the real political effect of the pardoning of Richard Nixon. It was done by the new Republican president for the immediate and visible benefit of the former Republican president. But in real political terms it benefited the Democrats, and injured the prospects of every Republican running for office this November.

It benefited Democrats because an unpardoned Richard Nixon would have been a burden on Democrats. They would be accused of responsibility for his human sufferings. Now that he is pardoned, the question is not whether he should be, but whether the new Republican president was wise or mistaken in granting the pardon. The Democrats can sit peacefully on the sidelines of this issue, uninvolved and untouched. It is divisive only inside the Republican Party.

The effect there (among Republicans) is to raise a big doubt as to whether Mr. Ford is the best leader they could have. They all like him personally, but among party leaders both on Capitol Hill in Washington and throughout the country, there are grave doubts that his political antennae are good enough for the welfare of the party.

The net of it is that no one can be sure right now who will be the 1976 leaders of the two parties. No figure dominates the politics of either party. The old figures recede with the old issues. The slate is clean. It's pleasant, and healthy, to be able to leave the past behind and — look ahead.

FDA Commissioner Off Base In Attempting To Play God

(Reprinted from San Jose News)

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt wants Congress to keep its nose out of what he considers strictly FDA business: regulation of the vitamin industry. The commissioner is off base. Congressional concern, already expressed at separate House and Senate hearings, is with another federal regulatory agency's efforts to play God, dictating what it determines is best for the American people despite the absence of scientific agreement or compelling need.

The FDA-vitamin battle is similar to the Department of Transportation-seat belt ignition interlock system fight. In the latter case, an administrative agency required that all new cars beginning with the 1974 model year be equipped with such devices. Sequential warning devices and air bags were on the Department of Transportation's list of future requirements.

Without doubt, the safety of the motorist and his passengers was the primary concern of the Department of Transportation. But American motorists rebelled at this big government-knows-best paternalism. Both houses of Congress, in tune with public distaste for such mandatory safety devices in automobiles, have passed resolutions or bills to rescind the requirements.

The vitamin furor is much the same. The FDA was prepared to enforce a new set of regulations that would classify high concentrations of vitamins as durgs. As such they would be available only by prescription. One target of the regulation was the health food and supplement fad.

Undoubtedly many health food and vitamin supplement practices are foolish or of dubious value. But if all such practices were proscribed by legislation or administrative edict, our lives would be regulatory nightmares. On the basis of present scientific knowledge, one must concur with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that as long as a vitamin or mineral is not toxic, mislabeled or misrepresented, "the FDA should no more prevent the public from buying them than they should prevent them from drinking beer or eating hot dogs."

STROUT IN WASHINGTON

The Strange Succession To The Vice Presidency

By RICHARD L. STROUT

Mr. Rockefeller's confirmation is taken for granted, and the Senate Rules Committee has ended the first phase of its hearings with near-unanimity expected.

As in the earlier confirmation of Gerald Ford, the committee heard a series of militant critics of the appointment, mostly directed against Mr. Rockefeller's actions as governor.

THERE ARE LOTS of "firsts" in the present situation, but the biggest question is in human terms: Will Mr. Rockefeller, four-times elected governor of New York and member of one of the richest families in America, sink out of sight as the spare wheel of the Ford administration, in vice-presidential impotency?

Gerald Ford is the ninth vice-president to succeed a president in mid-term. He is the first to succeed a living president.

Mr. Rockefeller is the second man to become vice-president (if confirmed) without a national election. And he will be the first selected by a president who wasn't himself elected.

AS MR. ROCKEFELLER answered questions on every aspect of his fortune, fame, and family in the Senate Caucus Room, many wondered about the strange office he faced. Others compared the mood today with that when Mr. Ford underwent the same ordeal.

Representative Ford was universally liked and known. His eager, helpful, modest desire to aid the committee was a kind of family affair. With Mr. Rockefeller, the mood is different. Few denied the comment of the Democratic Senate whip, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, on Mr. Rockefeller's wealth: "Can't we agree on the tremendous, colossal influence that is there — the greatest of anyone ever to be vice-president?"

Mr. Rockefeller's fortune is $62.5 million, with income from two trusts of $116 million. His brother, David, heads the Chase Manhattan Bank, one of the world's largest.

Mr. Rockefeller spoke mildly, save in describing the tragic Attica prison uprising where 43 lives were lost and where he declined as governor to negotiate in person. His jaw set with a hint of the religious firmness of his family ethic as he said:

"I do not believe in negotiating with people who are holding hostages under threat of death."

PROPOSALS ARE HEARD in Congress to re-consider the vice-presidency, and the 25th Amendment.

"It is time to amend the amendment before this nation reverts to the selection of its sovereign by his predecessor," said former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, in reference to the Nixon-Ford-Rockefeller succession.

"I think it is a mistake, and a bad one, to separate the president from the people," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a presidential contender himself.

Others urge a special national election a few months after any president is named under the 25th Amendment.

THE CHIEF REASON why the office is esteemed, though generally unstated, is that it carries a fair statistical chance of its holder becoming president.

There have been attempts on the lives of Presidents Jackson, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, Truman, and Kennedy. This averages one out of six. One out of nine has been killed.

Vice-presidents who have succeeded to the higher office at presidential deaths were Tyler, Fillmore, Andrew Johnson, Arthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge, Truman, and Lyndon Johnson. And now Mr. Ford has succeeded a presidential resignation.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

No Need To Tilt The Golden Rule

The recent reappearance of Angela Davis on the public scene causes a shudder. It revives horrors best forgotten. No one could more quickly make a cause over being momentarily delayed and cuffed than Miss Davis.

No one knows better than Miss Davis that the void left by Watergate leaves fallow ground where she might conceivably seed new racism. Her passion for the National Alliance for the Racially and Politically Repressed echoes hollowly. After 30 years of force-feeding ourselves with all-around equality for the black man Americans no longer have guilt feelings for their colored brothers. By now we have enough firsthand knowledge. Just because we have a black minority does not mean that we must tilt the golden rule.

Marin Voters Should Return State's Favor

The Independent-Journal, in a Sept. 30 editorial, incorrectly implied that only poorly managed school districts are in need of Proposition 1 funds. The I-J overlooks inflation, property tax limitations, and other factors in all growing school districts, even the well-managed ones, as the major reasons why there is still a vital need in California for state school building aid loans.

Although California's school age population is stabilizing, there remain some school districts in the state that have rapidly increasing student populations and not enough local funds to finance the building of new schools. Sonoma County, for example, has five such districts.

Since 1952, during a period of rapid growth in Marin County, 12 Marin school districts (Dixie, Fairfax, Kentfield, Lagunitas, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Reed, San Anselmo, San Rafael, Sausalito, and Shoreline) borrowed over $27 million in state funds to build schools that now house the county's student population. Of this amount, Marin still owes over $25 million to the state — much of it to be "forgiven" and thus, paid back out of general state revenues. That means that residents of all California counties, not just Marin, are paying for a portion of the costs of building Marin's schools.

We feel that the I-J should recommend more forcefully to its readers that they return the favor and vote "Yes" on Proposition 1 this November. . .

Councilmen Must Choose Which Master

Your account, in Tuesday's paper, of the machinations of Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon is a revolting revelation of a disgusting situation in the administration of our City of San Rafael.

These two men are peddling insurance to customers that are doing business with the City of San Rafael. These customers most often need a favorable action by the city council. These customers have good reason to believe that their "interests" will be favorably handled by those representatives that are gaining a monetary income from that business.

It is naive to think that the city representatives can divorce their minds from leaning toward the interests that are paying them. These men use a subterfuge of abstaining from voting on the issues that favor their clients. Of course, they can make their deals with each other prior to the public meetings, and then go through the act of not participating in the public voting. This is specious nonsense and should not fool any citizen.

"No man can serve two masters, for he will grow to love the one and hate the other". Certainly, the love for money is a very strong urge, and these two men are not immune from this influence. They cannot serve the public with impartiality and with all their minds. They cannot judge their own actions with fairness, any more than Spiro Agenw or Richard Nixon could.

Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon should eliminate all clients that do business repeatedly with the city. They should publicize any other client, who may appear casually, and refrain from any contact with his case before the city. If they cannot do this they should resign from office. If they do not resign, they should be voted out of office.

Your recent editorial on "integrity in public office" aptly pointed up the need for a renewed dedication to good government. We have grown lazy and too careless in our tolerance of sleezy practices and graft in public office. We must search out men of high moral principles and proven good character to run our affairs, or our system of government will be destroyed.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Arab Oil Billions Could Dislocate World Economy

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The hundreds of billions of dollars the oil-producing countries will take in but cannot spend inside their own economies are the other side of the oil story.

Just as consumer nations face bankruptcy because of rising oil prices, how those moneys finally are to be spent can face the world with the vast economic dislocations of which President Ford spoke so bluntly before the United Nations and the energy conference in Detroit.

THE UNITED STATES approach to the problem has been two-sided.

Democratic Senators Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii have introduced legislation which would require a public record of the identity and amounts invested by foreigners in American stocks.

On the other side of the coin is the U.S. government attitude as represented by Treasury Secy. William E. Simon, who seeks to encourage foreign investment and not to scare it away.

The head of the New York Stock exchange, James Needham, has estimated that over the next 12 years the United States will need $650 billion of investment capital and that to meet it large foreign investments will be necessary.

AFTER A SWING through Mideast oilproducing nations, Secretary Simon said he was impressed by the "responsibility" demonstrated by them.

Of the three largest Mideast oil producers, Saudi Arabia is expected to take in this year about $26 billion, and Kuwait and Iran about $10 billion each.

Just where is their money going?

Saudi Arabia, for example, is spending about $4 billion for U.S. arms. Presumably that comes out of a national budget of about $13 billion earmarked for government expenditures and development investment this year. That accounts for about half of Saudi Arabia's income.

Another $3 billion or $4 billion has been allocated for various aid projects to Moslem and Arab nations and to some of the African nations. This represents a comparatively new attitude.

But it still leaves billions unaccounted for.

U.S. treasury officials have said the Saudis have promised to buy "several" billion dollars worth of a special bond issue. The Saudis also are to buy a $140 million world bank bond issue and to loan the International monetary fund $1.2 billion at 7 per cent interest. Another $200 million reportedly is to be invested in U.S. industry.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that Arab investors have invested some $1 billion this year in the U.S. economy in stocks and real estate.

The most flamboyant international spender of all has been the Shah of Iran, who bought a 25 per cent interest in the West German Krupp steel company, obligated himself for billions to France for nuclear electric plants and other items and offered to become involved with at least two U.S. aircraft companies.

Senators Metzenbaum and Inouye don't really believe the Arabs are trying to buy up the United States, but they think somebody should be keeping track.

Understanding Inflation Made Easy By Economic Experts

WASHINGTON — I listened to the economic summit for two days and it was a great inspiration to see so many learned men from all walks of life tell us why the country is in such a mess. Although there was some disagreement, this is what we now know for sure.

The Republicans are responsible for inflation because of their tight money policies, high interest rates, and giving in to big business at every turn.

The Democrats are responsible for inflation because of their large welfare programs, reckless government spending, and catering to the interests of labor.

IN ORDER TO CURE the upward spiral of prices, we have to make more money available for business investment.

We must make bank loans more difficult for business investment.

Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board is responsible for the recession we are in.

George Meany is responsible for the recession we're in.

There is no recession.

WE CANNOT SOLVE our economic problems until we bring down the cost of fuel, particularly oil and natural gas.

The only way we can get more fuel is to raise the price of oil and gas to encourage the oil companies.

Congress is responsible for the crisis because of the large amounts of money it has voted for unneeded government programs.

Congress has to vote new funds to keep the country from going into a depression.

UNLESS WE HAVE a tax cut, the economy will never recover from the doldrums it is in.

The only way to lick inflation is to raise taxes and keep the dollar from being devalued.

The Arabs are responsible for all our troubles.

There is no inflation. Our main problem is stagflation.

WE MUST STOP selling agricultural products abroad so we can bring down the price of food at home.

We must increase our food exports so we can have a more favorable balance of payments.

Labor has to show more responsibility when asking for wage increases.

Labor is being penalized for the mistakes of management.

We must have wage and price controls to ward off disaster.

Introduction of wage and price controls would be a disaster.

THE PEOPLE who are suffering the most from inflation are the poor, the sick and the old.

The people who are suffering the most from inflation are the brokers.

We cannot lick inflation overnight.

Inflation must be licked overnight.

San Rafael Youth Award Is Planned

The first San Rafael Centennial youth award will be made next May during the first anniversary of the city's Centennial Week, it was decided late yesterday by the San Rafael Centennial Fund Committee.

At a meeting at Bank of Marin main office, the committee arranged to set up a trust fund with $2,635 remaining after all expenses of the centennial celebration were paid. Interest on the fund, plus other money that may come from further sales of Centennial medals, will be used to give one or more youth awards annually.

The awards will be for boys and girls between 10 and 18 years old who do some form of outstanding community service. Nominations will be solicited from schools, youth organizations, and individuals.

The committee elected Thomas F. Keating, who was general chairman of the Centennial, as president, and Jean Kelly, who was centennial program chairman, as treasurer.

Next meeting, to plan a campaign to encourage entrants in the awards competition, was set for 3 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Bank of Marin main office.

Cotati Council Upholds Permit For Hiding Place

The Cotati City Council has upheld the use permit issued by the planning commission for the Last Great Hiding Place's outdoor dining area.

Appealing to the council Tuesday was Ethel Clothier, who owns the apartment-office building next to the Hiding Place, which itself is a restaurant and cafe at 8240 Old Redwood Highway.

Mrs. Clothier and her lawyer, John F. De Meo of Santa Rosa, told city officials the patio would create noise and traffic which would infringe on the privacy of the residents of the building next door.

Roger Shapiro, owner of the Hiding Place, agreed to erect a plant-covered trelliswork screen to shield the apartment dwellers.

The planning commission on Sept. 9 had decided to permit the patio despite the elderly neighbors' objections because the area is zoned for commercial activity, making Mrs. Clothier's apartments a nonconforming use.

The Cotati City Council also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Approved the planning commission's bicycle path proposal, which calls for marked lanes along existing roadways. Commission Chairman Adrienne Swenson said the proposal will create a network of safe routes for the bikes which are the main type of transportation for many Cotatians.

APPOINTMENT — Named Robert E. Davis, 39, of 301 Valparaiso Avenue, to the planning commission seat vacated by David Brown. Davis is a former naval officer and was a candidate for city council when replacements were being considered for the two councilmen who resigned after their arrest on marijuana charges.

GRANTS — Authorized city staff to seek state grants to fund a burglary prevention program and buy communications gear for the police department and federal grants to help upgrade the city water system.

AMBULANCE — Issued a certificate of public convenience to the Pioneer Ambulance Company, allowing it to operate in the city.

She's 'Wanted' In Spanish, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An FBI "wanted" poster in Spanish is being circulated to capture Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives Patricia Hearst and two associates.

FBI official John Kelly said Tuesday that his agency rarely issued "wanted" fliers in a foreign language on fugitives. But, he said, this one did not indicate the FBI feels the trio fled to Mexico.

"We don't know where they are," he said. "We have no more information that they are in Mexico, that they are in Canada, or still in the United States."

The others on the poster were William Harris and his wife Emily.

Women Forget A Mute Point

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — When his women guests ran off with deaf mute Barry Schwartzman's trousers, they overlooked the fact that he could run and write.

So Sheila McKenzie and Patricia Ann Fera are in the Dade County jail today, charged with robbery.

Police said the two women were in Schwartzman's room at the Fountainhead motel Tuesday night when he went into the bathroom. The two women seized his trousers and fled, officers said.

Schwartzman, 35, sans trousers, chased the pair and caught them in the motel parking lot, where they beat him with their platform shoes. The women escaped, police said.

Schwartzman, still sans trousers, then flagged down a passing police car on busy Collins Avenue and scrawled notes describing his plight. Police tracked down the women and arrested them.

San Rafael Youth Award Is Planned

The first San Rafael Centennial youth award will be made next May during the first anniversary of the city's Centennial Week, it was decided late yesterday by the San Rafael Centennial Fund Committee.

At a meeting at Bank of Marin main office, the committee arranged to set up a trust fund with $2,635 remaining after all expenses of the centennial celebration were paid. Interest on the fund, plus other money that may come from further sales of Centennial medals, will be used to give one or more youth awards annually.

The awards will be for boys and girls between 10 and 18 years old who do some form of outstanding community service. Nominations will be solicited from schools, youth organizations, and individuals.

The committee elected Thomas F. Keating, who was general chairman of the Centennial, as president, and Jean Kelly, who was centennial program chairman, as treasurer.

Next meeting, to plan a campaign to encourage entrants in the awards competition, was set for 3 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Bank of Marin main office.

Cotati Council Upholds Permit For Hiding Place

The Cotati City Council has upheld the use permit issued by the planning commission for the Last Great Hiding Place's outdoor dining area.

Appealing to the council Tuesday was Ethel Clothier, who owns the apartment-office building next to the Hiding Place, which itself is a restaurant and cafe at 8240 Old Redwood Highway.

Mrs. Clothier and her lawyer, John F. De Meo of Santa Rosa, told city officials the patio would create noise and traffic which would infringe on the privacy of the residents of the building next door.

Roger Shapiro, owner of the Hiding Place, agreed to erect a plant-covered trelliswork screen to shield the apartment dwellers.

The planning commission on Sept. 9 had decided to permit the patio despite the elderly neighbors' objections because the area is zoned for commercial activity, making Mrs. Clothier's apartments a nonconforming use.

The Cotati City Council also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Approved the planning commission's bicycle path proposal, which calls for marked lanes along existing roadways. Commission Chairman Adrienne Swenson said the proposal will create a network of safe routes for the bikes which are the main type of transportation for many Cotatians.

APPOINTMENT — Named Robert E. Davis, 39, of 301 Valparaiso Avenue, to the planning commission seat vacated by David Brown. Davis is a former naval officer and was a candidate for city council when replacements were being considered for the two councilmen who resigned after their arrest on marijuana charges.

GRANTS — Authorized city staff to seek state grants to fund a burglary prevention program and buy communications gear for the police department and federal grants to help upgrade the city water system.

AMBULANCE — Issued a certificate of public convenience to the Pioneer Ambulance Company, allowing it to operate in the city.

She's 'Wanted' In Spanish, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An FBI "wanted" poster in Spanish is being circulated to capture Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives Patricia Hearst and two associates.

FBI official John Kelly said Tuesday that his agency rarely issued "wanted" fliers in a foreign language on fugitives. But, he said, this one did not indicate the FBI feels the trio fled to Mexico.

"We don't know where they are," he said. "We have no more information that they are in Mexico, that they are in Canada, or still in the United States."

The others on the poster were William Harris and his wife Emily.

Women Forget A Mute Point

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — When his women guests ran off with deaf mute Barry Schwartzman's trousers, they overlooked the fact that he could run and write.

So Sheila McKenzie and Patricia Ann Fera are in the Dade County jail today, charged with robbery.

Police said the two women were in Schwartzman's room at the Fountainhead motel Tuesday night when he went into the bathroom. The two women seized his trousers and fled, officers said.

Schwartzman, 35, sans trousers, chased the pair and caught them in the motel parking lot, where they beat him with their platform shoes. The women escaped, police said.

Schwartzman, still sans trousers, then flagged down a passing police car on busy Collins Avenue and scrawled notes describing his plight. Police tracked down the women and arrested them.

ART BUCHWALD

Understanding Inflation Made Easy By Economic Experts

WASHINGTON — I listened to the economic summit for two days and it was a great inspiration to see so many learned men from all walks of life tell us why the country is in such a mess. Although there was some disagreement, this is what we now know for sure.

The Republicans are responsible for inflation because of their tight money policies, high interest rates, and giving in to big business at every turn.

The Democrats are responsible for inflation because of their large welfare programs, reckless government spending, and catering to the interests of labor.

IN ORDER TO CURE the upward spiral of prices, we have to make more money available for business investment.

We must make bank loans more difficult for business investment.

Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board is responsible for the recession we are in.

George Meany is responsible for the recession we're in.

There is no recession.

WE CANNOT SOLVE our economic problems until we bring down the cost of fuel, particularly oil and natural gas.

The only way we can get more fuel is to raise the price of oil and gas to encourage the oil companies.

Congress is responsible for the crisis because of the large amounts of money it has voted for unneeded government programs.

Congress has to vote new funds to keep the country from going into a depression.

UNLESS WE HAVE a tax cut, the economy will never recover from the doldrums it is in.

The only way to lick inflation is to raise taxes and keep the dollar from being devalued.

The Arabs are responsible for all our troubles.

There is no inflation. Our main problem is stagflation.

WE MUST STOP selling agricultural products abroad so we can bring down the price of food at home.

We must increase our food exports so we can have a more favorable balance of payments.

Labor has to show more responsibility when asking for wage increases.

Labor is being penalized for the mistakes of management.

We must have wage and price controls to ward off disaster.

Introduction of wage and price controls would be a disaster.

THE PEOPLE who are suffering the most from inflation are the poor, the sick and the old.

The people who are suffering the most from inflation are the brokers.

We cannot lick inflation overnight.

Inflation must be licked overnight.

Summit conferences are the best way to resolve differences in economic philosophies.

Calling back Nixon's economists to tell us how we can win the battle against inflation is like asking the Italian general staff to tell us how to win World War II.

SIDEWALK SCENE

A checkerboard pattern of wooden framing awaits concrete that will be poured by workmen on Hetherton Street, beside Highway 101 in San Rafael. This is a small section of a city-state project that will include landscaping and extends from the Mission Avenue freeway offramp to Second Street. The job is expected to be complete within a month.

East's Snowfall Is Earliest In Century

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Syracuse, N.Y., residents went to work and school in an inch of snow which fell early today, and Pittsburgh, Pa., got a dash of early morning snowfall, the earliest to arrive in this century.

A record freeze in Ohio probably brought an end to the corn and soybean growing season throughout the state, according to agriculture officials.

"What didn't get it last week got it last night," said Homer Carter of the Ohio Agricultural Crop Reporting Service. "That ought to finish off the growing season."

Similar reports came from Illinois and elsewhere in the Midwest.

Record low temperatures put this Oct. 3 into history with Milwaukee, Wis., and Lexington, Ky., recording a chilling 27 degrees and the Chicago area mercury dropping to 26 at DuPage County Airport.

The unseasonable cold, the product of an air mass which nestled in over the area several days ago, brought temperatures down to the lowest ever on an Oct. 2 (yesterday) in Grand Rapids, Mich., South Bend, Ind., Charleston, W. Va., and Binghamton.

Snow coated portions of the lower Great Lakes, the extreme upper Ohio Valley and the northern Appalachians. Up to four inches fell yesterday in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Frost and freeze warnings remained in effect early today for the Ohio Valley, middle Mississippi Valley and the central and southern Appalachians.

Snow also was expected in northern and western New York and the mountain areas of Maine and New Hampshire. A travelers advisory was issued for the Adirondack Mountains in New York.

Temperature records tumbled in scores of communities in Nebraska, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Was 25th Amendment Such A Good Idea?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
38 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

After Richard M. Nixon resigned and Gerald R. Ford was sworn in to succeed him as president, there was much self-congratulation in this country on the smoothness of the transition.

Large credit was given to the 25th Amendment, which provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Were it not for the 25th Amendment, it was pointed out, there would have been no vice president, because of the previous resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Thanks to the 25th Amendment, the transition was orderly; a new president took office without delay despite the resignation of both the president and the elected vice president.

PERHAPS WE congratulated ourselves too soon.

We now have confirmation hearings under way on another vice president selected by the president — but this time, by a president who was not himself elected. And Congress seems in no hurry to confirm Nelson Rockefeller in the nation's second highest office.

If the 25th Amendment had not been adopted, succession to the presidency would have come under Article II, Section 5 of the Constitution, which said: ". . . the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

CONGRESS HAD so provided. The speaker of the House had been designated as next in line for the presidency if there were no vice president. This would have put Carl Albert of Oklahoma in the office.

However, this would not have meant that Albert would remain president until the end of 1976; for the Constitution — before the 25th Amendment — plainly said such succession should be only until "a president shall be elected."

A special election for president would not require the long nominating process and long campaign which accompany the quadrennial presidential elections. A brief campaign, nationwide primaries, and an electoral college decision could be concluded within a few months.

IN FACT, such a special election might take less time than it appears the Congress is going to take in confirming Nelson Rickefeller as vice president.

And we would have a president who had been elected by the people.

Maybe the 25th Amendment was not such a good idea. Maybe the Founding Fathers thought things through better than we of the 20th Century.

Way Now Clear In Both Parties For New Presidential Aspirants

Suddenly, it's an all-new political scene for Americans.

No one has a stranglehold on the future of either of the two big American political parties. Edward Kennedy has taken himself out of the 1976 Democratic Party picture and Gerald Ford has done several things which have reduced him from a Republican probability to only a possibility.

Other Republicans see an open road ahead even though Mr. Ford has the advantage of being the sitting President.

THE ELIMINATION of the Kennedy factor in the Democratic Party is the more spectacular and visible of the two changes of recent days. The senator and his family were so intimately involved in their political feud with Richard Nixon that another campaign including a Kennedy would have been like fighting old battles on old battlefields. Passions and prejudices from the past would have continued to inflame the events of today and tomorrow.

The resignation of the last Kennedy from the presidential scene was the logical sequel to the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency. They were natural antagonists. They were the respective champions of rival tribes. So long as one was in the field the other was found to be there also. But when one left, the other was free to step aside as well. With both gone there is an end to a political era in which the great issues were civil rights, welfare, and imperialism (the Vietnam war).

THOSE THREE ISSUES are no longer divisive. Republicans and Democrats are indistinguishable on civil rights. President Ford has repaired his party's relations with the black community. Democrats have come to accept the need for containing the cost and spread of welfare. The Republican White House is practicing amnesty toward Vietnam war veterans and giving serious though cautious consideration to a reconciliation with Fidel Castro of Cuba.

A national consensus has been reached on these three issues which divided Democrats from Republicans ever since John F. Kennedy ran against Richard Nixon in 1960. Fair treatment for blacks, reform of welfare, and contraction of empire are standard now in both parties. The election this November is not going to be fought over any of these old issues With the issues gone, it is fitting that the symbols and the champions of the old battles over these issues should also recede.

THE NEW SITUATION inside the Republican Party has been obscured by a general lack of perception of the real political effect of the pardoning of Richard Nixon. It was done by the new Republican president for the immediate and visible benefit of the former Republican president. But in real political terms it benefited the Democrats, and injured the prospects of every Republican running for office this November.

It benefited Democrats because an unpardoned Richard Nixon would have been a burden on Democrats. They would be accused of responsibility for his human sufferings. Now that he is pardoned, the question is not whether he should be, but whether the new Republican president was wise or mistaken in granting the pardon. The Democrats can sit peacefully on the sidelines of this issue, uninvolved and untouched. It is divisive only inside the Republican Party.

The effect there (among Republicans) is to raise a big doubt as to whether Mr. Ford is the best leader they could have. They all like him personally, but among party leaders both on Capitol Hill in Washington and throughout the country, there are grave doubts that his political antennae are good enough for the welfare of the party.

The net of it is that no one can be sure right now who will be the 1976 leaders of the two parties. No figure dominates the politics of either party. The old figures recede with the old issues. The slate is clean. It's pleasant, and healthy, to be able to leave the past behind and — look ahead.

STROUT IN WASHINGTON

The Strange Succession To The Vice Presidency

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller, one of the most powerful men in America, is about to take one of the country's most frustrating jobs.

Mr. Rockefeller's confirmation is taken for granted, and the Senate Rules Committee has ended the first phase of its hearings with near-unanimity expected.

As in the earlier confirmation of Gerald Ford, the committee heard a series of militant critics of the appointment, mostly directed against Mr. Rockefeller's actions as governor.

THERE ARE LOTS of "firsts" in the present situation, but the biggest question is in human terms: Will Mr. Rockefeller, four-times elected governor of New York and member of one of the richest families in America, sink out of sight as the spare wheel of the Ford administration, in vice-presidential impotency?

Gerald Ford is the ninth vice-president to succeed a president in mid-term. He is the first to succeed a living president.

Mr. Rockefeller is the second man to become vice-president (if confirmed) without a national election. And he will be the first selected by a president who wasn't himself elected.

AS MR. ROCKEFELLER answered questions on every aspect of his fortune, fame, and family in the Senate Caucus Room, many wondered about the strange office he faced. Others compared the mood today with that when Mr. Ford underwent the same ordeal.

Representative Ford was universally liked and known. His eager, helpful, modest desire to aid the committee was a kind of family affair. With Mr. Rockefeller, the mood is different. Few denied the comment of the Democratic Senate whip, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, on Mr. Rockefeller's wealth: "Can't we agree on the tremendous, colossal influence that is there — the greatest of anyone ever to be vice-president?"

Mr. Rockefeller's fortune is $62.5 million, with income from two trusts of $116 million. His brother, David, heads the Chase Manhattan Bank, one of the world's largest.

Mr. Rockefeller spoke mildly, save in describing the tragic Attica prison uprising where 43 lives were lost and where he declined as governor to negotiate in person. His jaw set with a hint of the religious firmness of his family ethic as he said:

"I do not believe in negotiating with people who are holding hostages under threat of death."

PROPOSALS ARE HEARD in Congress to re-consider the vice-presidency, and the 25th Amendment.

"It is time to amend the amendment before this nation reverts to the selection of its sovereign by his predecessor," said former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, in reference to the Nixon-Ford-Rockefeller succession.

"I think it is a mistake, and a bad one, to separate the president from the people," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a presidential contender himself.

Others urge a special national election a few months after any president is named under the 25th Amendment.

Few Latin American countries which adopted a U.S. style constitution included the institution of the vice-president. The choice of vice-presidential candidates is often an afterthought at party conventions.

THE CHIEF REASON why the office is esteemed, though generally unstated, is that it carries a fair statistical chance of its holder becoming president.

There have been attempts on the lives of Presidents Jackson, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, Truman, and Kennedy. This averages one out of six. One out of nine has been killed.

Vice-presidents who have succeeded to the higher office at presidential deaths were Tyler, Fillmore, Andrew Johnson, Arthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge, Truman, and Lyndon Johnson. And now Mr. Ford has succeeded a presidential resignation.

No Need To Tilt The Golden Rule

The recent reappearance of Angela Davis on the public scene causes a shudder. It revives horrors best forgotten. No one could more quickly make a cause over being momentarily delayed and cuffed than Miss Davis.

No one knows better than Miss Davis that the void left by Watergate leaves fallow ground where she might conceivably seed new racism. Her passion for the National Alliance for the Racially and Politically Repressed echoes hollowly. After 30 years of force-feeding ourselves with all-around equality for the black man Americans no longer have guilt feelings for their colored brothers. By now we have enough firsthand knowledge. Just because we have a black minority does not mean that we must tilt the golden rule.

Marin Voters Should Return State's Favor

The Independent-Journal, in a Sept. 30 editorial, incorrectly implied that only poorly managed school districts are in need of Proposition 1 funds. The I-J overlooks inflation, property tax limitations, and other factors in all growing school districts, even the well-managed ones, as the major reasons why there is still a vital need in California for state school building aid loans.

Although California's school age population is stabilizing, there remain some school districts in the state that have rapidly increasing student populations and not enough local funds to finance the building of new schools. Sonoma County, for example, has five such districts.

Since 1952, during a period of rapid growth in Marin County, 12 Marin school districts (Dixie, Fairfax, Kentfield, Lagunitas, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Reed, San Anselmo, San Rafael, Sausalito, and Shoreline) borrowed over $27 million in state funds to build schools that now house the county's student population. Of this amount, Marin still owes over $25 million to the state — much of it to be "forgiven" and thus, paid back out of general state revenues. That means that residents of all California counties, not just Marin, are paying for a portion of the costs of building Marin's schools.

We feel that the I-J should recommend more forcefully to its readers that they return the favor and vote "Yes" on Proposition 1 this November. . .

Councilmen Must Choose Which Master

Your account, in Tuesday's paper, of the machinations of Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon is a revolting revelation of a disgusting situation in the administration of our City of San Rafael.

These two men are peddling insurance to customers that are doing business with the City of San Rafael. These customers most often need a favorable action by the city council. These customers have good reason to believe that their "interests" will be favorably handled by those representatives that are gaining a monetary income from that business.

It is naive to think that the city representatives can divorce their minds from leaning toward the interests that are paying them. These men use a subterfuge of abstaining from voting on the issues that favor their clients. Of course, they can make their deals with each other prior to the public meetings, and then go through the act of not participating in the public voting. This is specious nonsense and should not fool any citizen.

"No man can serve two masters, for he will grow to love the one and hate the other". Certainly, the love for money is a very strong urge, and these two men are not immune from this influence. They cannot serve the public with impartiality and with all their minds. They cannot judge their own actions with fairness, any more than Spiro Agenw or Richard Nixon could.

Mayor Bettini and Councilman Nixon should eliminate all clients that do business repeatedly with the city. They should publicize any other client, who may appear casually, and refrain from any contact with his case before the city. If they cannot do this they should resign from office. If they do not resign, they should be voted out of office.

Your recent editorial on "integrity in public office" aptly pointed up the need for a renewed dedication to good government. We have grown lazy and too careless in our tolerance of sleezy practices and graft in public office. We must search out men of high moral principles and proven good character to run our affairs, or our system of government will be destroyed.

FDA Commissioner Off Base In Attempting To Play God

(Reprinted from San Jose News)

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt wants Congress to keep its nose out of what he considers strictly FDA business: regulation of the vitamin industry. The commissioner is off base. Congressional concern, already expressed at separate House and Senate hearings, is with another federal regulatory agency's efforts to play God, dictating what it determines is best for the American people despite the absence of scientific agreement or compelling need.

The FDA-vitamin battle is similar to the Department of Transportation-seat belt ignition interlock system fight. In the latter case, an administrative agency required that all new cars beginning with the 1974 model year be equipped with such devices. Sequential warning devices and air bags were on the Department of Transportation's list of future requirements.

Without doubt, the safety of the motorist and his passengers was the primary concern of the Department of Transportation. But American motorists rebelled at this big government-knows-best paternalism. Both houses of Congress, in tune with public distaste for such mandatory safety devices in automobiles, have passed resolutions or bills to rescind the requirements.

The vitamin furor is much the same. The FDA was prepared to enforce a new set of regulations that would classify high concentrations of vitamins as durgs. As such they would be available only by prescription. One target of the regulation was the health food and supplement fad.

Undoubtedly many health food and vitamin supplement practices are foolish or of dubious value. But if all such practices were proscribed by legislation or administrative edict, our lives would be regulatory nightmares. On the basis of present scientific knowledge, one must concur with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that as long as a vitamin or mineral is not toxic, mislabeled or misrepresented, "the FDA should no more prevent the public from buying them than they should prevent them from drinking beer or eating hot dogs."

Arab Oil Billions Could Dislocate World Economy

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The hundreds of billions of dollars the oil-producing countries will take in but cannot spend inside their own economies are the other side of the oil story.

Just as consumer nations face bankruptcy because of rising oil prices, how those moneys finally are to be spent can face the world with the vast economic dislocations of which President Ford spoke so bluntly before the United Nations and the energy conference in Detroit.

THE UNITED STATES approach to the problem has been two-sided.

Democratic Senators Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii have introduced legislation which would require a public record of the identity and amounts invested by foreigners in American stocks.

On the other side of the coin is the U.S. government attitude as represented by Treasury Secy. William E. Simon, who seeks to encourage foreign investment and not to scare it away.

The head of the New York Stock exchange, James Needham, has estimated that over the next 12 years the United States will need $650 billion of investment capital and that to meet it large foreign investments will be necessary.

AFTER A SWING through Mideast oilproducing nations, Secretary Simon said he was impressed by the "responsibility" demonstrated by them.

Of the three largest Mideast oil producers, Saudi Arabia is expected to take in this year about $26 billion, and Kuwait and Iran about $10 billion each.

Just where is their money going?

Saudi Arabia, for example, is spending about $4 billion for U.S. arms. Presumably that comes out of a national budget of about $13 billion earmarked for government expenditures and development investment this year. That accounts for about half of Saudi Arabia's income.

Another $3 billion or $4 billion has been allocated for various aid projects to Moslem and Arab nations and to some of the African nations. This represents a comparatively new attitude.

But it still leaves billions unaccounted for.

U.S. treasury officials have said the Saudis have promised to buy "several" billion dollars worth of a special bond issue. The Saudis also are to buy a $140 million world bank bond issue and to loan the International monetary fund $1.2 billion at 7 per cent interest. Another $200 million reportedly is to be invested in U.S. industry.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that Arab investors have invested some $1 billion this year in the U.S. economy in stocks and real estate.

The most flamboyant international spender of all has been the Shah of Iran, who bought a 25 per cent interest in the West German Krupp steel company, obligated himself for billions to France for nuclear electric plants and other items and offered to become involved with at least two U.S. aircraft companies.

Senators Metzenbaum and Inouye don't really believe the Arabs are trying to buy up the United States, but they think somebody should be keeping track.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Was 25th Amendment Such A Good Idea?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
38 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

After Richard M. Nixon resigned and Gerald R. Ford was sworn in to succeed him as president, there was much self-congratulation in this country on the smoothness of the transition.

Large credit was given to the 25th Amendment, which provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Were it not for the 25th Amendment, it was pointed out, there would have been no vice president, because of the previous resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Thanks to the 25th Amendment, the transition was orderly; a new president took office without delay despite the resignation of both the president and the elected vice president.

PERHAPS WE congratulated ourselves too soon.

We now have confirmation hearings under way on another vice president selected by the president — but this time, by a president who was not himself elected. And Congress seems in no hurry to confirm Nelson Rockefeller in the nation's second highest office.

If the 25th Amendment had not been adopted, succession to the presidency would have come under Article II, Section 5 of the Constitution, which said: ". . . the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

CONGRESS HAD so provided. The speaker of the House had been designated as next in line for the presidency if there were no vice president. This would have put Carl Albert of Oklahoma in the office.

However, this would not have meant that Albert would remain president until the end of 1976; for the Constitution — before the 25th Amendment — plainly said such succession should be only until "a president shall be elected."

A special election for president would not require the long nominating process and long campaign which accompany the quadrennial presidential elections. A brief campaign, nationwide primaries, and an electoral college decision could be concluded within a few months.

IN FACT, such a special election might take less time than it appears the Congress is going to take in confirming Nelson Rickefeller as vice president.

And we would have a president who had been elected by the people.

Maybe the 25th Amendment was not such a good idea. Maybe the Founding Fathers thought things through better than we of the 20th Century.

Way Now Clear In Both Parties For New Presidential Aspirants

Suddenly, it's an all-new political scene for Americans.

No one has a stranglehold on the future of either of the two big American political parties. Edward Kennedy has taken himself out of the 1976 Democratic Party picture and Gerald Ford has done several things which have reduced him from a Republican probability to only a possibility.

Other Republicans see an open road ahead even though Mr. Ford has the advantage of being the sitting President.

THE ELIMINATION of the Kennedy factor in the Democratic Party is the more spectacular and visible of the two changes of recent days. The senator and his family were so intimately involved in their political feud with Richard Nixon that another campaign including a Kennedy would have been like fighting old battles on old battlefields. Passions and prejudices from the past would have continued to inflame the events of today and tomorrow.

The resignation of the last Kennedy from the presidential scene was the logical sequel to the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency. They were natural antagonists. They were the respective champions of rival tribes. So long as one was in the field the other was found to be there also. But when one left, the other was free to step aside as well. With both gone there is an end to a political era in which the great issues were civil rights, welfare, and imperialism (the Vietnam war).

THOSE THREE ISSUES are no longer divisive. Republicans and Democrats are indistinguishable on civil rights. President Ford has repaired his party's relations with the black community. Democrats have come to accept the need for containing the cost and spread of welfare. The Republican White House is practicing amnesty toward Vietnam war veterans and giving serious though cautious consideration to a reconciliation with Fidel Castro of Cuba.

A national consensus has been reached on these three issues which divided Democrats from Republicans ever since John F. Kennedy ran against Richard Nixon in 1960. Fair treatment for blacks, reform of welfare, and contraction of empire are standard now in both parties. The election this November is not going to be fought over any of these old issues With the issues gone, it is fitting that the symbols and the champions of the old battles over these issues should also recede.

THE NEW SITUATION inside the Republican Party has been obscured by a general lack of perception of the real political effect of the pardoning of Richard Nixon. It was done by the new Republican president for the immediate and visible benefit of the former Republican president. But in real political terms it benefited the Democrats, and injured the prospects of every Republican running for office this November.

It benefited Democrats because an unpardoned Richard Nixon would have been a burden on Democrats. They would be accused of responsibility for his human sufferings. Now that he is pardoned, the question is not whether he should be, but whether the new Republican president was wise or mistaken in granting the pardon. The Democrats can sit peacefully on the sidelines of this issue, uninvolved and untouched. It is divisive only inside the Republican Party.

The effect there (among Republicans) is to raise a big doubt as to whether Mr. Ford is the best leader they could have. They all like him personally, but among party leaders both on Capitol Hill in Washington and throughout the country, there are grave doubts that his political antennae are good enough for the welfare of the party.

The net of it is that no one can be sure right now who will be the 1976 leaders of the two parties. No figure dominates the politics of either party. The old figures recede with the old issues. The slate is clean. It's pleasant, and healthy, to be able to leave the past behind and — look ahead.

Another $200 million reportedly is to be invested in U.S. industry.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that Arab investors have invested some $1 billion this year in the U.S. economy in stocks and real estate.

The most flamboyant international spender of all has been the Shah of Iran, who bought a 25 per cent interest in the West German Krupp steel company, obligated himself for billions to France for nuclear electric plants and other items and offered to become involved with at least two U.S. aircraft companies.

Senators Metzenbaum and Inouye don't really believe the Arabs are trying to buy up the United States, but they think somebody should be keeping track.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"As I write this it's just a day or so before that Congress of ours is supposed to go home. Now whether they will do it, or not, the Lord himself only knows. Course they have the prayers of a nation being offered up in favor of a homecoming for the whole mess. But there has been better ones that we couldn't jar loose from.

"It's not really intention on the government's part that they don't do better, it's ignorance." — March 8, 1931.

ART BUCHWALD

Understanding Inflation Made Easy By Economic Experts

WASHINGTON — I listened to the economic summit for two days and it was a great inspiration to see so many learned men from all walks of life tell us why the country is in such a mess. Although there was some disagreement, this is what we now know for sure.

The Republicans are responsible for inflation because of their tight money policies, high interest rates, and giving in to big business at every turn.

The Democrats are responsible for inflation because of their large welfare programs, reckless government spending, and catering to the interests of labor.

IN ORDER TO CURE the upward spiral of prices, we have to make more money available for business investment.

We must make bank loans more difficult for business investment.

Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board is responsible for the recession we are in.

George Meany is responsible for the recession we're in.

There is no recession.

WE CANNOT SOLVE our economic problems until we bring down the cost of fuel, particularly oil and natural gas.

The only way we can get more fuel is to raise the price of oil and gas to encourage the oil companies.

Congress is responsible for the crisis because of the large amounts of money it has voted for unneeded government programs.

Congress has to vote new funds to keep the country from going into a depression.

UNLESS WE HAVE a tax cut, the economy will never recover from the doldrums it is in.

The only way to lick inflation is to raise taxes and keep the dollar from being devalued.

The Arabs are responsible for all our troubles.

There is no inflation. Our main problem is stagflation.

WE MUST STOP selling agricultural products abroad so we can bring down the price of food at home.

We must increase our food exports so we can have a more favorable balance of payments.

Labor has to show more responsibility when asking for wage increases.

Labor is being penalized for the mistakes of management.

We must have wage and price controls to ward off disaster.

Introduction of wage and price controls would be a disaster.

THE PEOPLE who are suffering the most from inflation are the poor, the sick and the old.

The people who are suffering the most from inflation are the brokers.

We cannot lick inflation overnight.

Inflation must be licked overnight.

Summit conferences are the best way to resolve differences in economic philosophies.

Calling back Nixon's economists to tell us how we can win the battle against inflation is like asking the Italian general staff to tell us how to win World War II.

San Rafael Youth Award Is Planned

The first San Rafael Centennial youth award will be made next May during the first anniversary of the city's Centennial Week, it was decided late yesterday by the San Rafael Centennial Fund Committee.

At a meeting at Bank of Marin main office, the committee arranged to set up a trust fund with $2,635 remaining after all expenses of the centennial celebration were paid. Interest on the fund, plus other money that may come from further sales of Centennial medals, will be used to give one or more youth awards annually.

The awards will be for boys and girls between 10 and 18 years old who do some form of outstanding community service. Nominations will be solicited from schools, youth organizations, and individuals.

The committee elected Thomas F. Keating, who was general chairman of the Centennial, as president, and Jean Kelly, who was centennial program chairman, as treasurer.

Next meeting, to plan a campaign to encourage entrants in the awards competition, was set for 3 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Bank of Marin main office.

Cotati Council Upholds Permit For Hiding Place

The Cotati City Council has upheld the use permit issued by the planning commission for the Last Great Hiding Place's outdoor dining area.

Appealing to the council Tuesday was Ethel Clothier, who owns the apartment-office building next to the Hiding Place, which itself is a restaurant and cafe at 8240 Old Redwood Highway.

Mrs. Clothier and her lawyer, John F. De Meo of Santa Rosa, told city officials the patio would create noise and traffic which would infringe on the privacy of the residents of the building next door.

Roger Shapiro, owner of the Hiding Place, agreed to erect a plant-covered trelliswork screen to shield the apartment dwellers.

The planning commission on Sept. 9 had decided to permit the patio despite the elderly neighbors' objections because the area is zoned for commercial activity, making Mrs. Clothier's apartments a nonconforming use.

The Cotati City Council also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Approved the planning commission's bicycle path proposal, which calls for marked lanes along existing roadways. Commission Chairman Adrienne Swenson said the proposal will create a network of safe routes for the bikes which are the main type of transportation for many Cotatians.

APPOINTMENT — Named Robert E. Davis, 39, of 301 Valparaiso Avenue, to the planning commission seat vacated by David Brown. Davis is a former naval officer and was a candidate for city council when replacements were being considered for the two councilmen who resigned after their arrest on marijuana charges.

GRANTS — Authorized city staff to seek state grants to fund a burglary prevention program and buy communications gear for the police department and federal grants to help upgrade the city water system.

AMBULANCE — Issued a certificate of public convenience to the Pioneer Ambulance Company, allowing it to operate in the city.

She's 'Wanted' In Spanish, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An FBI "wanted" poster in Spanish is being circulated to capture Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives Patricia Hearst and two associates.

FBI official John Kelly said Tuesday that his agency rarely issued "wanted" fliers in a foreign language on fugitives. But, he said, this one did not indicate the FBI feels the trio fled to Mexico.

"We don't know where they are," he said. "We have no more information that they are in Mexico, that they are in Canada, or still in the United States."

The others on the poster were William Harris and his wife Emily.

Women Forget A Mute Point

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — When his women guests ran off with deaf mute Barry Schwartzman's trousers, they overlooked the fact that he could run and write.

So Sheila McKenzie and Patricia Ann Fera are in the Dade County jail today, charged with robbery.

Police said the two women were in Schwartzman's room at the Fountainhead motel Tuesday night when he went into the bathroom. The two women seized his trousers and fled, officers said.

Schwartzman, 35, sans trousers, chased the pair and caught them in the motel parking lot, where they beat him with their platform shoes. The women escaped, police said.

Schwartzman, still sans trousers, then flagged down a passing police car on busy Collins Avenue and scrawled notes describing his plight. Police tracked down the women and arrested them.

East's Snowfall Is Earliest In Century

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Syracuse, N.Y., residents went to work and school in an inch of snow which fell early today, and Pittsburgh, Pa., got a dash of early morning snowfall, the earliest to arrive in this century.

A record freeze in Ohio probably brought an end to the corn and soybean growing season throughout the state, according to agriculture officials.

"What didn't get it last week got it last night," said Homer Carter of the Ohio Agricultural Crop Reporting Service. "That ought to finish off the growing season."

Similar reports came from Illinois and elsewhere in the Midwest.

Record low temperatures put this Oct. 3 into history with Milwaukee, Wis., and Lexington, Ky., recording a chilling 27 degrees and the Chicago area mercury dropping to 26 at DuPage County Airport.

The unseasonable cold, the product of an air mass which nestled in over the area several days ago, brought temperatures down to the lowest ever on an Oct. 2 (yesterday) in Grand Rapids, Mich., South Bend, Ind., Charleston, W. Va., and Binghamton.

Snow coated portions of the lower Great Lakes, the extreme upper Ohio Valley and the northern Appalachians. Up to four inches fell yesterday in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Frost and freeze warnings remained in effect early today for the Ohio Valley, middle Mississippi Valley and the central and southern Appalachians.

Snow also was expected in northern and western New York and the mountain areas of Maine and New Hampshire. A travelers advisory was issued for the Adirondack Mountains in New York.
